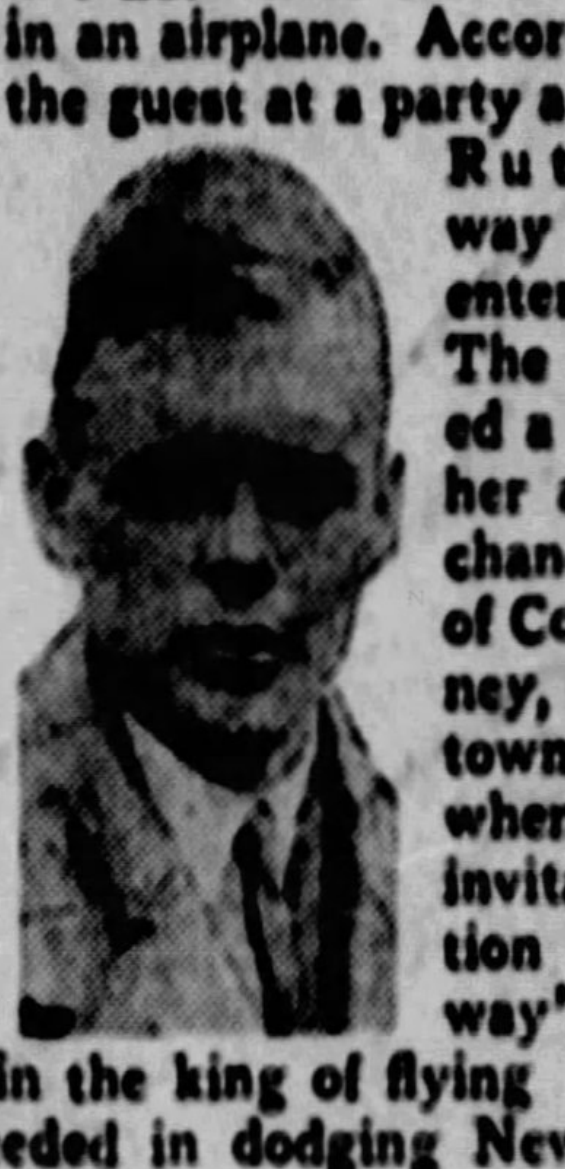
RUTH ELDER CATCHES COLD AT BROADWAY PARTY FOR LINDY

MARY EATON



NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Life for Col. Lindbergh is not a continual zoom in an airplane. According to a morning paper, Lindy was the guest at a party attended by such other celebrities as Ruth Elder and Mary Eaton, Broadway actress, and enlivened by the best entertainers of the Great White Way. The paper says that Ruth Elder contracted a severe cold and today is confined to her apartment.

The party was a chance affair, Lindy had been the guest of Col. Henry Breckenridge, his attorney, Sunday night, and was going down town to dine early Monday morning when his party met Miss Eaton. At her invitation the party changed its destination to her apartment. Then Broadway's best were summoned to entertain the king of flying Lindy has succeeded in dodging New York crowds, but yesterday was recognized in a Forty-second street store and held prisoner until liberated by the arrival of police.

Miss Elder's cold is attributed to an automobile ride to the party in the night air. Yesterday she failed to appear in court at Clayton, Ga., to answer charges of misconduct with an itinerant preacher three years ago, and forfeited $500 bond.

THE Federal Reserve reports cheerful business conditions. Production of steel ingots increased 25 per cent in January, general manufactured products increased 6 per cent. This country is in good shape, richest, most prosperous, most fortunate on earth.

If government will put some of its surplus to work on the Mississippi and the Boulder Dam development, all will be serene.

Distributing water and fertilizer makes farms productive, distributing cash makes nations prosperous.

THE Rev. Rodolph Petter, devoted missionary on the Northern Cheyenne Reservation in Montana, is translating the Bible from Hebrew and Greek into the language of the Cheyenne Indians. Translating the New Testament must be difficult. Fighting Cheyennes did not talk the language of Christianity.

THE reverend translator can sympathize with old Maimonides, who translated the Greek philosophers into Hebrew. He had to invent Hebrew words to express abstract Greek ideas that did not exist in the Hebrew language. Because he did that, the great synagogue in Spain excommunicated him.

That did not worry the justly reverend "Rambam." He had a good job as physician to the ruler of Egypt, and lived safely with that wise and tolerant Mohammedan.

TONIGHT in California, with 40,000 people that might be better employed, looking on, the powerful Basque Uzcudun, from the Pyrenees, will fight the huge Negro prize fighter Godfrey. The Basque weighs 195 pounds, the Negro 235 pounds.

TO THIS Uzcudun, member of a strange race of origin unknown, all men look alike. Our high spirited white American fighters, whose ring time is worth $500 a second, are more cautious.

TRY PAL OF JAWORSKI

Fearing another desperate attempt by the "Flathead Gang" to "spring" an alleged member, like Paul Jaworski, gang leader awaiting execution who shot his way out of the county jail in August last, Chief County Detective George W. Murren today threw a cordon of heavily armed county detectives around the corridors of the Courthouse and in Criminal Courtroom No. 2, where Stanley Bodziakowski, alias Bosziak, was placed on trial before Judge Ambrose B. Reid as one of the band that blew up the pay car of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company on the road near Coverdale last March 11, injuring six guards and escaping with $104,000.

The courtroom was barred to all but witnesses. Sheriff Robert H. Braun also placed extra deputy sheriffs in the room.

"One of the most daring and bold crimes ever committed in this county," First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park told the jury, describing the holdup in his outline of the case.

He told how Chief Murren traced the robbers to the farm of Joe Weskowski near Bentleyville, in Washington county, and recovered nearly half of the loot.

Bodziakowski, who was said to have received $14,500 as his share of the money, was traced to Montreal, "where the Canadian police fell down on the arrest," went to Europe and was relieved of much of his gain, returned to Montreal and was captured there December 1 by County Detective John Geisler, Park said.

Dirigible Off for Cuba

COLON, Panama Canal Zone, Feb. 28.—After a stay of 12 hours in the Panama Canal Zone, the United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles left France Field at 10:15 a. m. for Cuba.

The Los Angeles flew westward over the Panama Canal, circling over Panama before heading for Cuba.

Both the arrival and departure at France Field were carried out without a hitch.

A large squad of sailors was pressed into service at the flying field to aid the ordinary ground crew.

After heading westward towards Gatun the Los Angeles took a southeasterly course.

The Los Angeles presented a magnificent sight at France Flying Field, perched at the top of a mast erected especially for her coming. The dirigible was moored safely at 10:25 last night upon the completion of her longest non-stop flight since she crossed the ocean from Germany.

"FUELLESS MOTOR" PROBE LOOMS

Declaring previous contrivances of Lester J. Hendershot, West Elizabeth inventor, to be a hoax, F. W. Hochstetter, of the Hochstetter Research Laboratories, announced today that he would go to New York with leading men of science and demand that the "fuelless motor" be dissembled in the presence of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and electrical engineers of the United States Army and Navy.

Hochstetter said he had no commercial interest in the matter, but would insist on his investigation in behalf of maintaining the integrity of science itself and the ethics of all bona fide scientific organizations.

Fear 3 in Plane Dead

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—One of the greatest aerial searches ever organized was in progress today for trace of three missing naval fliers who disappeared while flying an amphibian plane between Hampton Roads and Annapolis.

The first definite clue to the missing plane was given today by the lighthouse keeper at Thomas' Point, who told searchers he distinctly heard an airplane pass over the lighthouse Monday at 4 a. m. The searchers assumed this was the missing ship, although it was not seen, due to darkness. Thomas Point is at a point where South River flows into the bay, about 35 miles from Annapolis, the destination of the missing officers.

By 10:25 o'clock this morning the waters of Chesapeake Bay and the shore on either side for a distance of 25 miles were being combed by a searching force comprised of 25 airplanes, both land and water, and two Army dirigibles.

Army and Navy authorities collaborated in the search for the missing naval pilots. The territory was blocked out, and each searching ship given a definite area to cover.

Arrest 7 In Mine Riot

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 28.—Seven arrests were made today following a demonstration at the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company's Dorothy mine at Glen Robbins last night, when a crowd of 200 stoned a house in which 11 guards were quartered preparatory to reopening the mine.

350,000 MORE MINERS THREATEN STRIKE

By KENNETH CLARK.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A new strike of 350,000 union miners in 12 states is threatened on April 1, United Mine Workers officials reported today to the special Senate Coal Committee.

After nearly a week's investigation in Pennsylvania fields, the committee, headed by Senator Gooding (Rep.), of Idaho, returned to Washington today to prepare a report for the Interstate Commerce Committee.

States which would be affected by the threatened walk-out include: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Wyoming, Washington, Montana, Texas, Ohio and Northern West Virginia. In these sections some union operations have been working under temporary wage agreements. All efforts thus far to negotiate a settlement have failed, union officials declared.

At the present time about 128,000 men are on strike.

The committee collected about 200 pages of testimony on its trip. Instead of a written report, the subcommittee will relate orally to the full committee its experiences in the mine camps. A meeting was called for Thursday. The general investigation by the full committee probably will get under way next week.

REMEDY NEEDED

In the committee's opinion, some legislative remedy must be found to relieve the present strike conditions or unrest will spread to other industries, including the railroads, and affect thousands of persons. No program has been mapped out, but a bill calling for federal supervision of the coal industry will be presented by one or two of the committee members. Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana, already has introduced a bill to nationalize the mines.

The greatest ill of the industry, the committee believes, is overproduction and an oversupply of miners.

The committee was strong in its denunciation of the alleged misuse of injunctions in labor disputes. Senator Gooding characterized as "outrageous" the injunction which forbids strikers to congregate in the little church yard at Rossiter, Pa., to sing hymns. The Senate Judiciary Committee is now holding hearings on the Shipstead bill to curb the injunctive power of the federal courts.

Campbell Store Not Sold

The recent sale of the building in Fifth avenue, occupied by the Campbell department store, was misinterpreted by some readers to mean that the Campbell store itself had been sold. This is not the case, the building only having been sold.

It was transferred by the Schenley estate to New York men, but the Campbells have a long lease on the property, so that sale of the building will in no way affect the store. P. D. Campbell made the following statement today:

"The Campbell concern is now as it has been for 57 years under the direct control and ownership of the Campbell family. Four sons of the founder, Robert S. Campbell, Frank Campbell, Charles Campbell and P. D. Campbell, are actively managing the business and will continue to do so.

"The Campbell store enjoys a long and favorable lease on the property, which has just recently undergone improvements and alterations of an extensive character at an outlay of many thousands of dollars.

"The business is now, and will continue to be conducted on the same high standards as heretofore, as this concern has always enjoyed a high rating with the wholesale and manufacturing trade in the East and with a very large following of customers in Pittsburgh and throughout Western Pennsylvania.

"The year 1927 showed a decided increase in volume and profit over the preceding year, and 1928 continues to show marked improvement."

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore MEHERIN

Meet Jerry, Snappy And Vivacious, In "Jerry"

CHAPTER 1

VOICES in the hall. A man and her mother. The young girl closed her book, listening with bright, avid intentness. The voice of the man soft—yet bold.

The woman's rich—a music that played on the heart. You didn't have to hear the words. You knew the woman smiled—a red, warming smile. And that the man bent down, flushing, and kissed Marza's lips. The joyous intake of breath, the smothered laugh. Then the two of them entering. The portieres opening with the flash, the grace, the color that was Marza King.

She came in swiftly with that bright, arrogant gladness that kept the years at a distance; that made one speak and think of Marza as a girl immortal by right of beauty, by right of fiery joy and daring.

"Why," she said, looking in surprise at the girl, Jerry, "aren't you going to the party?"

Jerry's dark, flower-like eyes remained fixed on her mother in profound admiration. She said softly, almost in awe: "I don't know. Lord, you look thrilling! More so than usual. It must be wonderful to be Marza."

Sauntering to the man, she snatched the cigaret he had just lighted and with kid impudence put it between her lips. "Thanks; I'm all out of them."

He surveyed her in puzzled amusement. She gave him a wide grin and went slumping back to her deep chair, puffed the cigaret, reopened her book.

She looked so brazenly young with her long, thin legs crossed and dangling—this black-haired, flashing-eyed Jerry, who was Marza's daughter. And who had to the point of danger, to the point of pain, Marza's blazing love of life, love of joy, love of love.

She was poignantly aware of each word, each gesture, yet she appeared lost in her book. And gave only a vague nod to Marza's farewell.

But the moment the door closed she sped across the room and stared into the street. It was lonely now. Her heart always thumped in the quiet. Marza was one of those bright-hued persons who leave a silence and a dimness when they depart. Presently she appeared at the curb. This was a familiar picture—Marza regal in black furs, orchids flowering on her shoulder, being helped to a limousine by some gallant and charming man who was in love with her. Men usually were.

There were pictures and pictures like this in the girl's mind. Provocative images that awakened hot, stealthy thoughts. Marza down there stepping into the machine, flinging her head up with that soft, brilliant challenge of the

OPERATORS LASHED FOR MINE TYRANNY

By MAX HENRICI, Staff Correspondent.

ROSSITER, Pa., Feb. 28.—That the injunction issued by Judge J. N. Langham, restraining the strikers of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation from congregating in the yard of the Magyar Presbyterian Church and singing hymns, from picketing and from advertising in newspapers that they were on strike, was "outrageous," an unjustified interference with the right of free pseech and assembly, and a breeder of anarchy, was the opinion expressed tonight by the Senate committee investigating the strike, after spending the day probing into the injunction from many angles.

In the old church this afternoon, to the accompaniment of a wheezy melodeon, the four senators heard a congregation of 200 striking miners, their wives and children sing hymns.

Weird Services.

Never before were such strange services held. The hymns were those that the miners had been forbidden to sing in the church yard. The senators asked to hear them, that they might determine if it was true, as charged by the coal company, that the hymns were of a provocative nature and calculated to intimidate the strikebreakers at work on the tipple 1,500 feet away.

It was a typical weather-beaten country church standing on a hill, and was jammed to its capacity with strikers, armed mine guards, officers of the coal company, officers of the United Mine Workers and newspapermen. With the photographers' flashlights popping now and then, the strikers, led by their militant pastor, the Rev. A. J. Phillips, sang "The Victory May Depend on You," "Sound the Battle Cry," "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "Nearer My God to Thee" and "We're on the Winning Side With Jesus."

The singers were Americans, Britishers, Italians, Poles, Magyars and Slovaks. All sang with fervor. They felt they were laying their case, through the hymns, before the American people. It was impressive. A veteran Chicago newspaper man, who had been rather bored with the proceedings up to then, declared it one of the most dramatic scenes he had ever witnessed. The strikers sang lustily. Their voices swelled as the choruses were reached until the rafters fairly rang.

The pale winter sunlight filtered through the stained glass windows in "a dim religious light." On the walls were framed "golden texts," an "honor roll" for attendance. The precentor beat time with his baton. A miner's wife played the organ. Swarthy Italians and blond Slavs mingled their tenors and basses with the sopranos of the women. "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus" brought Senator Robert F. Wagner to his feet, and all followed his example.

But it was when they sang "We're on the Winning Side" that their fervor reached its climax. In the hymnal the song is "I'm on the Winning Side." The substitution of "We're" for "I'm" was the only change. Pastor Phillips told the senators, that the strikers had made in the text as printed in the hymnals. He denied that the hymns had been parodied, as Judge Langham had said.

With what appeared to be almost fanatical enthusiasm they sang:

On the winning side,
We're on the winning side,
We're on the winning side with Jesus.
Though hot may be the fray,
Our souls can boldly say,
We're on the winning side with Jesus.

Thinly veiled sneers at Pastor Phillips were uttered by the operators' representatives at hearings held by the senators during the day, but Chairman Gooding declared last night that he believed the pastor to be "a Christian gentleman."

Hear Strikers' Plaint.

After the song service the senators listened to story after story of strikers who told of being dragged from their homes, attacked on the public highways, blackjacked and otherwise mistreated by the coal company's police.

Joseph Ricupero, a former deputy sheriff, said that one night a number of strikebreakers and one striker were arrested for various offenses and placed in the village guardhouse. F. D. Welsh, the mine superintendent, came along, according to Ricupero, and ordered the release of the strikebreakers, but let the union men stay in confinement.

Welsh was present and was asked by the senators what he had to say about it. He said he had no recollection of the matter.

Some of the women in the audience began to "boo" him, others took it up, and it looked as if there might be disorder.

The deputy sergeant at arms accompanying the senators called for quiet, and Senator Gooding said: "We won't permit a demonstration."

James Mark, president of District No. 2 of the United Mine Workers, said the strikers had numerous affidavits concerning the brutalities of the company's police.

"The treatment to which our men have been subjected," he declared, "has been cruel and shameful."

"The committee agrees with you," said Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Chairman Gooding asked the congregation to accompany the senators to the churchyard.

"But there must be no singing there," he said, "because we do not want you to violate the injunction."

"But we will be violating the injunction if we do no more than congregate there," said Mark.

"Well, I think we will go there anyway," said Gooding. And they did.

Before going to the church the senators quizzed A. J. Musser, vice president and general manager of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation, at the company's office.

"What objection is there to the strikers' singing?" he was asked.

"The services are held," said Musser, "at times when our men are going to work and returning from the mine. And when they hear this hostile crowd it has a bad effect."

"The injunction," said Senator Wagner, "prohibits picketing of any sort; it prohibits peaceful persuasion and all other methods to keep the men from going to work. The strikers are restrained from setting forth their side in the newspapers. Do you regard that as justified? As an American citizen wouldn't that be repugnant to your idea of liberty, your idea of free speech?"

"Personally, Senator," answered Musser, "I would say 'yes.' But there have been no contempt proceedings."

"That means," said Senator Wagner, "that they have slavishly obeyed. I believe in obedience to injunction, but I think this one is in absolute interference with the right of free speech. I never before saw an injunction so drastic, so comprehensive."

"It breaks down respect for the courts," said Senator Wheeler. "When you do that you are breeding anarchy."

And Senator Gooding added: "There is not much left for the men when you stop them from singing, from picketing and from advertising."

Outrage, Says Wheeler.

The coal company attorney who prepared the injunction, James W. Mack, was later brought before the committee.

"Is it customary in Pennsylvania," asked Senator Wheeler, "to grant so drastic an injunction without a preliminary?"

"It is," answered Mack.

"In my opinion," said Wheeler, "it is very outrageous. Do you think your court is justified?"

"Yes, I think it is."

"I have no doubt you think it is. I think it was an outrage."

"I thought it was necessary to protect our people."

"Do you not think it extraordinary," asked Senator Wagner, "that so drastic an injunction should stand for six months without a hearing? I am criticizing the judge of this court."

"I think" said Mack, "the judge of this court should not be criticized for any action in his court."

"Don't you think", asked Senator Gooding, "a man has a right to know the conditions at the place where he is going to work?"

"They know", said Mack.

"Who told them?"

"The persons who asked them to come."

"What a ridiculous situation!" interjected Senator Wheeler. "I am amazed that a man who has practiced law for 20 years, as you say you have, would have the temerity to stand up before the Senate committee and tell them things like this. Such drastic procedure as yours only tends to break the workingmen's faith in law and breeds anarchy."

"I'm sorry you feel that way", answered Mack.

"Suppose", said Senator Wagner, "I put an advertisement in the papers, saying, "Workers, do not accept employment in such and such a company. They have lowered our wage scale, and we are engaged in a fight for more money and better conditions'. Do you think, if I put that kind of advertisement in the newspapers, I would be breaking any law or interfering with your employes?"

"Well", said Mack, "it prevents men from getting work and scares them."

"Then", asked Senator Gooding, "you deny the men the right to know of these conditions?"

"As a matter of news they do know it."

"Every American citizen", declared Gooding—and his voice rang with indignation—"has a right to tell of these conditions. How could these strikers intimidate your men by singing hymns 1,500 feet away?"

"At the hearing in Washington we will bring men who left our employ and told us why they left."

"Mr. Mack", said Senator Gooding, "your injuction is outrageous. We sat and listened to their songs this afternoon and found nothing wrong with them."

"Did they sing the same songs?"

"We think they did, and believe their pastor to be a Christian gentleman. There's no doubt of their right to do what they did, and to sing their hymns early in the morning or at any other time of day."

"I don't deny their right to conduct services which would not intimidate."

"Well", said Senator Gooding, dismissing Mack, "that is all we care to hear from you."

OPERATORS DEFEND MINE INJUNCTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The action of Federal Judge Schoonmaker, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in issuing an injunction against the United Mine Workers of America in the fight between the operators and the union in the Pennsylvania bituminous coal fields, was defended today before a Senate judiciary sub-committee by James E. Matthews of Cleveland, attorney for the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company in the court battles.

During hearings on the Shipstead bill to restrict injunctions, Matthews contended that Judge Schoonmaker had not gone to the legal limit in the injunction. He read excerpts from numerous affidavits charging sabotage to union miners.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, interrupted to say that there was no question as to the right of Judge Schoonmaker to issue an injunction against violence.

Referring to the Jacksonville wage agreement, Matthews said his company had observed that pact until its expiration.

"FUELLESS MOTOR"

invention has stirred up and the doubts expressed by scientific men in all parts of the country, Hendershot today stood by his original assertion that his motor is practical and will do its work.

FORD TO INVESTIGATE

Hochstetter today was in communication with the private secretary of Henry Ford and many of the leading scientists and engineers of the country. He asked them to investigate thoroughly the Hendershot machine and to look for concealed mechanism which could be utilized in supplying power for its operation. Officers at the Ford plant, replying by long distance telephone, according to Hochstetter, promised to make the investigation.

Dr. S. W. Stratton, director of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, today wired from Cambridge, Mass.:

"Have never heard of Hendershot motor. Have no statement regarding it. When interviewed concerning vague statement which appeared recently in newspaper as to a motor, my answer was that I knew nothing whatever about it."

Dr. Edward R. Weidlein, director of the Mellon Institute; L. P. Seig, dean of the college and the graduate school of the University of Pittsburgh; engineers from the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and the General Electric Company, as well as scientists and engineers connected with the United States government would be invited to go with him to New York and examine Hendershot's machine, Hochstetter said. He said he would demand an investigation at once in order that the scientific world should no longer be kept in the dark.

WOULD BE PROTECTED

"If the inventor has anything new he may be assured that the United States government will look well after his interests and he should have nothing to conceal," declared Hochstetter.

Hochstetter explained he had known Hendershot for three years and had examined contrivances which had been submitted to J. C. Trees, who had been asked to finance their development. This was early in 1925, Hochstetter said:

BALKED AT TESTS, HE SAYS

"Hendershot claimed to have an invention for which patents were pending. He said he had worked out a model whereby he could get light and power from the atmosphere, static electricity or the magnetic source of the earth. He swore to this in a contract with Mr. Trees. In the patent application he claims he used no chemicals, no batteries or anything except the atmosphere. Everyone became enthusiastic about the motor without any investigation, just as Lindbergh and others have expressed their interest now.

"No matter what scientist Mr. Trees suggested, Hendershot turned him down. Finally he agreed to go to Cornell University and submit to an examination of the invention in the department of physics at the expense of Mr. Trees. After spending considerable time at Cornell the authorities could get nowhere with Hendershot and he continued to hide his secret. On my arrival in Pittsburgh and associating with Mr. Trees, the matter was brought to my attention. It took Mr. Trees approximately three months to persuade Hendershot to submit his invention to examination in our laboratory.

KEPT MODEL SECRET

"It required three months to get Hendershot down to work explaining his so-called invention. The original model was turned over to me and locked in a safe. In the meantime Hendershot built a new model in our laboratory and continued to keep it secret, but all the time he declared to Mr. Trees and my associates that he had nothing to conceal from us.

"When the new model was completed there was no sign of developing light or power. At night when everybody went home Hendershot would get into the laboratory and insert a pencil battery into a brass tube which was fastened to the box and around the outside of the tube he wound wire which he called a 'special antenna.' After this battery was inserted without our knowledge light and power became evident next morning. We continued to give him the benefit of the doubt, though in my opinion Hendershot's statements of obtaining current or electric power from the induction of the earth or static electricity were practically impossible.

DISCOVERED TRICK

"A third model was built on a larger scale and then it was that we discovered that the whole invention was nothing but a trick. This model displayed about 80 volts, including the proportionate amperage. It was connected with a fan motor and ran it nicely. On moving the model about on a table it was noticed that the power went off. This aroused our suspicion, and on investigation we found that the so-called terrestial and atmospheric electricity in the Hendershot model was taken from the power line of the building through a cleverly concealed wiring under the wall moulding underneath the floor, through the leg of a table into a drawer, where two wires terminated in two nails and these formed the contact through two thumb tacks in the bottom of the model.

"Having all this experience and seeing the newspaper reports of the 'fuelless motor.' I am prompted to make this statement in the interest of science and invention. I am disinterested and am no party to commercialism in this case. After having experience with this junk, which is practically the same thing he claims for his latest motor, I should feel guilty if I did not tell the public of these exposures."

among striking coal miners aroused Senator Gooding.

"We must get the I. W. W. by the throat and choke it to death," he declared. "If we don't the gutters of our streets will run knee deep with blood. The industrial leaders of the country should fight this menace."

Philip Murray, vice president of the mine workers, told the committee: "The Communists believe they can dominate the American labor movement if they can get control of the United Mine Workers, the largest single union in the country."

"The hope of our miners reposes in the American flag," he added. "The committee's investigation has given the striking miners renewed hope in their government."

Murray, John L. Lewis, president, and other miners' officials came here for the investigation. They will present their side first. Pennsylvania operators will be called next and the committee then will turn its investigation to West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio conditions.

Her mooring was effected after maneuvering of about a half an hour without undue trouble. Three hundred soldiers aided in the work of anchoring the ship.

The work of Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and officers and men of the crew in handling the ship was accorded high praise from all sides.

Naval officials hailed the dirigible's feat as a practical demonstration of the feasibility of using dirigibles for long distance flights.

The portable mooring mast to which the ship was anchored was constructed in the United States under the direction of Commander Rosendahl and was shipped to the Canal Zone about two weeks ago.

not the concrete used in the boulevard wall and bridge, which Malone charges are in poor condition.

"The results were too good for the concrete mix used," said the report, which blames the bureau of bridges and structures, of which John D. Stevenson is the head.

The removal of all forms from the bridge in an effort to determine whether the defects are only of a surface nature or extend completely through the work is proposed.

Chief Engineer Charles W. Reppert, chief engineer of the Department of Public Works, submitted a report to Council today expressing the opinion that the restoration of the wall and approaches to the bridge is practicable.

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 28.—Olaf Swanson, 65, employe of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, was killed today when struck by a motor truck driven by Robert Williams, who was arrested.

27 SHIPS IN SEARCH

phibian plane have been missing since 2 a. m. Monday. They disappeared while on a simple two-hour flight from Hampton Roads to Annapolis.

THREE ON PLANE

The missing officers are: Commander T. S. Ellyson, one of the most expert pilots in the Navy; Lieut. Com. Hugo Schmidt, of Brooklyn, and born in Pittsburgh, and Lieut. Roger Ransehousen, of Springfield, Mass. Ellyson, the first man to qualify as a naval air pilot, and two trained under the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtiss, was a native of Richmond.

They left Hampton Roads at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in an amphibian plane. They should have reached Annapolis about 4 a. m., but when noon came and they had not arrived, some alarm was felt and scouting planes were sent out to comb the waters of the Chesapeake for trace of them. It was believed they might have experienced motor trouble and landed in the water. But the searching planes droned all afternoon and into the night without getting a trace of them.

The search was extended this morning on the theory that in the darkness they may have gone off their course, which lies principally over water between Hampton Roads and Annapolis, and crashed on land in the wooded areas on either side of the bay. Naval authorities came reluctantly to the conclusion all must have been killed or seriously injured else they would have been able to report before this.

The waters of the Chesapeake were quiet all of yesterday, at least there was no roughness sufficient to have sunk the amphibian craft, in the opinion of fliers.

Commander Ellyson left Norfolk to go to the bedside of his 12-year-old daughter, Mildred, who is critically ill in the Naval Hospital at Annapolis. Mrs. Ellyson was not informed until this morning that her husband was missing. She knew he was due to leave Hampton Roads yesterday morning and was considerably concerned over his failure to arrive yesterday.

FORMER PITTSBURGHER

Lieut. Commander Hugo Schmidt who is missing in a Naval plane off the Atlantic coast, is a former Pittsburgher, having lived in Riverview avenue, North Side.

The missing naval officer was born on the North Side and graduated from Allegheny High School, leaving Pittsburgh 16 years ago, according to Julius C. Schmidt, a brother, of Shadeland avenue. He left the city when given an appointment to Annapolis by Congressman Stephen G. Porter. He was aged 17 when he entered the academy. Eight months ago he was transferred from San Diego, Cal., to Hampton Roads where he has been superintendent of construction of the aircraft carrier, Lexington. He has a wife and a child living in Brooklyn.

TEAR BOMB TOSSED INTO MINE CHURCH

HOW DO YOU DO?

Senator Frank R. Gooding, chairman of the Senatorial Strike Investigation Committee, was greeted by the Rev. A. J. Phillips, pastor of the Magyar Reformed Presbyterian Church at Rossiter yesterday afternoon. "Our people are overwhelmed with your coming," the coal digging pastor told the Senator.

SINGING UNLAWFUL

Members of the congregation have been enjoined from congregating on the church property and singing hymns. The little dingy church can be seen in the background on the side of the hill overlooking the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation tipple.

SINGING FOR SENATORS

The Rev. Phillips gathered his congregation together to sing for the committee, seated in the choir loft at the right. Lusty voices rang out with such hymns as "We're On the Winning Side," "Nearer My God to Thee" and others. The senators joined in the singing at times to tune of a wheezy little organ played by one of the miners' wives.

SHE'S QUEEN OF PROM

DOROTHY SLICKER

When the Chicago Normal School of Physical Education holds its annual junior prom Friday, March 9, Dorothy Slicker, of North Wade avenue, Washington, Pa., will preside as "queen." She is a graduate of East Washington High School.

TEAR BOMB TOSSED IN CHURCH

ROSSITER, Pa., Feb. 28.—Tear gas bombs were thrown into a church; children on their way home from Bible class were run off the public highway and men and women were beaten unmercifully by deputy sheriffs in the employ of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Corporation here, members of the Senatorial Strike Investigation Committee were told yesterday upon their visit to the dingy little church on the hill where members of the congregation have been enjoined from singing hymns.

"These company officers run the town," declared the Rev. A. J. Phillips, pastor of the Magyar Presbyterian Church, center of the strife between union forces and company officials. "Why, the superintendent of the mine tells the police whether to release a man who has been arrested or to take him to jail," the minister declared.

COAL MINER-PASTOR

Phillips is a coal miner, he explained to the committee, but he is also a duly appointed minister.

"Shortly after we went out on strike in Rossiter," Phillips related to the senators, "I met F. D. Welsh, superintendent of the Clearfield Bituminous Company and he told me I couldn't go to the church anymore that he was going to stop me. I consulted an attorney and he told me to pay no attention to Welsh.

"I had started a library in the basement of the church and between 40 and 50 children of all ages

Standing behind Judge Langham is State Senator Lee S. North. The others are United States Senators W. B. Pine, Frank R. Gooding and Robert F. Wagner.

4,000 AT OPENING SHOW

A new palace of entertainment, the new Stanley Theater at Penn avenue and Seventh street, was formally dedicated and opened to the public last night, and more than 4,000 voiced vociferous approval of the great feature program and the magnificent playhouse.

The theater and the Clark office building adjoining represent an expenditure of $10,000,000 by the Stanley Company of America, and speakers at last night's ceremony designated them as fitting monuments in a great industrial city where the projection of motion pictures for public entertainment had its genesis. Mayor Charles H. Kline praised the genius and enterprise of Harry Davis, dean of Pittsburgh theatrical exploiters, who established the world's first movie house in Smithfield street more than 20 years ago. That house seated less than 100 persons. The new Stanley comfortably cares for 4,000 amid surroundings that are a delight to the eye in their revelation of architectural beauty and harmonious embellishment.

HIGH OFFICIALS HERE

After paying tribute to Pittsburgh, th Stanley Company, and to Indiana, Pa., which gave to the city both the Mayor and James B. Clark, theater magnate, for whom the Clark building is named, the Mayor introduced Irving D. Rossheim, president of the Stanley Company, who gave a brief history of the concern which operates 257 theaters in America, and said that the company really was born of Pittsburgh after Harry Davis had formed a partnership with the late Jules Mastbaum in Philadelphia. Mr. Mastbaum for many years was president of the Stanley Company of America.

Edward Martin, state auditor general, spoke for Gov. John S. Fisher, who was unable to be present. His remarks dealt with the beneficent influence of the film industry, fourth largest in the world, in bringing pleasure and education to millions of persons who never could have had such advantages except through the vision and philanthropic sacrifice of the pioneers in the motion picture business.

Opening with "The Star-Spangled Banner," sung by Virginia Futrelle, the dedicatory addresses were broadcast over station WCAE. The feature program included Anatole Friedland's Revue, a musical picture of "The Spirit of Pittsburgh," sung by a male chorus in a setting of steel mills and furnace glare, and the film play, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." The fine symphony orchestra, under the baton of Phil Spitalny, guest conductor, was warmly applauded in its rendition of Tchaikowsky's "Capriccio Italienne." David Broudy, well known as conductor of the Grand symphony orchestra, was assisting director of musical program.

INSPECT PLAYHOUSE

For an hour before the program began the vast crowd had an opportunity to inspect the magnificent new playhouse. Done in warm tones of subdued red, gold and ivory, the decorative scheme is at once restful and artistically satisfying. The proscenium arch and stage appointments are lavish in color harmony and massive in proportion. The lighting effect throughout the house, from the great central dome to the smallest wall illumination, is the dream of an artist. The balcony approach is on an easy plane and spectators are afforded the same clear view of the stage as is given in the orchestra circle. The orchestra pit and great Wurlitzer organ elevate to the level of the stage, or sink beneath it as the program requires.

The theater is regarded as nearly fireproof as it can be made, with special safeguards in the projection room to prevent any flame reaching the audience in case of an explosion of film.

Yesterday afternoon Mayor Kline, accompanied by officials of the Stanley Company, unveiled a tablet in the lobby of the theater commemorating the opening event. Included in the party were President Rossheim, Vice President Abe Sablosky, Chairman of Board John J. McGuirk, of the Stanley Company of America, and Mayor J. C. Williams, of Erie.

DRY OFFICERS SEIZE TAXI

A Yellow taxicab was seized and its driver, Felix R. Merkle of Taylor avenue, and a passenger, James H. Talley, a Negro, of Freedom, were arrested today when, prohibition agents say, Talley got into the machine in Rose street with two one-gallon cans of moonshine. The two were released under $1,000 bond each for a hearing before the commisioner, and arrangements were made to have the cab turned back to the company under bond.

Last night prohibition agents raided the saloon of Walter Bandl, 37, at 608 East Ohio street, arresting Bandl and James White, 45, a bartender. Agents say they found 28 gallons of moonshine and three gallons of alcohol.

JAILED AS RUM SPENDTHRIFT

After social workers had testified that James McCloskey, 42, of 905 Lang avenue, had spent in six months $3,000 on liquor to the neglect of his three children, Magistrate A. D. Brandon sentenced McCloskey, a war veteran, to 30 days in the workhouse. His wife died six months ago after the birth of a child.

STOLE TO KEEP WARM; GETS 18-MONTH TERM

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 28.—A. G. Knowlton, who, police say, admitted to stealing $12 from his employer's cash register to pay his gas bill to insure continuance of supply during a cold spell, was sentenced to 18 months in the Allegheny county workhouse by Judge O. C. Kent.

In the presence of officers of the Stanley Company of America, Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, unveiled a tablet officially dedicating the new Stanley Theater, Seventh and Penn, "to the people of Pittsburgh," yesterday. Those attending the unveiling included: John J. McGuirk, chairman of the board of directors of the Stanley Company of America, and a former Pittsburgh, Joseph C. Williams, mayor of Erie, Pa.; Irving D. Rossheim, president of the Stanley Company; Mayor Charles H. Kline; Abe Sablosky, vice president of the Stanley Company.

ROBBERS HIT HOMESTEAD

Thieves who centered their activities in East Eighth avenue, Homestead, early today stole $200 worth of gold from the office of Dr. J. M. Morgan, a dentist, and were frightened away when they attemtped to jimmy their way into the dental office of Dr. J. Barken. Early yesterday gold valued at $200 was taken from the office of Dr. G A Clark, another dentist. Groceries were stolen also from the P. H. Butler store.

No New Bonnets For Easter for Firemen Now

The Springdale volunteer firemen will have to wait for the new helmets they've been saving for. Last night a thief broke into the fire house, pried open the safe and took all the money—$37. One of the firemen who happened down that way this afternoon discovered the theft, and a report was made to county detectives.

'BABY BANDITS' GET JAIL TERMS

Three youths who raised quite a racket to close January, with a burst of automobile thefts, stick-ups and purse snatching, found in Criminal Court that it doesn't pay. According to their admissions, they took four automobiles from downtown streets January 30 and 31, with no profit. They found $5 in a cash register they took from Thomas Walley, merchant, of 3887 Bigelow boulevard, January 31. There was $5.50 in the purse of Mrs. Hattie Dillon, 5204 Liberty avenue, and $4 in the purse of Mrs. C. A. Golden, both snatched on the street January 31. The youths are Ignatius Krakoski, 20, of 3370 Ridgway street, sent to the penitentiary by Judge Joseph N. Swearingen for three to six years; Alex Kastulin, 17, of Paulona way, committed to Morganza, and James Masonoski, 19, of 329 Herron avenue, committed to Huntingdon.

drag one of those priceless gentlemen into the ring with a Negro even smaller than Godfrey, unless it were certain that he had been paid to "lie down," that he couldn't fight, or that disease had rendered him powerless.

IT MAY be repeated that a small-sized gorilla could take Uzcudun, Godfrey, Dempsey and Tunney at their best, all four together, and pick them to pieces at leisure.

POPE PIUS in a ceremony honoring the memory of the venerable Elisabetta Mora, refers to the immodesty in dress of some modern women as "insults to the eyes of God and cause for temptation or disgust in the eyes of the world."

That is no exaggeration. It took women a million years to learn to dress modestly. They overdid it with their veils, hoop skirts, bustles, etc. Now they are rapidly going the other way. A strange, daring sex.

THE late Albert Brisbane, more than eighty years ago, suggested that large apartment houses with central heating plants and water automatically distributed should be built as an improvement on "the isolated household." Some, old-fashioned, that knew little, did not mind seeing their wives carry water from the pump, said, "Americans will never live herded together."

NOW Dr. Albert E. Douglass of the University of Arizona, exploring the Pueblo Bonito in New Mexico, finds an early American house about a thousand years old, that housed 2,000 early Americans.

Dr. Douglass can tell by rings in trees that have grown up since its abandonment, how old the apartment house is.

MRS. EVA DUGAN, aged 50, convicted of killing a man in Arizona, must be sentenced to hang.

Arizona has never hanged a woman. Will that state officially kill its first woman in 1928? A woman of 50 can be disposed of with safety to the public, without submitting the state to the degradation of choking an old woman to death. It should be difficult to find, in Arizona, any man willing to undertake that job.

MISS FANNIE MAY DAVIS, one of many interesting religious workers that make California better and brighter, dies, leaving to her relatives "the priceless memory of companionship with me," and leaving $15,000,000 to a gentleman friend, Isaac J. Isaacson. Her will says that giving the money to Mr. Isaacson is "not an act of human mind but a direct order from Providence." A wise judge will investigate that statement.

LIFE SAVED AS GUN JAMS

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 28.—When Frederick Raupers, Jr., proprietor of a drug store, refused to put up his hands as the muzzle of a revolver was pressed against him, the bandit pulled the trigger three times, but the pistol would not discharge.

Fifteen minutes later Stanley Jenkist, 32, was captured behind a woodpile in the basement of a barber shop in the building. Raupers had closed the store for the night and was walking home with two companions when Jenkist, police say, stepped out of an alley and attempted the holdup. At the refusal to throw up his hands, the bandit became frightened and fled.

CONVICT JENNERS YOUTH IN KILLING AT DANCE

SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 28.—Joseph Prokopchow, 19, of Jenners, charged with the murder of Joseph Wonorsky following a dance last October, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter.

"BRAVE RESCUER" RESCUED AS HE SHOWS HIS PROWESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A patrolman who received $100 reward after reporting that he had rescued a drowning man in New York Harbor on January 2, last, nearly drowned himself today when he was asked to prove his story and his swimming ability in a tank.

The honor board of the police department, investigating the report of two customs men who said they had rescued the man whom Patrolman Vito C. Serraro had claimed to have pulled from the water, put the patrolman in the swimming tank at the police academy.

The police swimming instructors said Serraro floundered about the tank until a life preserver was thrown to him and he was dragged out.

The honor board reserved its decision on the patrolman's story of heroism.

Steer Mistakes N. Side Streets For Plains

Taxpayers of the North Side were unexpectedly entertained for three hours early today by a steer race. The steer lost.

Larry, a sizeable steer, born and reared in the plains of Texas, took French leave as he was being escorted into the Henry Lohrey slaughter house in Geyer avenue. From 6 to 9 o'clock he blazed a trail that was followed by police, Lohrey employes and an interested audience.

Larry was shot dead by Lieut. Harry E. Moore after he (Larry) had shown an inclination to explore the thoroughfares of Dutchtown. But before he gave up he had plunged into the Allegheny River three times and out three times.

For 20 hours in freezing weather AMOCO products kept the pumper going!

The National Board of Fire Underwriters tested the Brockway Fire Engine of the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department on a bitterly cold day this winter.

Twelve hours is the usual duration of the test, but at Gaithersburg, Md., the motor was started at 4 A. M. and ran until midnight—20 hours of continuous running in weather so cold that the water froze as it fell! And AMOCO-GAS kept the motor running.

The Brockway distributor in Washington gives full credit to AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil. Here's what he wrote us:

> "The continuous performance under load and the high power indicated by the result of the test clearly demonstrate the reliability and power producing qualities of AMOCO GAS. The Brockway apparatus exceeded the capacity test requirements at a motor speed of only 1708 revolutions per minute. The gasoline consumption was but 7 gallons per hour, although it had been expected from experience in other tests that consumption would be considerably higher."

TEAR BOMBS TOSSED INTO CHURCH, PROBERS TOLD

came here every day to read and borrow books. Pretty soon some of the older people began to come in to spend a few hours in the afternoon and before long we had quite an afternoon social gathering. We would sing songs, read and otherwise pass away an enjoyable hour or two.

"Along about last September some of our people wanted to sing outdoors and so we started in to hold services in the morning and again in the evening. A few days later one of the state police stopped me and told me our people would have to quit singing.

"Why?" I asked him.

"'Because you are intimidating the workmen at the Clearfield Company., he told me.

"I told him I thought we had a right to sing as long as we were on our own property. To this he agreed, but told me to keep our people off the state road, or he would have to break up our meetings.

"We continued our singing and one night I advertised a street meeting downtown instead of in the church because our building is not large enough to hold more than two or three hundred people. I had about 1,000 people assembled for song service when along comes a state policeman who told me he wanted to see me. I was just about to start the singing, so I told them to go ahead with 'Where He Leads Me I Will Follow' and then turned to the officer. He told me I would have to stop the singing and I asked him why. 'Because it is intimidation,' he replied.

"'If hymns intimidate anyone they had better prepare for Judgement Day,' I told him.

"'Why don't you hold your service in the church?' he asked.

"'Where would I find a church in Rossiter big enough?' I asked in turn.

"'Well, keep off the state road, then! he told me and walked away.

"After this, however, we kept to our own property, but a few days later, I met Sheriff Malcolm and he had the injunction. I paid no attention to it at first, but they arrested me for contempt of court and after that we held our services inside.

"That sounds as though it might have happened in Russia," declared Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

"Another thing the coal company did was to post a 'no trespassing' sign on a post they set up in a public thoroughfare," Phillips continued. "Our attorney told us they could not close this street even though it might have belonged to them at one time, because it had been used as public thoroughfare for so many years. Our people wanted to continue using the street, but the coal and iron police always were on hand to bar them with revolvers and blackjacks.

Phillips then related how members of his congregation had been mistreated while going to and from the church.

"On January 11," he continued, "some of our people were going down the state road after services here and they were driven off the road by eight or nine coal and iron police riding horses and automobiles. If they hadn't gotten off the road, they probably would have been run down.

"Another time, I came into the church in the morning and my eyes were filled with something that made them smart terribly. I came on in through the basement to a coal cellar at the rear and found an outside door had been broken open. Someone had thrown a tear gas bomb into the church, thinking we couldn't hold services that morning. We held them anyway and sang with tears streaming from our eyes.

"Another time a group of our children were going home and a few minutes after they left, they came running back crying. I asked them what was the matter and they told me that coal and iron police had cursed them and chased them back."

A new, safe, scientific way to treat
Indigestion
Constipation
—and other bodily ailments

Use Preparations Composed of the Identical Elements which Nature Herself Supplies to Keep Us Healthy and Vigorous

NATURE intended us to be healthy. And when our liver and our digestive organs are functioning normally, our bodies are usually supplied with the elements necessary to keep us healthy. But today we eat unnatural foods—live unnatural lives. So, frequently our liver and digestive organs stop supplying the elements needed to keep us in a healthy, normal condition. The result is we become sickly, thin, run-down, nervous, irritable, suffer from poor digestion, biliousness, headaches, constipation, skin blemishes and other distressing ailments.

When this happens most people start dosing themselves with strong drugs. If they feel run down they buy a tonic. If indigestion seems to be the cause, they use a digestant. If constipated or bilious they buy a laxative. They don't stop to think that these treat only the first symptoms of their trouble, and not the real cause.

The Liver the Most Important Gland

The largest and most important gland in the human body is the liver—where a great many of our troubles start. Unless the liver yields a normal flow of liquid bile, the pancreas also fails to supply its important digestive fluids. What are the results? The foods we eat remain in the intestines undigested; putrefaction follows; then come the hordes of disease-breeding germs—which cause so many troubles of more or less serious character.

The Safe, Sane Method of Treatment

After four years of tireless experimentation, a long established house of pharmaceutical chemists—which specializes in medicinal products that are used and prescribed by physicians—perfected a preparation which contains in highly concentrated, powerful but harmless form, exactly the same elements which Nature herself provides to keep the liver and all the digestive organs in healthy, active condition. This new preparation, called Zilatone, activates the sluggish, congested organs so that they are able to supply a proper flow of digestive fluids in the stomach and intestines.

A Prompt Digestive and Laxative

Zilatone is not only a prompt, effective digestant. It is a prompt, thorough cleansing laxative. It is a scientific system cleanser—an activator and a regulator of stomach, liver, gall bladder, pancreas and intestines—throughout. It is a health builder and a health keeper.

Ask Your Druggist

Zilatone is on sale in most every drug store where this paper is read. If your druggist is "short"—he can obtain it for you in a few hours. Buy a 60 cent carton—NOW. Read the descriptive folder enclosed—try it as directed and if you are not extremely pleased, get your money back. We guarantee satisfaction because we know we are dispensing a most remarkable corrective, system cleanser and health builder.

Zilatone is recommended and sold in this city by all May's Drug Stores and other live druggists.

STAGE AND SCREEN

ROSEBUDS OPEN IN DAVIS

One of the minor acts in the Davis bill this week proves to be the most pleasing and original of the vaudeville presented, and that is the songs of the Harrington Sisters, who call themselves the "Little Rose Buds." They sing childish songs in tiny voices and are dressed like little school girls—very cute and comical, and quite the best thing on the program until near the close, when the inevitable Jazz Band, this time differentiated by wearing brown derby hats, off and on, puts over a skit called "Our Musical Ancestors," in which the musicians assume the masks of Verdi, Bizet, Schubert, Wagner, and other composers down to Sousa, and put much ludicrous byplay into their reminiscent medley. Among the other numbers Marion Sunshine, as a chorus girl, sings some amusing ballads; Pat Daly and company have a sketch made up of the usual patter and dances; Payne and Hilliard are a comedy team that proves entertaining; the St. Clair Sisters and O'Day show trick bicycling that is both startling and brilliant. The photoplay is "Love and Learn," a lively comedy of errors in which Esther Ralston has a roguish role.

FILM OF MUCH ACTION SCREENED IN GRAND

"East Side, West Side," the photoplay feature being screened in the Grand, isn't much for subtlety or illusion but its great stuff for those who like their action to be constant. Based on Felix Reisenberg's novel of the same title, it is rather jumpy in picturing the story of a youth who spent his early life on a barge, becomes a prize fighter and later a structural engineer. It contrasts life in the East Side slums of New York and on the fashionable West Side, with the hero prominent in both elements. The "long arm of coincidence" stretches too far to make the story artistic but it is interesting. An impressive scene is the sinking of a big ocean liner after hitting an iceberg. George O'Brien is a very busy chap as the fighting hero and he gets some help from Virginia Valli and J. Farrell McDonald. A comedy, "Kiss The Doctor," "Topics of the Day" and news pictures also are on the program.

NORMA TALMADGE IN CAMERAPHONE FILM

"The Dove," starring Norma Talmadge, is this week's photoplay feature in the Cameraphone. The picture is based on the Willard Mack play. Miss Talmadge essays the role of a virtuous dance hall girl in Costa Roja. Gilbert Roland does the heroics as a brave American youth. Noah Beery has a prominent role. A comedy film, news pictures and an organlogue also are on the bill.

THAW TO FIGHT LAWYER'S SUIT

Benjamin Thaw, by his attorneys, Dalzell, Fisher & Dalzell, has filed an answer to the suit of Benjamin Connor, who claims $15,000 for legal services rendered to Thaw in arranging a financial settlement between Thaw and his wife, Elma Dows Thaw, a resident of Paris, in 1922. Thaw and his wife are living apart.

Thaw says that the agreement was made with his wife while he was in Paris, and that he furnished all information. He asserts Connor's services consisted only in drawing up the actual agreement. After his return to Pittsburgh, in conferring with his family, Thaw says he decided the agreement was not fair to his children, and repudiated it. Thaw asserts that he has been willing to pay a reasonable fee, and suggests $500. Connor had declared he had done considerable investigating and hired additional counsel to assist him.

Doctor Rockwell Cures Blues In Greenwich Village Show Which Is New and Full of Pep

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GEORGE SEIBEL

JUST when the Revues were beginning to pall the Greenwich Village Follies come along to the Alvin Theater with a new Funny Man who takes his place with the funniest of them. Doctor Rockwell is his name and he can cure the most aggravated case of blues by his lecture on health. There is nothing particularly comic about his makeup—he might be a real physician with a somewhat vigorous bedside manner—but his patter is about as laughable as anything that has ever been put across. Some of the doses he administers are rather strong, and may have to be modified before he reaches the susceptible purlieus of Manhattan. But he is funny, and that is sufficient excuse for an occasional whiff of asafoetida.

Around this all-pervading comedian has been built a Revue of dazzling brilliancy—with some scenes that are strikingly beautiful, like the Greek Vase that serves as background for the Graham Dancers, the Silver Bridge, the Pasha's Court, and the Cinderella Slipper, and with some costumes that are rich and new, all their spangles in place and all their plumes unruffled. Even the take-offs on plays that have not yet been in Pittsburgh make this an up-to-date production—"The Trial of Mary Dugan," "The Silent House," "The Command to Love" are among these burlesques that took well though the original plays have not been here. "The Command to Love" was the only one that seemed to fall flat, and could be dispensed with.

Of course there is a couple of acrobatic dancers—Carlos and Valeria—who are marvels of agility and grace; but honors are shared by the Merediths, who present some of the old-fashioned dances in truly poetic style, while Doctor Rockwell from an upper box furnishes a running fire of side-splitting commentary.

The Revue is simply packed with clever people. Blossom Seeley is back in the spotlight with her sort of comedy; Eddie Shubert sings a lamp-post cabby song which is accompanied by expressive pantomime of his horse; Jans and Whalen are a comedy team of mirthful eccentricities; Laura Lee and Florence Misgen sing pleasingly enough and are pleasant to look at. Grace Brinkley, Bennie Fields, Annie Pritchard, Walter Plimmer, and half a dozen others add to the melody, merriment and madness, while a chorus that looks fresh and acts peppy fills in the empty spaces of the evening with lively scintillations. The Greenwich Village Follies overflow with glitter and spice, and will do much to convince the public that this species of entertainment still has possibilities that are unexplored, especially when there is a new comedian with something to cure that tired feeling.

SHOW IN HARRIS ENTERTAINS

The Scotchman bears the brunt of the laughs in the Harris this week. Lalla Selbini, a young woman with a trill in her voice and a smile on her face, opens the stage show with a few stories about the thrifty Scot, mixed in with a song or so and some bicycle riding stunts. Then Billy Neilan, who hails from the coal regions, tells a couple more about the Scotchman. And, finally, Artie Mehlinger, song writer and comedian, manages a laugh or two at the expense of Harry Lauder's countryman. Mother McGinn, also from the coal regions, appears on the bill with Billy Neilan, who tells his stories and sings a couple songs. This act is one of two added attractions in the Harris this week, the second being the appearance of Marianne Jaques and Albert Bonach, winners in the recent local marathon dance contest, and Teeny Neiman and Tony, runners-up in the same contest. A couple of Negro boys, Bailey and Phil, get a "big hand" for their snappy steps and entertaining song and chatter. They're worth seeing—and hearing. A pleasing musical act is offered by the Cadets' Sextet. McCoy and Walton slap each other into laughs. The photoplay feature, "Legionaires in Paris," depicts the adventures of a couple dough boys who go to Paris for the American Legion convention. Kit Guard and Al Cooke are featured. It is quite merry in a slapstick way.

"BUYS" 3 AUTOS, GUNS, THEN BUBBLE BURSTS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 28.—About to sally forth as a modern Robin Hood, Edwin Neptune, alias Edwin Neely, 17, of North Braddock, was arrested last night after he had purchased three automobiles and a large number of revolvers, holsters and rounds of ammunition at local stores. He got the goods, police say, by posing as purchasing agent of the H. C. Frick Coke Company and a relative of Fire Chief George H. Litman.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," And Friedland Revue Open New Stanley With Eclat

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

THE opening program of the new Stanley, which was opened last night in a ceremonial manner characteristic of the premiere of important edifices, speechmaking and the like, was of a gala nature which proved to be highly entertaining to the well-dressed and enthusiastic audience which made up the 4,000 or more first-nighters and who enjoyed every minute of the extensive bill, from the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," by Virginia Futrelle, to the final fadeout in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the feature picture of the week.

Following the opening ceremonies, featured by a speech by Mayor Kline, there was an orchestral selection, "Capriccio Italienne," by Tschaikovsky, Phil Spitalny, guest conductor, directing the orchestra in a manner that made him a favorite for his own peppy way of conducting as well as for effectively bringing out the music in full and sweeping tones. Mr. Spitalny is a man of personality, and he won a place with the audience quickly, as was demonstrated later when he was invited to direct Anatole Friedland's orchestra in a number in the Club Anatole Revue, the stage feature of the program.

Mr. Friedland's act was the outstanding portion of the evening's entertainment, being pleasing and full of good things from beginning to end. Specialists included Le Blanc and Du Charm, acrobatic dancing team extraordinary; Lucille Hays, lively toe dancer; Rena Parker, Mr. Friedland himself, and others, not forgetting the orchestra itself. "Night Club Rose," one of Mr. Friedland's latest songs, was the theme song of the presentation.

"Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" served to introduce a new actress, Ruth Taylor, who effectively visualized the innocent-eyed little blonde gold-digger, who went from Arkansas to Hollywood and from there to New York and elsewhere to be educated. While following the story of the Anita Loos satire faithfully and developing much comedy, the picture still falls somewhat short of achieving the charm of the original. This, however, is not a matter serious enough to interfere with the general excellence of the program as a whole. The cast of the picture includes Alice White as Lorelei's girl friend, Dorothy; Ford Sterling, Holmes Herbert, Emily Fitzroy, Chester Conklin and other favorites.

Another feature of the bill was the atmospheric prologue, "The Spirit of Pittsburgh," in which the Stanley Male Chorus of 30 sang, the background being a representation of Pittsburgh steel mills. There also were news pictures.

GRETA GARBO ACTS WELL IN PENN SCREEN FEATURE

Greta Garbo is a real actress. If "The Divine Woman," on the screen in the Penn, did nothing else but demonstrate that fact, which it does, it still would be worth while, in spite of a rather commonplace story, because it permits Miss Garbo to display genuine artistry in almost every foot of film in which she appears on the screen, and the picture is almost a solo for her. It is a story of an actress who sacrificed her career for the man she loved and who had made a convict of himself for love of her. Lars Hanson does well in the leading male role and Lowell Sherman makes his part of a theatrical manager convincing. On the stage "Joy Bells" introduces various specialists including a ballet headed by Eva Mascagni, Roma Brothers, hand balancing athletes who made a hit, Joseph Parson, bass singer, and other performers who pleased, the comedy being supplied by a team of dancers performing as "Spark Plug." News pictures and music by the orchestra and organ rounded out the bill.

COMEDIANS, TUMBLERS FEATURE IN SHERIDAN

Topping the bill which opened yesterday in the Sheidan Square is the Picchiani Troupe, speed comedians and tumblers. Will and Lillian Kaufmann appear in a skit, "Funny Capers." Marguerite Padula, assisted by Monroe Purcell, offer "Ivory Moments," in which a piano has a part. Other acts are Marino and Martin, in a novelty offering, and Aaron and Violet, "Broadway Steppers." The photoplay feature is "East Side, West Side." The sinking of the Titantic gives the picture its climax. The cast includes George O'Brien and Virginia Valli. An organlogue and short screen entertainment completes the bill.

EAST END PLAYERS IN DRAMA OF CHINA

The Harry Schwartz players are presenting "The Love of Su Shong" in the East End this week. The play brings out a story of a young American traveler who falls in love with Su Shong Chon, Chinese maiden. Ray Rawlings portrays the hero and Blanche Wilcox the heroine. Others in the cast are: J. Arthur Gordon, who directed the production; Yonda Reid, Beth Burke, Grace Whitcher, Everett Johnstone, Harry Schwartz, Phil Van Zandt, Marcel Dill, Ed Downes and Harrison Rankin.

"BROADWAY," IN PITT, BEGINS ITS SECOND WEEK

"Broadway" opened the second week of its engagement in the Pitt last night. This is a melodrama of cabarets, bootleggers and vaudeville performers, all mixed together in such a novel maner as to make the play a distinct hit. Walter Glass, Loretta Shea and Matt Briggs have leading parts in a company that is capable throughout.

CAMEO KEEPS COHEN, KELLY FOURTH WEEK

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" is being seen for a fourth week on the Cameo screen. This sequel to "The Cohens and Kellys" features George Sydney, Vera Gordon, J. Farrell MacDonald and Kate Price.

LEONA LA MAR IN ALDINE

If you want to know whether the boy friend loves you or where the wife was the night before last go to the Aldine and let Leona La Mar, the girl who displays a keen mental vision, tell you. An audience yesterday confronted her with these and many other questions and she apparently answered them to the satisfaction of all concerned. But there's more to the show than this question and answer affair. For example, there's Bob Nelson, a funny boy whose song and patter are worth a laugh anytime. Another comedian on the bill is Mrs. Edward's boy, Irving. He does an act by his lonesome and also trots out half dozen or so girls in a revue. Gautier's Toy Shop opens the bill.

The photoplay is "Quality Street," starring Marion Davies and based on Sir James Barrie's story. Miss Davies essays the role of Phobe Throssel, which Maude Adams and, more recently, Helen Hayes, portrayed on the stage. The picture entertains with its whimsical story of the young English doctor, who goes to the Napoleonic wars, instead of declaring his love for the fair maiden who lives in Quality street.

"FRIVOLITIES OF 1928" ACADEMY BURLESQUE

"Frivolities of 1928" is this week's burlesque in the Academy. Frank Harcourt, the comic lead is featured in several scenes, including the sketches, "Compulsion" and "I'll Find Out." Vivian Kent contributes to the amusing scenes and sings "Ray Ray Raining," assisted by the chorus. Betty Van, Billie Emerson and Stan Stanley are prominent vocally and otherwise. "Chick," a blackface comedian, has a monologue interspersed with topical songs. Bee Cunningham and her steppers, and Tangara in a special dancing offering, are featured acts.

BUTLER FLOODS TO BE PROBED BY STATE

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 28.—Charles E. Two freshets within three months have caused much loss in the West Side of Butler.

MARK MOORE IS SLATED FOR YOUNGSTOWN BENCH

YOUNGSTOWN, Feb. 28.—Mark Moore, son of the late E. H. Moore, lawyer and prominent Democratic politician, will likely be chosen municipal judge here, to succeed Thomas Jenks, who dropped dead last week. Carl Armstrong, law director, yesterday refused to accept the position, after having been appointed by Gov. Vic Donahey.

EXPLORER TESTING FRESH MEAT DIET

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Vilhjalmur Stefanson, famous Arctic explorer, is testing his theory that man can subsist on a diet of fresh meat without getting scurvy. In a local hospital, he is subjecting himself to experiment. For two weeks, he admittted today, he and 10 other men have been human laboratories for the all-meat diet. If the idea is found to be true it will be a factor in the success of further Arctic projects.

HILLSIDE SOON TO BE MADE GARDEN

Exorts for the beautification of the slopes of Mt. Washington, which were put forth by the Junior Board of Trade composed of the students of the South Hills High School, are about to be realized, according to S. A. Ringer, for several years connected with the faculty of that institution. An editorial in The Sun-Telegraph pointing out the practical value of improving the hillside and the interest manifested in the project by City Council, Mr. Ringer believes, betoken assurance that something soon will be done toward preserving the natural beauty of the famous cliffs.

"The planting of trees and shrubs, the pruning of those already planted there by nature and the removal of underbrush and rubbish of various kinds will eradicate its unkempt appearance," declared Mr. Ringer. "It is especially desirable that this work be carried on since the New Liberty Bridge and the Mt. Washington boulevard are about to be opened, bringing thousands of visitors, many from abroad, into close view of this sublime scenery."

What Cataract Is and How It May Be Overcome

A LETTER comes from a worried mother asking about "congenital cataract." She wants to know its cause and what to do about it.

DR COPELAND

The popular idea is that cataract is a "skin over the eye," a film of some sort that shuts out sight. As a matter of fact it is not on the eye—it is in the eye.

Back of the colored part of the eye, behind the pupil, is a structure called the "crystalline lens." In health, the lens is as clear and transparent as a well polished spectacle lens. It is not visible through the pupil; it is as readily seen through as a piece of plate glass.

If the "crystalline lens" loses its transparency, if it becomes milky and cloudy, then there is a condition which we call cataract. Lack of clearness of the lens, no matter what its cause may be, is cataract.

The ordinary form of cataract is called "senile cataract." It is so called because it comes in advanced life and is one of the symptoms of old age.

But once in a great while a baby is born with cataract in one or both eyes. This is congenital cataract.

Why does it come to afflict a tiny baby?

Before the infant is born, while it is being carried close to its mother's heart, it is absolutely dependent on its mother for nourishment and growth. Unless her health is good and all her functions are perfect, the unborn babe is in danger.

If for some reason there is ill health five or six months before the baby is born, one of the possible consequences is to have the nourishmentt of the tiny eye interfered with and haziness of the lens in consequence. Then the baby is born with cataract.

The eye is a remarkable structure. It is delicately and wonderfully made. The chief blood supply of the interior of the eye comes from a big artery which perforates the back of the eyeball and spreads out over the interior surface of the eye.

In the very early stages of the development of the infant, a branch of this artery stretches across the space in the back of the eyeball. It is like a strand of cable and is called the "hyaloid artery."

It is the function of the hyaloid artery to supply nourishment and building material for what is to be the crystalline lens. So rapid and perfect is the development that a few months before the baby's birth, the eye and crystalline lense are complete. Then the hyaloid artery dries up and disappears.

Unfortunately, the bad health of the mother or some accidental thing may interfere with this activity of the hyaloid artery. In consequence the lens may be imperfect or scarred. Then we have congenital cataract and the baby is born blind or partially blind.

What can be done about it?

The eye can be "needled." A fine needle is thrust into the eyeball, the baby being anaethetized. The simple operation permits the fluid of the eye to enter the lens substance. This causes the lens substance to dissolve and absorb. After two or three such treatments the opacity is gone and there is nothing to prevent sight.

When the child grows older glasses must be worn to do what the crystalline lens would do if it were present and normal. Focusing of the objects is needed, of course, and if the eye can't do this glasses will be required.

Congenital cataract is a misfortune, but, as you see, its effects can be overcome. Many happy persons have gone through life with no greater affliction than the need of glasses, in spite of the fact that they were born with cataract.

Removes Cause of High Blood Pressure and Rheumatism

High blood pressure—the chief cause of heart trouble and apoplexy—is usually the result of constipation, sluggish liver, overworked kidneys and consequent accumulation of body poisons by the blood.

The quickest and safest way to correct such a condition is to remove the cause—and Lithuric Salts should do this quickly and pleasantly. Take it before breakfast as directed and its harmless, beneficial mineral salts and fruit acids will act directly on the liver, gently but positively flush the intestines and assist the kidneys. Lithuric Salts will also increase the alkalinity of the blood, neutralize uric acid and thus relieve rheumatism, backache, etc.

If you have high blood pressure or rheumatism, begin the use of Lithuric Salts at once and get back the perfect health that makes life worth living. Large inexpensive bottles of the May Drug Co. or of any other good druggist.

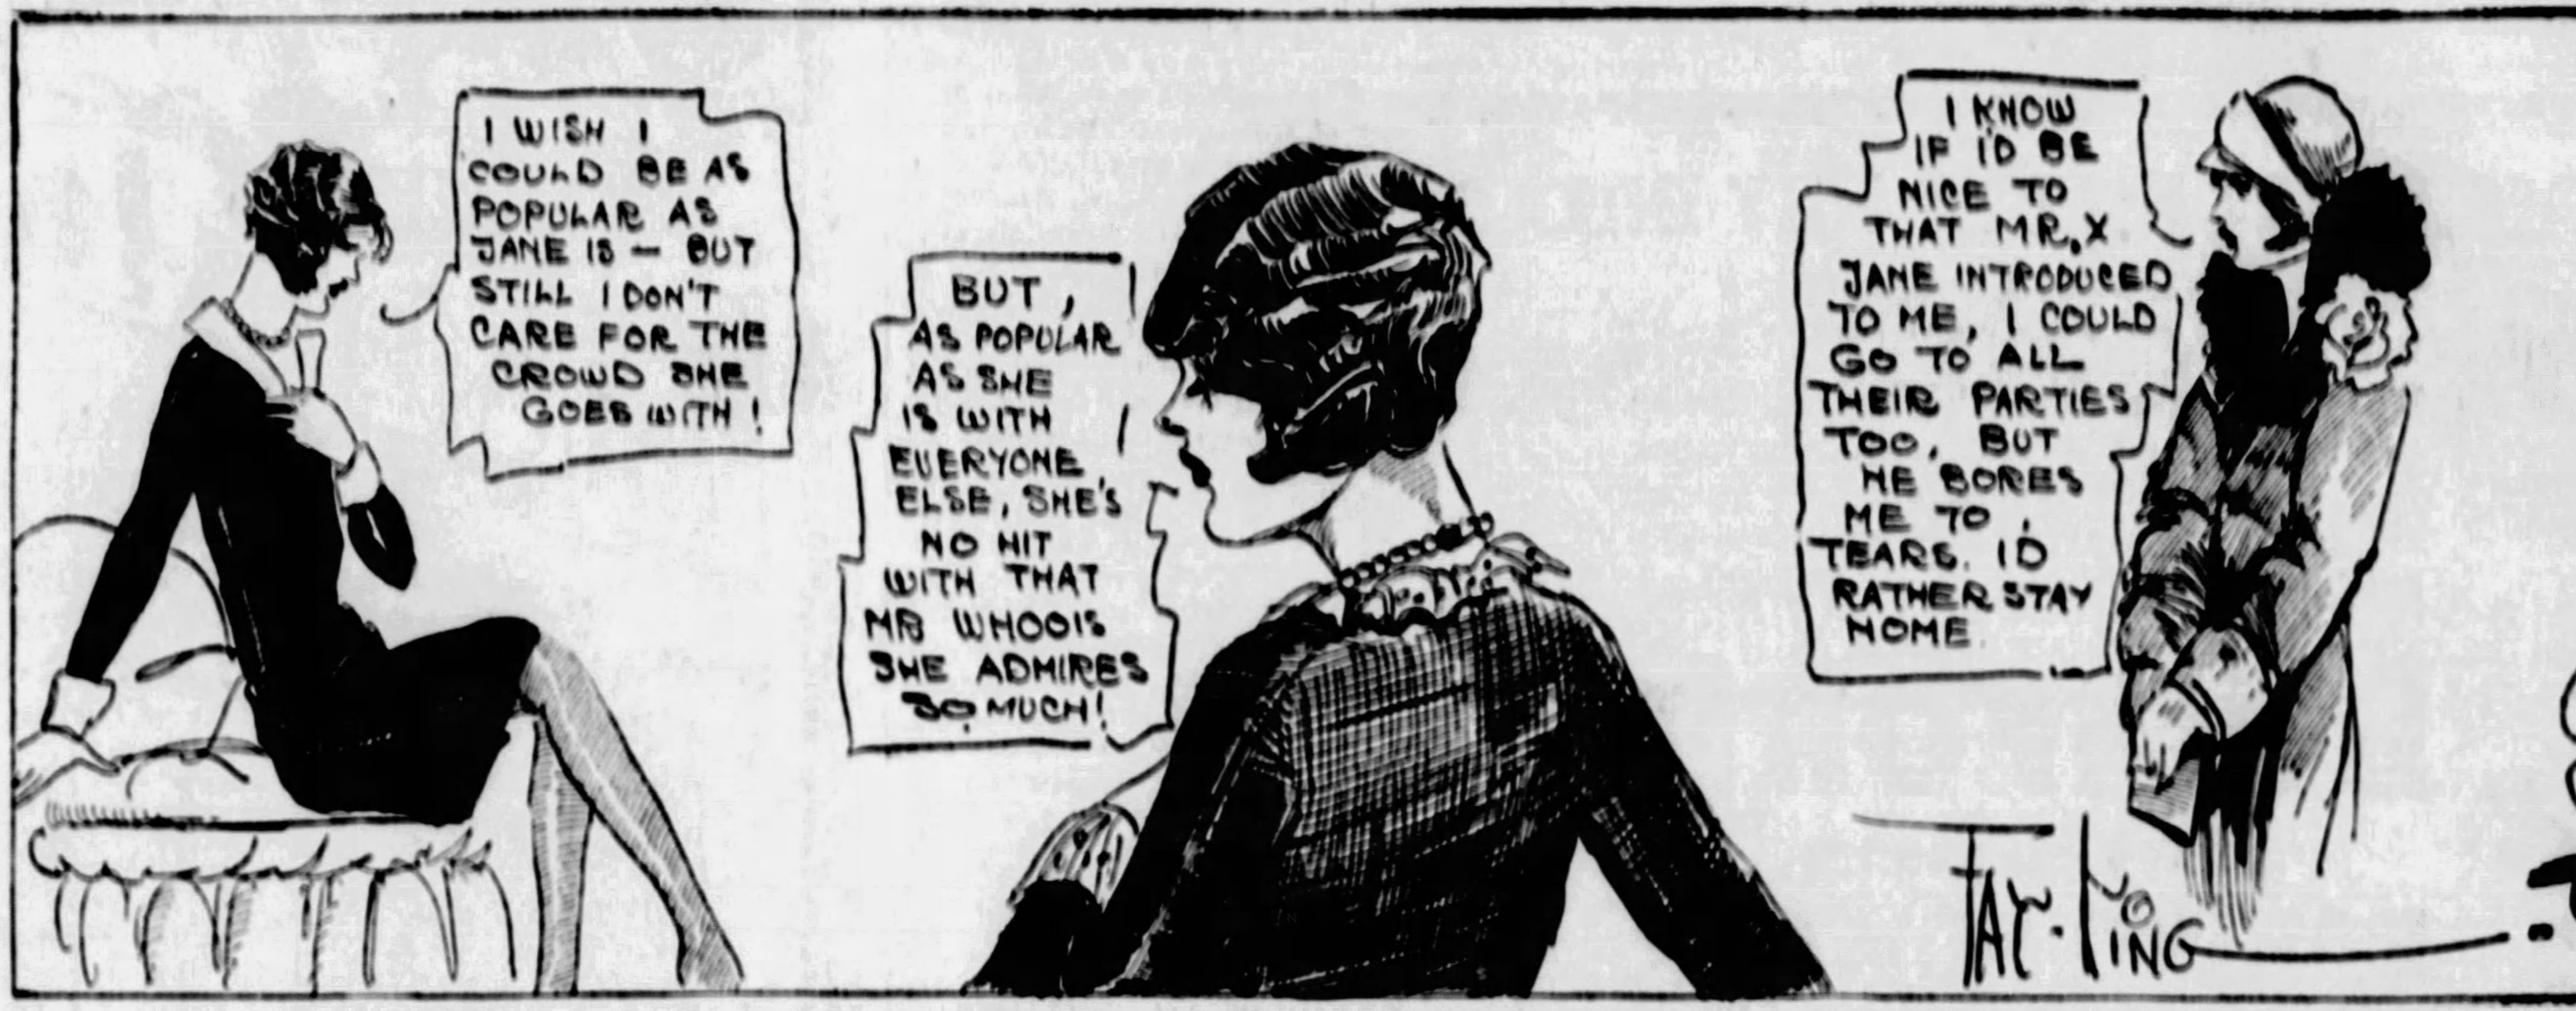
Popular Girls Not Happiest, Fay King Finds



I WISH I COULD BE AS POPULAR AS JANE IS — BUT STILL I DON'T CARE FOR THE CROWD SHE GOES WITH!
BUT, AS POPULAR AS SHE IS WITH EVERYONE ELSE, SHE'S NO HIT WITH THAT MR WHOOIS SHE ADMIRES SO MUCH!
I KNOW IF I'D BE NICE TO THAT MR. X JANE INTRODUCED TO ME, I COULD GO TO ALL THEIR PARTIES TOO, BUT HE BORES ME TO TEARS. I'D RATHER STAY HOME.
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

MANY girls make themselves quite unhappy imagining they lack charm and are not popular because they are not out every night with a crowd of merrymakers.

They imagine they are less attractive, less pleasing, than other girls they know, who are always gadding about, and having good times.

The truth of the matter is that those girls who do not seem so popular are more sincere than those who make the most of everyone they meet and are willing to be bored with persons who do not really interest them, but afford them entertainment.

It is better to be really liked by a few friends that you really like than to be "popular" with a lot of persons who mean no more to you than you do to them!

Unless you can kid people along who do not interest you, it is useless to strive for popularity. For even the most popular girls do not always click with the one person they would really like to impress.

Therefore, even the so-called most popular girls sometimes have the same problems as the girls who imagine they are not popular at all!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, February 29

The world is mathematical and has no casualty in all its vast and flowing curve.—EMERSON.

ACCORDING to the sidereal operations for this day things should move at a lively pace, but not in every instance on constructive lines. There is foreseen action in new directions and in all that pertains to writings and publishing or promotion, but in public affairs, with inventions and those forces of higher service, a disintegrating influence may be felt. Be careful in travel and change.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively year, with new undertakings, promotion and publishing, as well as fresh contracts, flourishing, but travel, change and all angles of invention and manipulating higher forces may suffer.

A child born on this day should be versatile, active and generally clever, but may be restless and unsettled to its detriment. Tact and diplomacy should be its key.

Meditations of a Married Woman

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE TEN-POINT HUSBAND

"EARNING capacity" comes first—honesty last, in the "Ten Points" which make the ideal husband, according to a group of modern young women.

Fudge and rubbish! You can be just as miserable with a million dollars to squabble over as you can with thirty dollars a week to fight about.

But you can't be happy for a single moment with a man who is not fair and honorable and on the level with you.

Money and good looks may make an attractive lover; but they have very little part in the ensemble of an ideal husband. Too much money and too much beauty are far more likely to lead to another woman, than to happiness. Three months after the wedding you scarcely see the dimple in a man's chin, and have forgotten whether his nose is classic or Gothic, anyway.

You'll never find ten points of perfection in ANY normal man; so put away your lanterns and your microscopes. There is just ONE point, which outweighs all the other nine, and that is COMPANIONABILITY!

Is he the man who gives you the ZEST for life?

Is he the man who stimulates and inspires you; who makes you see visions and dreams and build beautiful plans for the future?

Is he the man with whom you long to work or delight to play?

Is he the man with whom you want to SHARE things—your joys, your secrets, your sunsets, your jokes, your thrills, your job or your games?

Is he the man whose coming lights up the scenery for you and makes the world go 'round a little faster?

Is he the man, without whom, home would seem empty, success dull and flat, work just a burden, and play just a waste of energy?

Is he the man to whom you have an impulse to TELL things? The man to whom you enjoy talking about yourself, who helps you to idealize yourself, who cheers you on? For the biggest shock in life is to marry for a cheer-leader and get an extinguisher.

Is he the Big Thrill in your life, the carburetor that ignites your ambition, fires your hopes, and gives life a real meaning for you?

For no matter how steady a man's character, how big his earning capacity, nor how great his pulchritude, unless he is companionable, unless he is the one who gives you the "zest for life," he is not the man for YOU.

We can get nearly everything else in this world, without bothering to marry for it—money, success, amusement and even kisses—everything except COMRADESHIP! But this we must have!

Life, without it, is like playing to an empty house.

Comradeship is nine points of the Ten-Point Husband!

Beware of Chronic Acid Stomach

Ulcers Likely to Follow Unless Treated Properly.

A "gassy" stomach is an acid stomach. And acid, which makes the stomach lining raw and inflamed, is a frequent cause of ulcers.

If your stomach is acid—especially if it is a chronic condition—be most careful of the remedy you use. Old-time preparations were designed merely to stop the pain. This isn't enough. Dangerous ulcers may form during the course of such treatment.

For quick, safe rlief from acid-indigestion—for full protection against dangerous possibilities—take a little pure, harmless Bi-nesia. This not only neutralizes excess stomach acid, preventing food-fermentation and gas, but is the one remedy which heals and protects the delicate stomach lining.

Doctors recommend Bi-nesia Thousands use it. And we guarantee it to stop any attack of acid indigestion in less than five minutes or your money back. Get a 50 cent package of tablets or powder of your druggist today. Bi-nesia is safe, quick and harmless.

IT'S natural to think that the caffein you take with your meals drives away fatigue—"picks you up." Something does—and isn't caffein a stimulant?

Yes, but caffein doesn't work so fast. It's the warmth of the drink that gives you an immediate sense of comfort. The full effect of the caffein comes later—hours later. Then this drug stimulant whips up your nerves—repels sleep—drives the brain on when every natural impulse may be crying for rest.

Don't be fooled any longer! Change from caffein to Postum!

You'll get the mealtime "pick up" you want from Postum's genial warmth and zestful flavor. But afterward, when you want to rest, you can! For Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran—no trace of any artificial stimulant in it. Postum never robs you of sleep, never affects the nerves or causes indigestion.

New Wax-Finish Furniture Requires Special Wax Polish

The attractiveness of present-day furniture lies in the beauty of its soft, subdued finish. Unfortunately, many housewives rob their furniture of its charm by using the same polish they used on old-fashioned shiny furniture.

The rich beauty of grand pianos and fine furniture is made possible by a wax finish. To preserve this, you should use the same wax polish that is used by the furnituure factories themselves.

Old English Liquid Wax is the genuine Old English Wax in liquid form—made especially for easy use on fine furniture and woodwork. Simply dampen a cloth with it, and go lightly over the surface. After a few minutes rub to a polish with a dry, soft cloth.

The result is a dry, wax finish that will not collect lint or dust and can be rubbed up for weeks afterward. In addition, the wax protects the furniture from scratches and fingermarks—because the wear is on the wax, not on the wood.

Get a can today and see for yourself how it will improve the appearance of every piece of furniture in your home—old or new. Use it also for polishing and cleaning floors, linoleums. The pint and quart sizes are ideal for the home.

On sale at all paint, hardware, drug, housefurnishing and department stores.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Moving of Mosses From Chicago to Washington Creates Interest in Social Circles Here

EVERY once in a while we hear an interesting bit of news concerning one or another of the young people who have married and gone to another city to live, and are glad to pass it along so that their old friends may know what is happening to them. And I am quite sure that you will be interested to know that the former Margaret Benney, who is now Mrs. McElroy Moss, you know, and her husband are moving from Chicago, where they have lived ever since they were married, several years ago, to Washington, D. C. The young Mrs. Moss is the daughter of the Albert Barnes Benneys, of Sewickley Heights.

The Mosses are already in Washington and are staying with Judge McKenzie Moss, Margaret's father-in-law, at the Wardman Park Hotel until they are ready to take possession of the house in Newark street, in Cleveland Park, which they have leased from Dr. and Mrs. Eric Scott Carroll.

I understand that Mrs. Walter Irvin—the former Ethel Hook—is going to be matron of honor at the wedding of one of her classmates at Sweetbriar, Dorothy Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cummings, of Cincinnati. Dorothy is to marry Lewis Johnson Henshaw, and the date set is April 14. Mr. Irvin is included in the list of ushers.

Among the very recent arrivals from Europe were the Alan Magee Scaifes, whose wedding was such a beautiful affair of November 16. Mrs. Scaife, you remember, of course, was Sara Cordelia Mellon, daughter of the Richard Beatty Mellons, of Fifth avenue. They came over on the Olympic, I understand.

Quite a few of our local people have been taking short trips to New York within the past week or so. In their number are the Allen H. Kerrs, of Morewood avenue.

Mrs. Robert Lee Wilson, of the King Edward apartments, has left for a trip that sounds attractive, to say the least. She left last Wednesday night, I believe, and expects, first, to spend a few days with friends in New Orleans. Then she will go on to San Antonio for a month, and after that she will visit in Denver for the month of April.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Leo Pierce of Moore avenue, Knoxville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sara Jane Pierce, to Patrick J. Harmon of this city. No wedding date has been announced.

Mrs. William P. Radcliff of Wynoka street, Carrick, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Vera May Scheidemantel, to E. Alexander Huttenhauer of the North Side. A fall wedding is planned.

Mrs. Mary C. Walsh of Emerson avenue, Crafton, announces the marriage of her niece, Miss Carolyn Worthington, and William A. Aeberli, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Aeberli of Termon avenue, North Side, which was solemnized February 20 in Butler.

The marriage of Miss Annette Canter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Canter, of Winebiddle avenue, and J. A. Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Meyer, of Dalzell place, was solemnized last Thursday night in the Mercantile Club by the Rev. Dr. S. H. Goldenson. Miss Pauline Canter and Isidore Meyer were the attendants, with Isa Dazear, niece of the bride, as flower girl. Mrs. Joseph G. Lazear, sister of the bride, sang. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer are motoring in the south.

UNIFORM MARITAL LAW URGED BEFORE CLUB

"Your citizenship comes from the United States, but the status of your citizenship comes from the different states, the marriage and divorce laws of which are so diverse that a couple may be upright citizens, bigamists, adulterers or criminals as they cross state lines." This was stressed last night by Mrs. Edward Franklin White, Indianapolis lawyer, who was in Pittsburgh yesterday under auspices of the San Antonio Club. Mrs. White, who is first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Club and a candidate for its presidency, left last night for Washington, where today she is arguing before a subcommittee of the Senate the necessity for an amendment to the Constitution which will give authority for a uniform marriage and divorce law.

What Mrs. White termed "a dress rehearsal" of her argument was given in her talk last night before 150 women and a few men at a dinner in her honor at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Mrs. White, who was introduced by Mrs. Flora B. Bowden, called attention to the fact that what constitutes legal marriage and divorce in some states is not recognized as such in others and that no two states have enacted the same laws governing marriage and divorce. Twelve and 14 is the legal age for marriage in some states, and only five states require that the parties shall be 21. Seventeen states have no age regulation. Common law marriage is not recognized in 19 states. About one-half the states require no witnesses to marriage, although they do require witnesses for the transfer of property. The diversity of laws governing racial intermarriage, marriage of persons with communicable disease, of the insane or imbecile, and an equal diversity in divorce laws were also discussed by the speaker.

Mrs. White was honor guest at a charmingly appointed luncheon given at the University Club by Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, vice president-at-large of the State Federation, and in the afternoon was honored with an informal tea at the Woman's City Club, when the guests were members of the local Phi Delta Delta, the legal fraternity, of which Mrs. White is a national honorary vice president.

"The former Crown Prince of Germany will one day be its President, an office for which he is being trained," prophesied Dr. George Earl Raiguel to members of the Department stores send their clever buyers to Paris to select the imported things women love

FASHION EXPERTS who buy for 112 great Department Stores insist on Lux for their own things

MILLIONS and millions of dollars every year are entrusted to these clever women—the department store buyers of frocks and blouses, hosiery, underthings, gloves—the wardrobe of American women.

From the fashion centers of the world—New York, Paris, London—they select the season's most successful styles—the latest things in colors, in fabrics.

More than any other women—because they buy for all women—they must know how lustrous silks and soft woolens and lovely colored cottons will wear—how proper washing will guard their charming texture and color, will keep them looking like new through hard, every day wear.

They know also how easily everyday things, as well as exquisite flower-like garments, can be spoiled by wrong methods of cleansing.

In 112 of the most important stores in America—doing over three-fourths of all the large department store business*—women buyers told us just how they took care of their very own things. And we discovered that for washing their own silks and woolens—

92% of these experts use Lux

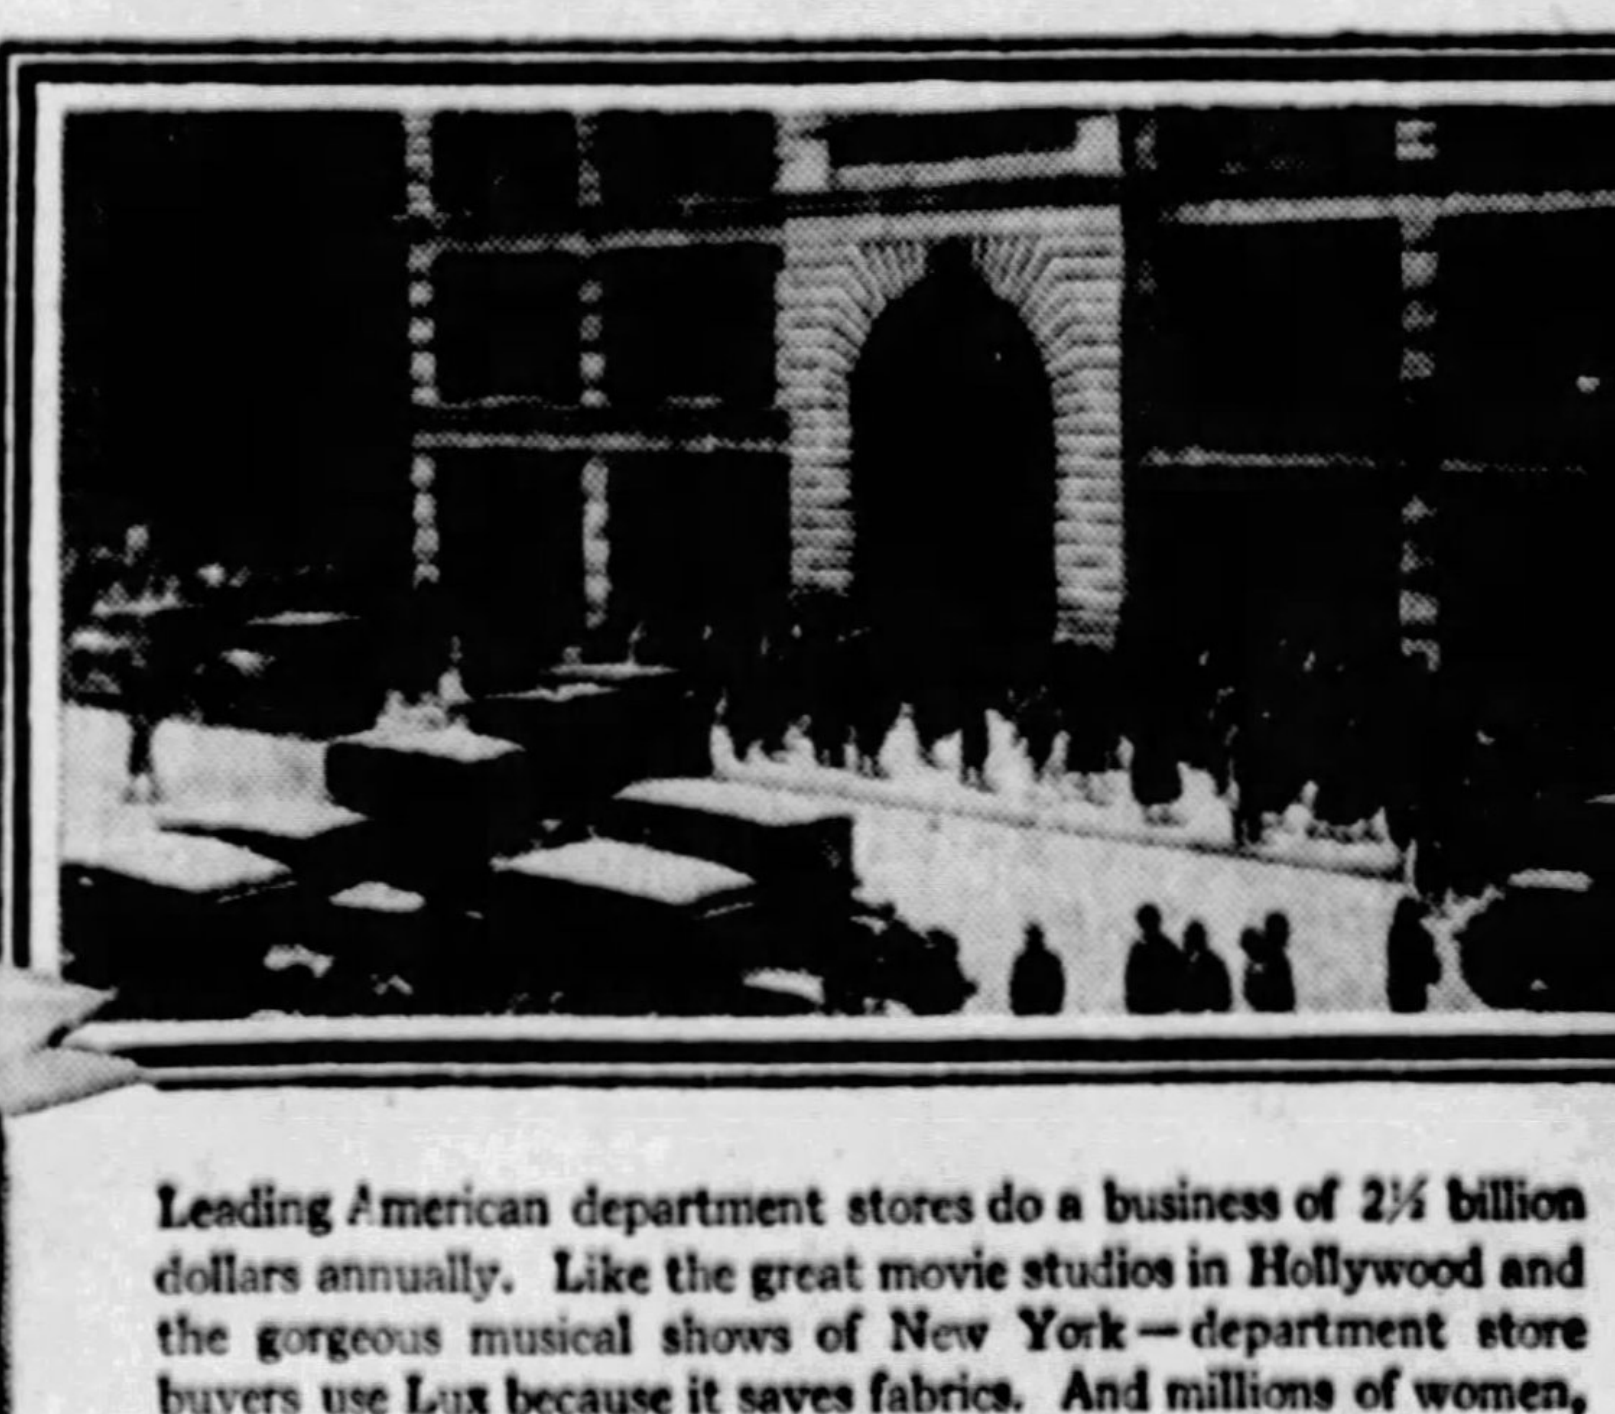
These fashion authorities, knowing the nature of fine fabrics and that the choice of soap is all-important to their life and newness, will take no chances.

They insist upon Lux for all their own things—for stockings and gloves and lingerie, negligées and sweaters, their sheerest and their sturdiest wash frocks. And they buy it in the familiar blue package found, investigations show, in 8 out of 10 representative homes in cities from coast to coast.

* Over three-fourths of all the large department store business in the United States is done by the stores of the following 26 cities, where 92% of the buyers interviewed use Lux:

Boston
Providence
New York
Newark
Philadelphia
Baltimore
Washington
Pittsburgh
Buffalo
Cleveland
Akron
Detroit
Cincinnati
Indianapolis
Chicago
Milwaukee
Minneapolis
St. Paul
St. Louis
New Orleans
Kansas City
Denver
Los Angeles
San Francisco
Portland
Seattle

Lux keeps things new-looking, makes them last far longer than they do washed with other soaps—flakes, chips or cakes. The rich, safe Lux suds cleanse without rubbing—keep silks, chiffons, woolens, colored cottons like new.



Leading American department stores do a business of 2½ billion dollars annually. Like the great movie studios in Hollywood and the gorgeous musical shows of New York—department store buyers use Lux because it saves fabrics. And millions of women, customers of these very stores, use Lux, to keep clothes like new. Investigations show that 80 to 95% of the women interviewed in the cities listed above are Lux users.

LUX KEEPS FABRICS NEW-LOOKING TWICE AS LONG

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY AND CLUBS

Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. Dr. Raiguel appeared before the club after an absence of many years and for one hour and a half gave what was, for want of a better description, termed "a current events talk." But Dr. Raiguel's talks are no mere discussion of affairs. They are intimate chronicles of people with whom he has held converse and events through which he has lived, given with that forcefulness, that power and apparently unconscious sense of the dramatic that holds his hearers in utter stillness or moves them to tears. It was so yesterday, for rarely have the club members heard a more stirring recital than was Dr. Raiguel's description of La Bourget the night of Lindberg's leanding. This followed much that the speaker had to say concerning conditions in Belgium, a country which every other country is trying to "pull towards it;" of which the French government, which he said is "the most intellectual government;" armament, Von Hindenberg (the greatest man in Germany today and one who was great before the war); the importance of the submarine to France, the United States naval appropriation bill and many other subjects, all of which he knit together in his conclusion that world peace can come only from international friendship based upon understanding.

In the home of Mrs. A. W. Schreiber, Sixth avenue, the Monday Club of Carnegie met yesterday for its stated program, the papers for which were given by Mrs. J. M. Duff, Mrs. O. C. Mackie, Mrs. W. J. Barr and Mrs. C. E. Gullette. Music was by Mrs. Vera Kaighn Nirella, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Andrews.

With "The Soul of a Nation" as her theme, Mrs. John M. Phillips referred to the home as the nation's soul and to woman as the heart of the home in her talk before the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club yesterday afternoon in the Beach home. Mrs. J. T. Moon, accompanied by Mrs. J. P. Boore, furnished soprano solos, and the tea hour was in charge of the social committee.

A piano recital will be given tonight by Mrs. Therese Kroll Pergament at the meeting of the Wemeola Club in the home of Mrs. Joseph Slepian, Lancaster avenue, Regent square.

An ensemble program and the annual program of sacred music are the two events on the Tuesday Musical Club's program for March. The former, which will be given on the afternoon of the thirteenth in upper Memorial Hall, will be preceded by the usual study class under Dr. Charles N. Boyd. Miss Helen Roessing is arranging the numbers. March 27 is the date set for the sacred program, which Mrs. James H. Greene is arranging and which be given at night in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Rollo W. Brown, speaking on "The Creative Spirit and the American Public;" Richard Halliburton, with "The Track of Ulysses" as his subject; Curtis Dwight Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy, and Prof. William Starr Meyers in a current events talk are the speakers listed for the March Monday morning lectures at the Twentieth Century Club. In addition the drama committee will present Mrs. Mary Jones Sherrill in Cadman's "Witch of Salem," with Earl Mitchell playing the musical accompaniment. This attraction is dated for March 15 and on the twenty-eighth Donald McGill, with Mr. Mitchell at the piano, will be presented in a song recital.

Can love be a curse as well as a blessing? Why is it sometimes a force for evil as well as good? You will know the deeper meaning of marriage—human relationships—and be happier for it after reading "THE PROBLEMS OF THE AFFECTIONS" by Jessica G. Cosgrave.

WHERE FASHION HOLDS COURT

French Evening Gowns Are Brilliant Successes

Paris Fashion says, "The more important the evening affair, the more brilliant is the flash of beads, of paillettes, of rhinestones." A gold colored georgette is heavily trimmed with gold beads . . . and there's the new deep V neck, and a petaled skirt, also beaded. Tiny little mirrors are used to form part of the motif of a beaded georgette gown . . . reflecting a scintillating brightness. Very often the bodice is tight-fitting, while the skirt flares a bit. The uneven hemline still holds favor.

New Colors Are Charming

White often assumes a bit of color this Spring . . . and the off-white shades are extremely popular. Beige tones, the soft blues, rose, green . . . and independence blue is smart even for evening. Often a color shades from very pale at the neck . . . to quite dark at the scalloped hem.

(Kaufmann's—Fourth Floor)

Coats for Spring Take on New Femininity

Coats are more feminine than last year. Scarf-throws are much in vogue . . . and more often than not they accompany deep fur cuffs. Capes have a new way of fitting the shoulders. And more attention is given to sleeves than heretofore. Sometimes they're tight, and button-trimmed to the elbow . . . other times they're bell-shaped at the wrist. Beige, grey, black, and middy blue are the best colors.

Furred or Furless Coats

Fashion seems to be altogether impartial this season . . . your coat may be heavily furred, or it may be entirely without. A strikingly smart note, too, is to have the fabric collar, but fur cuffs. Baby fox, blonde mole, monkey fur, are most popular. All are used on either the black or lighter colors.

The cape-coat edges its cape in fur, achieving the off-the-shoulder line.

Paris Sends Hats of Striking Details

First and foremost among the millinery mandates from Paris . . . straw, Ballibuntls, bakus, linen-like straws that are as supple and pliable as beautiful felt. Felts are still fashionable for sports, but often they are encrusted with straw. And there are little woven straws from Switzerland . . . that you can crush in the palm of your hand. And the shiny straws are new to the season. Very noticeable among the new deft details are the lower crowns . . . the irregular brim . . . French whimsy in the soft bows or the grosgrain bindings . . . and decidedly more attention given to the back of the hats.

Famous Hat Designers

Among the renowned names in the brims of these hats . . . Rose Descat, Valois, Thenault, Reboux. And there are names not so widely known now, but consistently attracting attention in the hat world.

(Kaufmann's—Fifth Floor)

Detail of Pattern Marks Shoes as Modish

The Fashion Revue displays footwear that gives attention to details . . . details of piping, details of new color, details of new materials that match the materials of the other accessories. The colors are lighter, softer in tone. Honey beige and cascade (slightly darker than honey beige), lead, of course . . . with Plaza Grey, a new soft grey shade, maintaining importance. Blue is used with the costume ensemble.

Design Favors Asymmetry

Detail of pattern sometimes furthers this effect. There is much piping in gold and silver kid . . . with simulated buckles at the side or on the instep, of matching or contrasting leather. Python is the ultra-smart footwear material this season. Dull finish kids will be worn for early Spring . . . expressing the final word in footwear elegance. Suedes and lizards are good.

(Kaufmann's—Fifth Floor)

Imported Sports Frocks Achieve a Dashing Note

Paris votes whole-heartedly for the new sports frocks . . . and smart Palm Beach follows suit. Two-piece, with skirt of finely pleated silk, and knitted slip-over top. Rodier kasha is very popular, intricately cut to achieve an artful simplicity. The separate sleeveless sweater is decidedly new to wear over frocks! The sports outfit may be a coat or slip-on style. And the colors are lovely . . . soft blues, green, rose, beige. White is fashionable alone or in combination with color.

(Kaufmann's—Fourth Floor)

New Fabrics Develop Ensemble Ideas in Bags

The style of the bags is much the same as ever—though long handle and back strap pouches are rather more in favor. Detail marks a bag as new.

Tweed bags are new, with Pode Peche—a soft, duvetyn-like material, angora and even printed silks adding a note that more than harmonizes. In leathers, suede still leads in popularity, although other newer leathers are ultra-smart . . . trout leather, sharkskin, pigskin and a new grain that simulates tweed. Evening bags are still small and elaborate . . . of beads, sequins, rhinestones, of pastel shaded velvet, of metal cloth.

(Kaufmann's—Main Floor)

"Chicki" The New Chemise

The evening gowns from Paris often have the deep V in the back . . . and consequently require the backless chemise. "Chicki" comes to the rescue . . . most smartly! Fashioned of crepe de chine of very fine quality, with a low-cut bandeau top in front . . . long ribbon straps reaching to the waist in the back. "Chicki" chemise are exquisitely trimmed with lace motifs on the bodice . . . and lace or net edging on the scalloped bottom.

Other types of backless chemise of ninon trimmed in wide lace, tiny ribbon flowers, and soft pleats. They're worthy of the most precious gown.

Spring Hosiery Wardrobes Feature Sunburn Shades

Fashion deftly outlines the Spring hosiery wardrobe, pointing swiftly to this and this and this. For active or spectator sports wear she demands lisle or sheer wool in sunburn, or beige, indicating also that white wool is correct with heelless shoes in sports.

Even in the more formal pursuits, the influence of the new sunburn shades will be felt. At tea-time, lace clocks will be worn. For evening the deeper tones of beige and sunburn, in silk net and chiffon. With the modish black gown, one wears sheerest chiffon in either gunmetal or sunburn.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait · by Elenore MEHERIN

Meet Jerry, Snappy And Vivacious, In "Jerry"

eyes and the man stooping, his hand closing with caressing warmth on Marza's arm.

The girl, watching, drew in her breath with a sharp, smothered pain. Oh, this terrible, mysterious thing—LOVE! Wild, sweet bond drawing two people together with such overwhelming potence. Bringing that wistful note, that yearning imperious tone to the voices of men.

Would she ever know it—completely, utterly, madly? She closed her eyes. Presently a smile went lightly, gaily over her lips. Last spring she had been so sure of it—almost swooning with it. She remembered tears in Billy's eyes. How dear he was and how grown-up he seemed to her then.

When he got the new car for his eighteenth birthday the whole thing was settled. Fly away in this! They loved each other so. They couldn't wait. They wouldn't! Oh the hushed, exciting plans. Elope! Love—marry!

But it rained furiously that Friday night—a drenching rain. And Jerry was deep in a new book. So cozy and luxurious here in the big lounge by the fireplace.

"Listen," she phoned, "we can't run away tonight. Billy, dear, let's don't!

A staggered pause: "My God, Jerry, you can't mean this."

The girl burst into laughter. And suddenly it seemed ridiculous—rushing away on a stormy night.

For a silly thing like love! Getting tragic about it.

Billy came blazing up to the house, almost crying with his hurt pride and indignation.

"You've got to come," he ordered masterfully.

"And why do I got to?" asked the girl, who was a bit nervous and flippant.

"Good Lord, Jerry, are you going to get snooty about a serious thing like this? You love me—you vowed you love me!"

"I do! But do we need to rush out like a pair of drowned rats over it? Don't be silly and East Lynnish. You know I counted on a moonlit night. Be yourself and admit we'd have a heck of a time getting away with it tonight."

He swallowed a big gulp. "Jerry—play square. Is it only because of the rain?"

"Of course!" she laughed merrily, holding out to him a long fork with a toasted marshmallow. "Sit down. There's a love. Let's plan it all over and pick a summer's eve."

So that passed. Dear, lovable, cherub-faced Billy—his memory sweet.

Jerry King standing at the window tried to keep Billy from vanishing in the shadows. She didn't want the face that always followed. But it came with black seductive eyes and the trim Van Dyke beard. Dark and almost tragic that episode. She grew frightened thinking of him—Basil North, her teacher in the Life Class.

Their first meeting. Basil picking up her sketch, studying it. Then his hoarse, sweet voice: "Real talent here," and his marvelous eyes dwelling on her eager face, lured by its hint of wildness and the promise of her young, passionate mouth.

She dreamed of him that night—so dark, with that romance and melancholy.

Every girl falls in love with one Basil North or another before she is 20. He wasn't free, of course. And he couldn't get free. How pleadingly he had told all this.

Jerry pushed the hair from her ears. They were hot yet with the memory of Basil's words. Their long, burning conversations—the veiled, ardent proposals. How he longed and chafed and cursed the fate that kept them apart.

That mad, fervent day when he leaned over her shoulder, his black eyes soft, the silky beard brushing her cheek. She was sketching from life, the figure of a girl. Basil made a few strokes, correcting her drawing.

She was so tremblingly aware of his nearness she dared not raise her eyes. Only nodding when he said: "Wait for me, please!"

They drove in the park. Oh, that beautiful love of his—so tender, so tragic, so unseeking. When he paused suddenly in the midst of a fervid proposal and regarded her with dark, melancholy appeal, all of woman's flaming urge for sacrifice drove her. She ached with pity and dreamed of offering herself to his wounded heart.

It was right—inevitable. Marza had taught her this: "There is but one sin—to violate your own integrity. Do whatever you wish—whatever you are flamingly and completely wanting to do. But never do violence to your own spirit. Never allow anyone else to touch that inner being or to command it, and you will never be hurt, nor can anyone ever hurt you. Know yourself first—then be it to the thousandth degree every minute of your existence. This is the full life and the right life."

To the thousandth degree, the girl of 18 longed to make right the wrong life had done to Basil.

Saturday she worked at her sketching after everyone was gone. In the quiet room the beat of her heart a dark thunder. She kept waiting and waiting.

Nearly twilight when she carefully gathered her crayons and went softly to Basil's office. More and more slowly as she neared his door. Pushed it. Murmurs. Basil's hoarse, burning: "Dar'ing, how terrible, terrible! If I were free—"

A girl in Basil's arms.

Down the hall stealthily in shame and fury went Jerry King. Words echoing in a shabby disillusioning: words that had shaken almost to the roots her young, fiery heart. Spoken like a parrot's to another.

She read furiously far into that bitter night, storming and shamed.

She could see Basil North as he was now—with the knowing wrinkles about his eyes and the aging sparseness at his temples.

But she could not think of him without an inward tremor—a hot, half-terrified disturbance.

She walked swiftly across the room, shaking back her head, putting these brooding images from her. She didn't want this—this hot, smothering emotion a man like Basil North inspired.

This wasn't love—wasn't the divine, sweet rapture that makes the heart clamor to fling itself out, be hurt, be lost, melted in another's.

She would never be fooled by a Basil North again.

She was 19 and knew better. Nineteen now and filled with imperious, urgent hungers. Expecting great things from life. Adventure—love—achievement. Tremendous and stirring moments.

Not the paltry excitements of dancing parties and hectic weekends. Something titanic—swept with glory.

She sat very deep in her chair, stormily smoking. After all, what is right and what wrong? What joys should one seize and what leave alone?

Came a tap at the door.

"I'm not going, Bud. You needn't wait. I'll not get up and open it."

"Oh, please, Jerry! Just for a moment."

She read on. After five minutes the tapping repeated. This time the boyish plea: "Be a sport, Jerry! I've something to tell you. Something big."

"You're all wet, big boy!" But she went noiselessly and opened the door a crack. "Shoot!"

A youth about 22 grinned penitently. "Let me in, please, Jerry. Listen! you've got to come. Everything's hotsy-totsy tonight. And I'm going to be awfully good. Be your old sporty self and give me another chance."

She put her hands truculently on her shadowy hips and regarded him with eyes of blazing purple fire. "I don't mind being a sport, Bud Malone. But there's a limit. In the last four weeks I've spent $29 on taxis getting you home. I can't afford YOU!"

"I've sworn off, Jerry. Honestly."

He looked very penitent, very pleading, standing there with his head down, nervously rubbing the band of his hat.

She went up and put her hand on the lapel of his coat, saying with an eager sweetness: "But you ought to be ashamed to need booze. It's a terrible insult to your own vitality, if you need to be jazzed up with gin at the age of 20."

"I know—I'm not going to touch it any more. I don't like it. But everywhere you go, it's poured on you. I'm through."

At 11 o'clock a boy and a girl were going up the steps of a big white house. The boy lurched, pulled himself together. "I'm not drunk, Jer—honesh, I'm sober—"

"Then stand still. And give me your key."

He fumbled in one pocket after another—began all over. "Gosh I'll hava climb in the winner—"

Jerry King rang the bell long, witheringly. To the bland Chinese who answered she said: "Please see him safe to bed, Wong. And somebody ought to tell his fool of a father to get on the boat about it!"

Midnight. Marza moving softly about the room. In a dream. She came to the girl's bed, kissed the lips that were parted, fresh, dewily young.

Jerry lay very still, feigning sleep. Her heart pinched terribly.

Again and again before her went the noisy tumult of the recent hours. Bud drinking; face getting pasty; other faces smudged with red. Uninspiring faces. Nothing thrilling in this. Not the world one dreams about.

Deep in her thought—buried so deep she was vaguely aware of it—were other images. A song a dream, a lighted face. The face of a young man, strong, beautiful. Being taller than she and finer. Taking her hand and the two of them running onward together—onward and upward—the Man of Dreams.

She would never meet him—never in this shoddy world.

Suddenly she was sitting up with a start. Voices in the living room. Marza had gone back there. Many people there.

Out of the mingled sounds came suddenly a laugh, chuckling, throaty, sweet. Voice different from other voices, a hum in it, a deep secret hilarity.

She got up and stole to the door, pushing it ever so little. She picked him out easily—the strong lift of his chin, eyes and mouth eloquent with a hidden mirthfulness, the clean, breezy tan. A sun-god on Olympe might have this look of Saxon Rhodes.

"Well," said Heine Ross, "Is that you, Jerry, or a transparent ghost?"

The new man looked up, light, thrilling eyes, astonished as though she were indeed a slim, wee wraith.

Jerry laughed and pulled the negligee about her. She came paddling with bare feet across the room. She stopped directly in front of him, impudent—joyous. "I thought I was dreaming. You woke me up with your laugh."

"I'm very glad I did. Pleased to meet you. You're real, are you?"

"Are you—that's the question!"

Afterwards when she knew so well that Saxon Rhodes was real—painfully and terribly real—she could yet always vision him as he appeared this first, sweet startling night—laughing and with a mirth like a sun god about him.

CHAPTER II.

JERRY awakened with a drowsy, delicious feeling; a memory of something that had happened, exquisite, a song echoing.

Like once when she was little someone gave her a kitten. For weeks, even when she wasn't thinking about it, she felt a great happiness. She would stop and wonder what made her want to laugh. Oh, yes—the kitten.

FEAR TIDES TOOK BODY TO SEA

MELBOURNE, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Chief of Police J. R. Brannan, of Melbourne, stated this morning that cushions and a thermos bottle washed up during the night on the shore at a point about eight miles north of Sebastian Inlet had been definitely identified as the property of Harry Brooks, Ford pilot, whose plane nose-dived into the ocean off here Saturday.

These articles, discovered about six miles north of the place where the monoplane itself was beached by the waves yesterday, were of little assistance to searching parties seeking Brooks' body except to indicate the tides have swept all evidences of the body steadily southward.

High north to northwest winds along this stretch of coast today hampered activities of those looking for the body of Brooks.

CASSIE TURNER

"I killed him. Put me in jail." With these words Cassie Turner, Pit River Indian maid, confessed that she murdered Bob Declute, white man, after she had tried to place the blame on a Mexican known as "Chief." "He asked me to marry him and I said I wouldn't," the Indian girl said. "'Then, if you won't marry me, kill me,' Bob said. 'Shoot me through the heart.' I said, 'Bob, I can't shoot you,' and he said, 'Take another drink and you can.' I took another drink and shot him. I was drunk. We both drunk. We only playing. I no want to shoot Bob."

CAPTURE MONKEY-FACED OWL AT FREDERICKTOWN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 28.—A monkey-faced owl, a very rare species and one which old residents have not seen in Washington county for more than 50 years, was captured near Fredericktown. The owl is regarded as an unusually good specimen. It has a face typical of a monkey, with the beak of a parrot, brown plumage on the back and a gray breast speckled with brown. The bird has a wing spread of 42 inches. The owl since its capture has refused to eat and is extremely vicious. It will be turned over to the Pittsburgh Zoo.

WHY WE BEHAVE LIKE HUMAN BEINGS

—By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D.

Growth and Repair of Body Regulated By Glands, New Discoveries Show

The fascinating story of the infestation of the human body by enemy aliens formed yesterday's chapter of Author Dorsey's narrative of our life. Pasteur's tremendous discovery and the part it has played in our incessant war on germs was told. Epidemics and the immunity of humans to diseases caused by bacteria that have prodigious resisting powers to heat and cold are worth knowing about.

We Are Learning About Heredity

CHAPTER 17

WHILE life remains in the body, the duct glands furnish the necessary chemicals for heat and energy and for the preparation of materials for growth and repair. If they fail to supply fuel, the body dies; if they fail to furnish building material, the body stops growing. Let us assume that the duct glands do not fail.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

It then appears that the body which began as a fertilized ovum develops into a nine-pound infant in nine months. Why does it not develop into a 90-pound child in 90 months, or a 900-pound prodigy in 900 months? Even if it only kept up its first two years' rate-growth, it would weigh 500 pounds in 24 years. It does not grow so big. It stops. Sometimes too soon—it is dwarfed; sometimes not soon enough—it is gigantic, though rarely, if ever, surpassing the nine feet three inches of Machnow, the Russian. But it stops. Why?

Meanwhile the growing body keeps changing in size, shape, proportions. Certain parts or organs appear before others start to appear. For a while the brain grows faster than the motor mechanism; at other times the motor mechanism grows more rapidly. The teeth have their special periods for growth. The infant's thigh bone at birth has 2,000,000 bone-building cells. When that bone is a finished adult product it contains over 150,000,000 bone cells. Why stop at so few? How do the leg bones know when to stop growing longer, the skull bones to stop growing larger? Why does the body grow by fits and starts and finally seem to be complete? What regulates the growth of all these parts and of the body as a whole?

Learning About Sex

Why does the boy's voice begin to crack and his face, almost overnight as it were, begin to grow a beard where there was no sign of one? Is sex also, like growth and individuality, a whim of "heredity," or are our sex, individual traits and physical growth under the control of definite regulators? Fifty years from now we shall begin to know the details, but enough is now known of the ductless glands and their secretions to open up not only a new chapter of life, but new accounts with life. They regulate sex, rate of growth of tissues and organs, and consequently physical traits.

The secretions of ductless glands are discharged direct into the blood, hence they are also called glands of internal secretion, or endocrines (endon, within; krino, I separate). There are commonly said to be seven endocrines proper: tyroid, parathyroid, and thymus, in the neck; pituitary and pineal, in the center of the head; adrenals and spleen, in the abdomen. But it is not yet proved that the thymus, pineal and spleen are true glands. The liver, pancreas and sex glands also function as endocrines.

"Drug Store" Glands

Endocrine secretions are chemical in nature and are usually called hormones (exciters). They are also called autacoid substances; from acos, a remedy—they act like drugs. They are drugs, some of them of astounding potency. In fact, no man-made drugs are so powerful as some we make in our own drug-store glands.

Mere regulation is not, of course, confined to the secretions of glands. For example, the chief regulator of the respiratory system is carbon dioxide, given off by every cell of our body; thus liberated, it functions as a hormone or "exciter." But, as Abel puts it, the hormones actually known are definite and specifically acting indispensable chemical products which modify development and growth of other organs, especially during embryonic life, and the entire metabolism, including that of the nervous system, during adult life.

Then, too, there is a collective operation of the endocrines, as yet not definitely known, but summarized by Barker as follows:

Light on Heredity

More and more we are forced to realize that the general form and the external appearance of the human body depends to a large extent upon their functioning. Our stature, the kinds of faces we have, the length of our arms and legs, the shape of the pelvis, the color and consistency of our integument, the quantity and regional location of our fat, the amount and distribution of hair on our bodies, the tonicity of our muscles, the sound of the voice and the size of the larynx, the emotions to which our "exterieur" gives expression—all are to a certain extent conditioned by the productivity of our hormonopoietic glands. We are, in a sense, the beneficiaries and the victims of the chemical correlations of our endocrine organs.

In short, the discovery of the hormones opens up anew the whole conception of heredity. We can now say that men are alike because they inherit the same kind of blood and similar sets of glands to secrete hormones for the blood to carry; but that men differ because they do not meet the same physical and chemical conditions during life and as a consequence do not develop the same catalyzers, the same immunity agents, or the same regulating agents.

Sen. Robinson Tough but Fine, Says Will

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Feb. 28.—At the conventions pretty near every state will waste a complimentary vote on some useless native son. Of course, most of them will have to do so with a smile. But when the great old state of Arkansas shouts, "18 votes for Senator Joe Robinson," why, they won't have to apologize to nobody. Joe is for you or agin you, whichever you want. He'll play you poker or golf, kiss you or fight you. Whenever he makes a speech he makes you think he is going to bite you. He is tougher than a top sergeant, but a Senator and a statesman combined, a rare combination. The Democrats could nominate a lot worse and the chances are they will. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

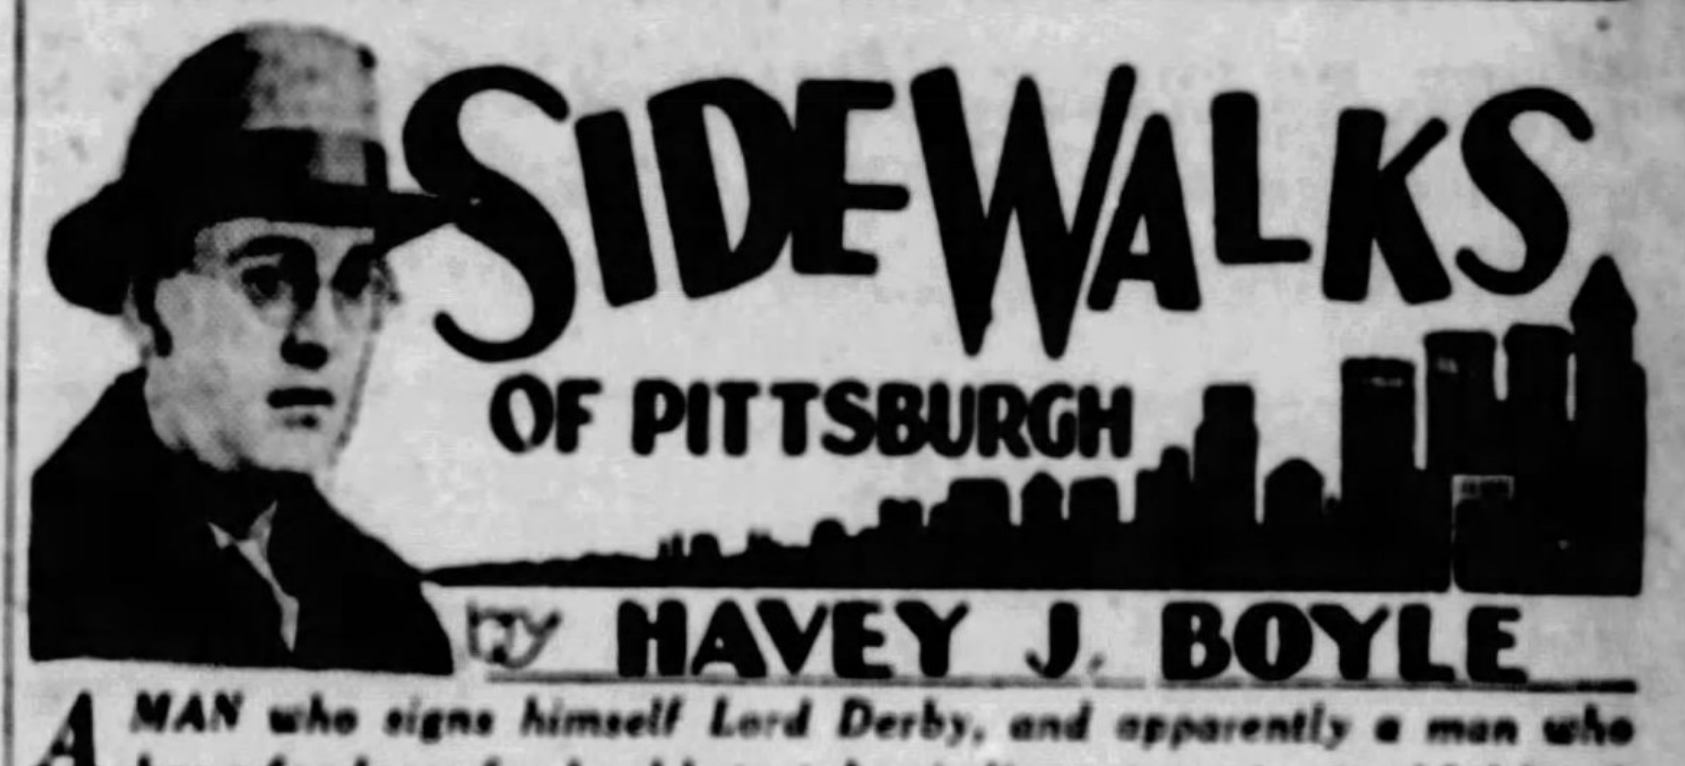
JOHNSTOWN PASTOR STRICKEN IN CHURCH

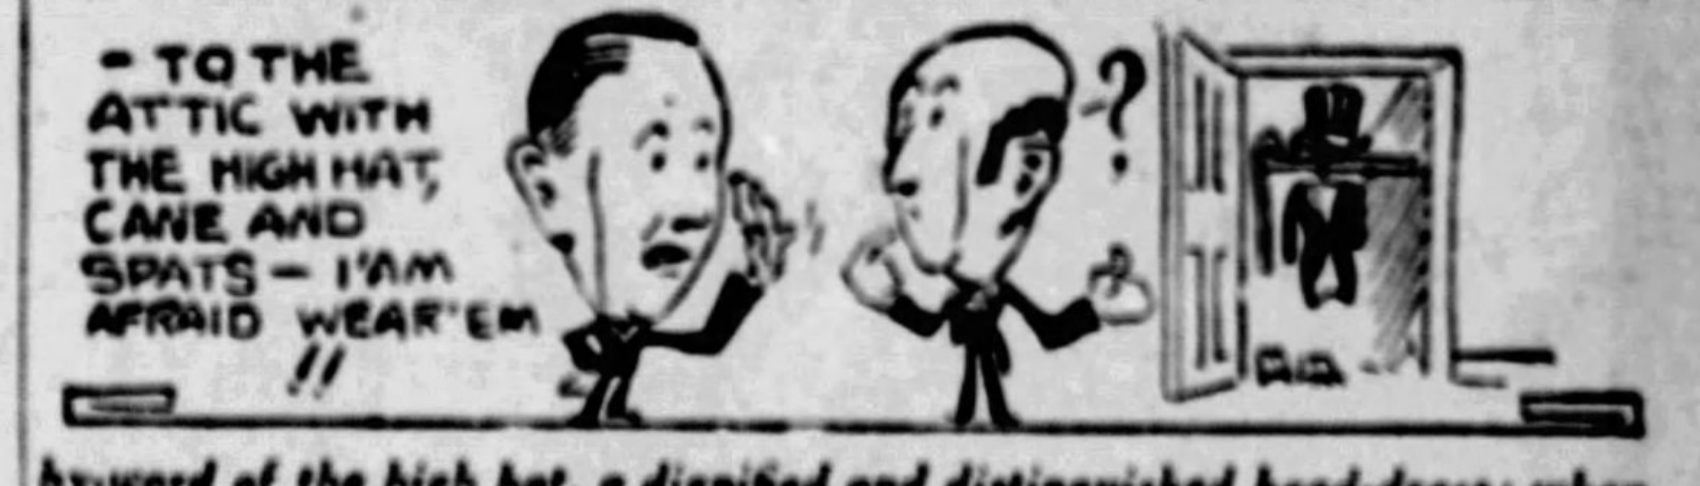
JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 28.—The Rev. Charles A. Strombom, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, taken suddenly ill while serving communion in his church, was reported as suffering from grip at Memorial Hospital.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

A MAN who signs himself Lord Derby, and apparently a man who has a fondness for hard hats, takes indignant pen in wrathful hand. He is not only a defender of the stiff derby, but he seems to have a longing for a grander, gaudier style of dress for men. He believes these days will be known as the "Timorous Twenties," proceeding: "Those days when men discarded their masculinity with their mustaches, aping the beardless faces of women; when men were too timid to wear spats, a useful and dressy bit of footwear; when men made a by-word of the high hat, a dignified and distinguished head-dress; when men threw away their frock coats, discarded their diamonds; put the walking stick in the attic along with the fancy vest and the elk-tooth watch charm and other things which, for generations, has distinguished man and woman. Instead of the smart cutaway and Prince Albert and striped trousers, with fancy waistcoats, men adopted a uniform—all suits alike, hats (or caps) alike, collars all alike—brains all alike."



—TO THE ATTIC WITH THE HIGH HAT, CANE AND SPATS—I'AM AFRAID WEAR'EM !!

WE'D like to see this fellow on parade, obviously a man who is suffering from suppressed desires in the way of jaunty apparel. Here is the way some future historian will write of the present times, thinks our correspondent:

"In the Timorous Twenties men all wore hats that were as slouchy as their thinking. They ha-haed and nudged each other in the ribs and made side-splitting remarks, the burden of which was 'the iron hat' whenever a headpiece of the derby type appeared. The most kindly view they took of the sight was that the poor chap with the iron hat had lost a wager, the idea that he was wearing a derby by choice being too appalling to be credible. Such thoughts were as standard and as parrot-pattern as their hats and clothes. Somebody said 'iron hat' and nobody out of 110,000,000 could think of another facetious simile."

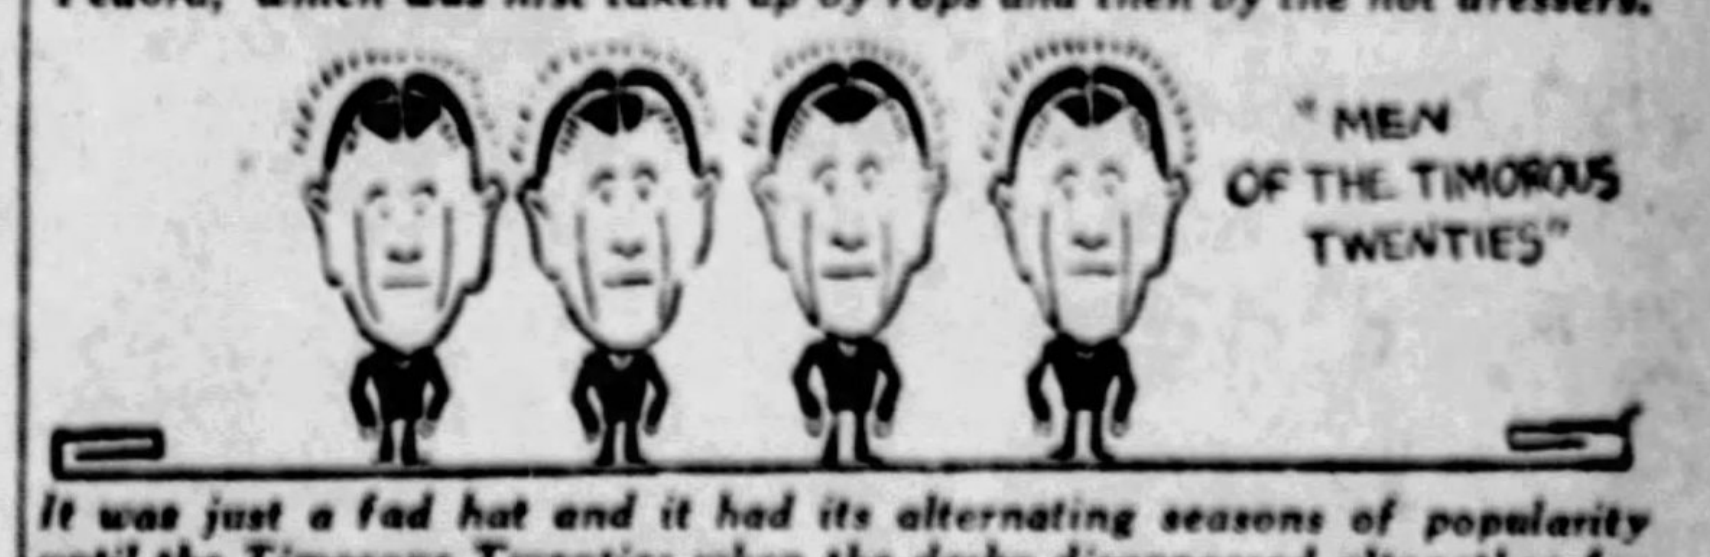
AFTER this we are half sorry we ever grew facetious about that boiler that Lord Derby is wearing. But our correspondent is not through yet. Hear him now:

"'These men of the Timorous Twenties never gave a thought to the fact that the hats they were wearing were as feminine as their hairless (and sometimes powdered) faces. Back in the eighties Victorien Sardou had written a play: 'Fedora,' in which the central character, feminine, wore a rather rakish hat. On the market came a hat, the 'Fedora,' which was first taken up by fops and then by the hot dressers.



"MEN OF THE TIMOROUS TWENTIES"

It was just a fad hat and it had its alternating seasons of popularity until the Timorous Twenties when the derby disappeared altogether for years as the sterner sex became more feminine. Poor souls! Wearing women's hats, abolishing their beards, afraid to take a cane out for a walk, shrinking from the kidding spats would bring, holding a diamond tie pin in the same regard as an onion, scorning chewing tobacco, spurning derbies, but varnishing their hair, pooh-poohing any attempt to be individual, but lining up morning and night for the parade of the wooden soldiers. Poor timid souls of the Timorous Twenties.'"

THIS is the most solid defense of the hard hat set forth. This may be the first real shot in the war to make the iron skimmer a heroic figure instead of having a comedy part in the sartorial cast of characters. Certainly, this correspondent is earnest in his defense of the boiler.

* * *

THE man, apparently, is determined that the boys who laughed the brown derby almost out of existence by offering it as a prize for all sorts of contests, will not carry their skullduggery further to make the respectable black bowler a back number. He sees the brown derby and the pearl gray derby lifeless, inert, and consequently helpless and so he brings a fevered pen to the embattled bulwarks to cast a spray on enemy attacks. He happens to be on the winning side just now, for in spite of perennial jokes about the tin skimmers they are as popular now as the blonde soprano at a stag banquet.

WOMAN CLAIMS MATE FLED WEDDING NIGHT

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 28.—Deserted on her wedding night was the fate of Marie F. Kimmel of Corry, Pa., who filed a divorce Monday against Harry C. Kimmel, whose present address is unknown to her. According to the petition, they were married April 12, 1926, and following the ceremony, the husband fled and she had not heard from him since. Three other divorce suits were filed, two charging indignities to the person, while the other charged desertion.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

PAIR FLEE AT SCREAMS OF ANOTHER

One woman was robbed by highwaymen in the city last night while the screams of another frightened away footpads who seized her. Miss Cora Rodgers of 640 Wandless street was robbed of her purse containing $12 by two thugs, one of whom was armed, at Negley avenue near Ellsworth avenue.

Screams of Miss Susanna Cole, of 16 Mackey street, frightened away two thugs who attempted to snatch her purse while she was walking in Forbes street near Halket street.

Two alleged pickpockets who are accused of attempting to steal the purse of a priest yesterday in Sixth avenue, are being held by city detectives pending a hearing today. They are Samuel Teko, of Philadelphia and Samuel Weiss, of Pittsburgh. Teko has a police record, according to Detectives William Bauer and James Stratton, who arrested the two.

TWO HANCOCK PUPILS GET LEGION AWARDS

Various posts of the American Legion in Allegheny county have completed the annual presentation of medal awards to honor pupils of local grade schools. The most recent presentation took place in the Hancock school, the honor students being Thomas Deniamo, 72 Chatham street, and Margaret Simon, 1017 Bustrick way. Oscar I. Harter of City Post, made the presentation. Miss Jessie H. Hardie, school principal, commended the legion for their work, in a letter to Dr. Carl E. McKee, county chairman of the organization.

America's Stage Favorite

"Good old Luckies! We've been pals for years. And like an old friend they treat me well. No irritation to my throat and no coughing. And I appreciate Lucky Strike—the full body tobacco with the toasted flavor that's been the same since that day we met."

Pat Has Typhoid Fever; Lily Helps to Nurse Him

CHAPTER LXIV.

PAT'S mother sniffed, and her blue eyes snapped.

"You know we don't want you here," she said, and her voice cut like a knife. "You're not Pat's wife any longer, and you haven't any more right to be in this house than a perfect stranger would have. I can't put you out, but I'm asking you to leave, and I mean it."

Lily saw that she did. Her lips came tight together and she nodded her head vigorously with every word that she spoke.

But Lily was just as firm and just as decided as she was. So she gave her back look for look, and stood her ground. "I'm not going," she answered.

She wasn't. Wild horses could not have dragged her out of the brown-shuttered house that morning. She was there, and she was going to stay there until Pat was better. . . . It was as plain and simple as that.

But why she wanted to be there was not so clear and simple to her. She was through with Pat and she knew only too well that he was through with her—all through with her.

She was going to divorce him, and she was going to marry Staley Drummond and live luxuriously forever after. And Pat probably would marry Elizabeth Ertz as soon as he was able to, and they would live together forever after, too.

"However, he's my husband until that divorce is granted," Lily thought, as she stood there in the bright warm kitchen, with its white-clothed table, its shining pans, its spotless floor and snowy sash curtains.

"I don't know why I want to stay," she said aloud to his mother after a moment of deep thought. "I suppose it's because I loved him so much for a while and I keep remembering that part of our lives. The first part—the part when we really loved each other. You know, people always remember the pleasant things and forget the others."

"Love—nonsense!" Pat's mother spoke with scorn, turning back to the pancake batter she was mixing at one side of the stove. "Don't talk to me about love, young woman. You don't know the meaning of it—"

She set down her pan and spoon for a minute, and held out her small hands to Lily. They were brown and hard and misshapen with years and years of work.

"Look at those," she said jerkily. "That's love for you! When you work your fingers to the bone for a man and for his kids—that's love, not the silly, moony kind of love you had for Pat for a couple of months! It isn't loving a man to let him march out to work without a bite of hot breakfast in his stomach, let me tell you! It isn't love to cheat and carry on with another man behind his back and take clothes and things from him! Those things aren't love. They're deviltry and laziness, that's what they are!"

She gave a deep nod of her small, shining head as if she found great satisfaction in speaking her mind at last to Lily about these things.

The door behind her opened and The Ertz stepped into the room, her face pale-gray above the whiteness of her uniform. There were shadows under her eyes and wrinkles at the corners of them.

Lily found herself looking at the wrinkles with a certain relief—The Ertz wasn't very attractive, was she? And she certainly was no longer young—at least not so young as she once was. . . . Well, just let Pat marry her when he was better! Just let him!

"There'll be times when he'll wish it was I instead of her, sitting across the dinner table from him," she said to herself, conscious of her own smooth, fresh beauty in comparison with The Ertz's colorlessness. "She may make him a fine wife, but she'll never thrill him the way I used to."

Her eyes followed the little nurse as she filled a teakettle and set it on the stove.

"Couldn't I do something to help?" she asked timidly. "Pat's mother says I mustn't stay, but I'm going to. And I'll feel better about staying if I can help a little."

The Ertz turned around from the stove and gave her a long look from her tired blue eyes. She seemed to be doing some very hard thinking, for she frowned in a puzzled, uncertain way.

"Why, I don't know what there is for you to do," she answered, after a pause. "Mrs. France and Florence and I are going to take turns looking after him." She said "him" instead of "Pat," as if there were only one man in the world, so far as she was concerned.

Then she turned her back upon Lily and walked over to the sink, where she emptied out a hot water bottle. She dried the top of it very carefully with a dish towel, and all the time she was doing it she frowned in that puzzled way, as if she were wondering what Lily was doing in that house at all.

"The doctor is sure it's typhoid?" Mrs. France asked, presently, stirring up the frothy yellow batter for her pancakes and dropping a tablespoonful of it into a sizzling pan.

The Ertz nodded. "He thinks so. He's coming again at 10 o'clock," she said. "I shall have to have some turpentine for stupes. Is there any in the house?"

Mrs. France shook her head. "Not a drop," she answered. "But I can send for some—"

"Let me get it! Please!" Lily broke in eagerly, and in a flash she was out of the kitchen. Then she ran back to the door. "How much do you want?"

The Ertz told her, and once more she was gone. She climbed into her father's car that stood before the house where she had left it, and tore down the humble street with a roar and a rush.

That trip was the beginning of long, long service for Pat.

He did have typhoid fever, and for weeks and weeks he was in the state that doctors call "the typhoid state"—not quite conscious and not quite unconscious.

The only person he ever asked for was The Ertz. Day and night he called thickly and drowsily for her, if she so much as stepped out into the hall beyond his room. Day and night Lily could hear him: "Elizabeth! Elizabeth!"

She, herself, never went into the room.

Sometimes she stood in the doorway and looked down at his flushed face and damp hair on the tossed pillows. He did not look like Pat, but like some stranger, with his features sharpened by the fever and his unshaved cheeks and chin.

She had no wish to go any nearer to him. He didn't want her, anyway, with his insistent call for Elizabeth Ertz.

At first she and Lily had been polite enemies, giving each other short but courteous replies, helping each other whenever they could, but watching each other every moment.

Then, as one week and then another slipped past, they became almost friendly. . . . The world of Staley Drummond and divorces and jealousies and gossip seemed to have fallen away from them, and the only reality was this small, white room, where the man they both loved, in their own way, lay fighting for his life.

Lily learned all kinds of things about that fight. She learned about "step-ladder temperatures" and ice bags and how to fill them properly. She learned how to wash clinical thermometers, and the quickest way to dissolve baking soda in hot water.

And she learned other things, too. She learned how to pretend that she was not wanted in the house, and how to be more honest than she ever had been in her life before.

She had to be honest with Staley. Having forgotten to mail him the letter she had written to him on the night she came to the France household, she wrote him another—and a much more truthful one—two weeks later

"I know you think I'm out of my mind to stay here where I'm not wanted," she closed it, "or else you think I'm still in love with Pat and expect to live him with again if he gets better. But neither of those things are true. I came here because Pat once belonged to me, and it made me unhappy to think of him dying, or at least very sick, with me staying away and apparently not caring whether he lived or died.

"Now that I'm here, I stay because I really am of some use, helping out this nurse that Pat's so crazy about. He calls her night and day in his delirium, and he certainly seems to be wild about her. So don't think I'm having a sentimental time of it. I'm not. I'm working hard, but at least if anything dreadful does happen people can't throw it up to me that I let my husband die without raising a finger to help keep him alive, or that I stayed away from him when he was desperately ill.

"Better hold up the divorce case for a while until he is better, don't you think? It would not look so well to divorce a man on his death-bed. And please don't be cross with me, but come some afternoon and take me for a drive. I need the air.

"Affectionately yours,
"LILY."

SEE FIRE HAZARD IN STOVE POLISH

Stove polish is to be investigated by the Department of Public Safety.

Following reports that a number of explosions and fires have been caused by inflammable stove polish, a resolution ordering the department to make a thorough investigation was presented to Council by John S. Herron.

"We stopped the sale of fireworks as a safety measure," he remarked, "I suppose we have the power to protect housewives if dangerous stove polish is being sold."

Madge Announces to Dicky the Guest's Arrival and With Irritating Results

"YOU'RE a complete first-aid kit, all by yourself," I told Lillian gratefully at her promise to engage the attention of Dicky and his mother while I talked to Philip Veritzen about the invitation to dinner I had given his son, Noel. And, indeed, I knew that without her aid I should have little chance of speaking to my employer without the embarrassment of listeners.

"'Done Up in a Neat Package Always Ready for Emergencies,'" she quoted laughingly, stressing each word. "But I won't be ready unless I stop gabbing with you and get dressed."

She hurried out of the room, and with the sudden remembrance of something I had omitted, I followed her into the hall, then went to Dicky's room and knocked, giving, from force of habit, the signal which for years we had used at each other's doors.

I heard a muttered impatient exclamation and guessed that I had committed that henious crime against masculine comfort, an interruption while shaving. Then he opened the door and the traces of lather on his face confirmed my guess.

"Well?" His voice held an upward inflection particularly obnoxious to me.

"I am sorry to disturb you," I said coldly. "But I thought you would wish to know that Mr. Veritzen is in father's room. I told him you would be down as soon as you were dressed."

"You have another think coming," he retorted crossly. "I don't wish to know anything about anybody. But I'll go in and hold his hand and arrange his toupee as soon as I'm dressed myself."

I was too annoyed for mirth, but I found myself smiling nevertheless. He knows perfectly well that Mr. Veritzen's striking silvered hair is his own, and his comment was so childishly spiteful as to be ludicrous.

"I am sure he will enjoy both attentions," I said with carefully assumed meekness, closing the door as I spoke, and hurrying down the corridor to my mother-in-law's room. I knew that she would be seriously offended if I did not stop to offer her assistance in the last touches of her dressing.

She was frowning as I entered, and her hands were fumbling helplessly at the waist fastenings of her old-fashioned but beautiful gray silk gown. Mother Graham has not materially changed her style of gowning in 20 years, except to shorten her skirts so that they do not trail upon the steps as she goes down them. And as I faced her disapproving eyes, I made the mental comment, not for the first time, that she fitted the old-time word-limning of an arrogant duchess, which novelists were wont to portray.

"You've certainly taken your time about coming to help me," she said peevishly. "You know I never can get these waist fastenings by myself."

"I'm sorry, Mother," I said, pinning my faith to the Scriptural adage concerning a soft answer, and stooping to adjust the refractory fastenings. "I barely got dressed myself in time to receive Lillian, Marion and Mr. Veritzen. Besides, I thought Katherine would—"

"She did," Mother Graham interrupted tartly. "But her fingers are all thumbs. Besides, she isn't used to these hooks, and you are."

I was glad that my bent head enabled me to hide a smile at her absurd criticism of Katherine, whose professional training has given super skill and deftness to her hands. But there was tenderness mingled with my amusement, for I realized that the roots of my captious mother-in-law's preference for my ministrations lay in a very real and gratifying affection for me. It was an ironical twist of Fate, I thought bitterly, that I should have won the love of my husband's mother, at first so hostile to me, while letting slip the wild adoration which Dickey once had given me.

It's Easy to Lose Fat

Millions Are Telling About It

A great number of slender women are telling this story to others. They have done so for two decades. Now you see the results in every circle. Note how slenderness prevails. Excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was.

The story is this: "I took Marmola prescription tablets—four a day. No abnormal exercise or diet was required. New beauty came, new health and vitality. I ceased them when my weight came down to normal. Now I take Marmola only when I start to gain again."

Marmola contains a scientific discovery, based on wide research and thousands of experiments. Men thus found a substance which in the body turns food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat.

Marmola supplies that substance, plus other helps. The complete prescription is in every box, also the reasons for results. Thus you may know just why the good comes, and have no fear of harm.

Marmola has for 20 years brought priceless benefits to people over-fat. Those people have told the results to others, and the use has spread. Millions of boxes have been used to contribute to the slender figures of today.

Go try it for a little time and watch how the fat disappears. Then tell others about it, in kindness to your friends. It means a great deal to many. Go order before you forget it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

TO THE PUBLIC

As the actions and pronouncements of the visiting Senate Committee seem to stamp it as a prejudiced body, we are taking this means of telling the essential facts because neither that committee nor the newspapers seem willing to present both sides of the question.

THE SO-CALLED JACKSONVILLE AGREEMENT

The Senators admitted publicly that they had never read the so-called Jacksonville Agreement

At Pricedale on Saturday, February 25th, members of the senate committee asked President Morrow of this company when and why we "broke the Jacksonville agreement." When he answered that we did not break the agreement, Senators Gooding, Wheeler and Wagner argued that we had done so. When Mr. Morrow asked them if they had ever read that document, they all admitted publicly that they had never read the so-called Jacksonville agreement, but nevertheless they had already made up their minds that this company was guilty of abrogating that agreement.

This company did not break the Jacksonville Agreement

The truth is that this company did not break the so-called Jacksonville agreement. It did break with the United Mine Workers and start up it's mines open shop. But under the so-called Jacksonville agreement it had a perfect legal and moral right to take that action.

We did not bind ourselves even to employ union miners

Under the Jacksonville arrangement this company and other Pittsburgh district coal companies did not bind themselves to run "closed shop" mines. They did not bind themselves even to employ union miners. At the very time that agreement was made, this company and others here were employing non-union men along with union men. The union officials knew that to be the case, for they furnished the coal companies the names of their members from whom union dues were to be "checked off" by the operators and paid over to these officials. Such dues were collected only from the men so listed and not from the other workers, who did not belong to the union.

No obligation to operate mines

All that this company and other companies here bound themselves to do at Jacksonville was to pay the scale of wages there set forth to members of the United Mine Workers of America only so long as they employed members of that organization. But they did not obligate themselves to run their mines a single day subject to the union if they saw fit not to do so.

Many union miners living in our company houses worked in competing non-union mines

On their side, the United Mine Workers of America officials at Jacksonville did not bind their members in Western Pennsylvania to work only in union mines nor only at the scale there fixed. In fact, in 1924 and 1925 many union miners who lived in our company houses did work in adjacent non-union mines at the lower non-union wage scale and thereby helped our non-union competitors to undersell us, take our business away and shut down our mines which were then trying to pay the union scale.

Those union miners were not breaking the Jacksonville agreement when they did this. That was their right under that agreement.

We were doing only what we had a legal and moral right to do

Similarly, when we reopened our mines "open shop" at the petition of former union employees of ours we were not breaking the Jacksonville agreement. We were doing only what we had a legal and moral right to do. Had this not been true, the United Mine Workers of America could have gone into court and enjoined us.

It was only after this absolute refusal

Everyone should understand that before breaking with the United Mine Workers of America this company did all that it could do to get President Lewis of that organization to modify the excessively high wage scale of the Jacksonville agreement so that this company could continue to operate its mines with union labor and still compete with lower wage scale non-union operations. It was only after the absolute refusal of the union officials even to call a conference to discuss modification, and after further loss of business to non-union competitors, that the company exercised its right to start its mines open shop.

Fairness and justice demand that both sides of this question be presented.

TITLE SERIES OPENS TODAY

Fifth Avenue, Section I victors, and Allegheny, champs of Section II of the City League, will open their battle for the league honors this afternoon, meeting out in the Pitt Stadium in the first of a three-game series.

Fifth clinched its title last Saturday by downing South High in the Market House, while Allegheny sewed up matters in the other city section by topping Langley Friday.

Both teams had to wait until the final games of the year before they could officially claim their titles. The schedules of both have been difficult, with Schenley furnishing the chief opposition for Fifth and South Hills causing Allegheny much worry.

Cuyler to Bat Third in Cub Lineup

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Kiki Cuyler's penchant for batting in third place—a batting complex which was generally blamed for his difficulties with Manager Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh Pirates last year—is to be gratified by his new owners, the Chicago Cubs.

Cuyler came to the Bruins with the same batting order desire, and Manager Joe McCarthy found it fitted well with his own plans. Woody English will take Sparky Adams' place at the top of the list, with Freddy Maguire, acquired from Toledo, hitting second. Then comes Cuyler, backed by two other Big Berthas of the Cub attacking strength — Hack Wilson and Riggs Stephenson.

Cuyler, Wilson and Stephenson bat right handed, but a trio of left-side hitters are available in their place if necessary—Heathcote, Webb and Joe Kelly.

MELLO DENIES FOULING ACE

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Reports current in boxing circles today that Al Mello would be suspended for six months for fouling Ace Hudkins in the fourth round of their bout before a capacity crowd here last night were met by statements from members of the boxing commission that nothing could be decided until the commission meets again—probably in two or three days.

Mello, who was whipped by the Nebraskan Wildcat last June in New York, appeared to be staging a "comeback" last night. The Lowell boxer was battling in a savage, aggressive manner and appeared to have the advantage in the first three rounds. Suddenly in the fourth he began driving with swift rights and lefts at Hudkins. Then came the foul blow that floored the Wildcat. He landed in the ring in a sitting position. Mello, starting for his corner, whirled in midring as he heard the words "foul" from the referee.

"No, no, it was fair!" Mello shouted.

DeMarco Is Latest Harmon Victim

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

CHALK up Victory No. 3 of the season for Willie Harmon of New York over Pittsburgh fighters.

Saylor-Zivic-DeMarco. That's the order. DeMarco joined the Fellows-Who-Have-Been-Beaten-by-Harmon Club in the Motor Square ring last night before the largest crowd of the season there.

Willie Harmon.

It wasn't much of a fight. Rounds one and eight were about even and Harmon took the others. There were no knockdowns and the only damage done was to the ribs on DeMarco's left side, where Harmon hammered away with his right fist every time he could get that arm disengaged from Cuddy's locking-up embrace, which wasn't as often as against Saylor and Zivic.

Cuddy went into the ring with the best intentions in the world of halting the winning streak of the machine-like, flat-nosed and fearsome-looking Harmon, but it simply wasn't in the wood for him to succeed. He tried to box at the start, but Harmon ended that by sending a hard right to the body and then one to the head. Then the boxing was off and it became a hauling and mauling match. Just before the end of the round, Cuddy rushed Harmon to the ropes, and, in breaking from a clinch, pushed Willie back so forcibly that the latter tumbled through onto the platform outside the ring on the press table side.

HARMON DRAWS BLOOD

Harmon started off with right, left and right to the head in the second round and won DeMarco's respect with the solidity of the blows. Cuddy turned to stabbing and moving about and was out-

O. K. DECISION BOUTS IN N. J.

By Universal Service.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—The Senate has passed the Altman bill permitting 15-round decision boxing bouts in New Jersey.

The House of Assembly had already passed this bill, and it is understood the Governor will sign it without reservation.

The bill provides for 15-round bouts at the discretion of the state boxing commissioner, at present Newton A. K. Bugbee, but also provides that all championship bouts shall be 15 rounds in length and to a decision.

The previous limit was 12 rounds, and no decision was allowed under any circumstances.

Joseph Altman of Atlantic City introduced the bill in the lower House at the beginning of the present session, and it passed easily. In the Senate, however, it was laid over when it came up for vote last week and was passed yesterday after it was apparently defeated.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—Controversy over the world's lightweight championship boxing match, involving the champion, Sammy Mandell, and the challenger, Jimmy McLarnin, between Jim Mullen and Tex Rickard, promotional rivals, continues to rage today.

Rickard, in New York, appears to have McLarnin signed up until June, but he hasn't signed Mandell. Mullen, on the other hand, has Mandell signed, and the lightweight champion has posted a forfeit of $5,000 with the Illinois Commission binding him to go through with the match.

SHOTS and PASSES

by Julius Levin

ONE of the most successful industrial basketball teams operating in this section is the Duquesne Light quintet of the Commercial-Industrial League.

The Duquesne Light passers, last year's champions of the Commercial-Industrial League, have played a total of 27 games during the last two seasons and boast 23 victories, suffering only four reverses.

Composed entirely of employes of the Duquesne Light Company this team has shown sufficient form to stamp it as one of the best in this section of the state.

Only two teams boast victories over the C. & I. League champions, Book Shoe, no longer in existence, and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, a team that turned the trick three times.

During the last two years the Duquesne Light team has scored 1,274 points to its opponents 960. This season the Light passers have suffered only two defeats, both at the hands of Pittsburgh & Lake Erie in the C. & I. League by scores of 28 to 27 and 45 to 44.

FINISHING the first-half of the C. & I. League schedule in a tie with Reliance Life, the Duquesne Light team has an excellent chance of retaining its laurels this winter. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie is setting the pace in the second round, but Duquesne Light still has a good chance to overtake the railroaders.

The C. & I. League does not confine its activities to the industrial loop, having scored victories over some of the strongest professional clubs in this section. Including among the Duquesne Light victims are Colfax, Allegheny County Indutsrial League, and St. Joseph's, a member of the Allegheny County League last season.

CONTRIBUTING to Duquesne Light's success in local basketball circles are some of the best stars engaged in the sport hereabouts. Among the prominent members of the team are Dusty Rhodes, former captain of the Allegheny College quintet; Clarence Staiger, former Heinz House star; Eddie Kitzel, one-time Heinz House and Goslin forward; Murray Gibson, last year with the Goldensons; Wheezy Davis, former Schwartz Valley regular; Eddie Kubiak, of St. Josephs and Broadway fame; Cliff McCracken, of Sharpsburg; Harry Longmore and Robert Robertson.

To date this team has scored four victories over Reliance Life, three over Liberty Baking, three over Carnegie Steel, three over Dravo, two over Kaufmann's two over Hornes and two over Pittsburgh Railways, all members of the Commercial-Industrial League.

MR. AND MRS. DREYFUSS GO WEST TOMORROW

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh baseball club, accompanied by Mrs. Dreyfuss, will leave tomorrow morning for Paso Robles, Cal., to watch his Pirates in training. After spending a week on the scene of the Buccaneers' practice work, Mr. and Mrs. Dreyfuss will visit Pasadena, Los Angeles and other points along the Pacific coast.

U. P. QUINT CAN CINCH TITLE BY VICTORY

By JESS CARVER.

THE once again Dubious Dukes of Duquesne, who have been flipping and flopping through a very ordinary basketball season, beset on either hand by defeat will make one last supreme effort to regain some standing in the tri-state conference and in the district as a whole by defeating the crack Westminster College varsity at New Wilmington tonight.

John Lawther.

This game means much to both teams. To the United Presbyterians it means the final clinching of the conference title, two victories in a single year over the Dukes and a continuance of a fine winning streak, which has reached the thirteenth mile post to date.

To the Dukes a victory will mean partially atonement for the licking suffered here early in the year, and a chance to clinch second place by defeating Geneva here Thursday night. It will also restore to the local varsity a fighting chance to eventually tie with Westminster for top honors, for should Geneva and Thiel, the remaining Westminster opponents also knock the U. P.'s off, then both they and Chick Davies' team would finish with seven games won and three lost apiece.

To beat Westminster tonight, however, Duquesne will have to play better basketball than the team has played at any time this season. A single mistake will prove costly, for Westminster has one of the best college teams that ever cavorted on tri-state floors, and is probably the nearest in class to Pitt. And that is saying a lot.

BOXING NOTES

Gorgary and others. Up in Boston they are talking of matching him with Leo Lomski. He is 22 years old and has been boxing only two years.

Pittsburgh district boxers had a busy time of it last night, fighting in many rings aside from Motor Square Garden. Tommy Crowley lost to Ray Miller in a four-round bout in Chicago; Patsy Gallagher defeated Andy Stahura in eight rounds and Mickey Hart won over Georgie Ross in six rounds at East Liverpool, O.; Phil Scello defeated Georgia Peck in 10 rounds at Altoona; Mucco Polo won from Gus Berger in six rounds in New York; Johnny Shupack was the winner over Teddy Welch in 10 rounds at Oil City; Steve O'Malley bested Sig Keppen in 10 rounds, Nick Susnell outboxed Neal Brogan in eight rounds and Young Radley was knocked out in the first round by Young Sweeney at Steubenville; Johnny Dunn defeated Danny Dempsey in eight rounds at Scranton and Johnny Vitio won in six rounds over Tony Casper at New Castle.

George Evans, Andy Iovino, Buck McTiernan and Bob Moody, local amateur boxers, will compete in a tournament in Cleveland's public hall tonight.

Billy Petrolla boxes Rusty Jones, an old rival, in a return bout of 10 rounds at Bismarck, N. D., tonight.

Johnny Urban, local light-heavyweight, who makes his headquarters in New York, boxes K. O. Christner, of Akron, tomorrow night.

Jack McVey and Lou Scozza box the 10-round main bout of a show in Buffalo Friday night.

Two interesting sights at Motor Square Garden last night: Red Mason, just reinstated following a long suspension, wearing a purple sweater in the corners of Young Rudy and Cuddy DeMarco, and Jack Katkish, rugged welterweight mixer, wearing heavy-rimmed glasses as he gives the fights the double-o from a second row seat at the ringside.

Young Saylor of Charleroi and Joey LaGrey will meet in the windup at Johnstown next Monday night. Ray Fay and Ike MacFowler are paired for the semi-final. Saylor, who has lost only one bout against Willie Harmon, wants to get another windup shot at the Garden here against a good welter.

Midget Wolgast has turned down an offer to meet Willie Davies in a return bout here one week from next Monday. He is going to Hot Springs to rest up.

Andy Stahura and Joe Birene have been matched for the 10-round windup at Washington, Pa., next Monday night.

FIGHT

punched in the round. Willie drew blood from Cuddy's mouth in the next session, and the fourth round was messy, with Harmon's work inside giving him the edge. The crowd booed for more action at this stage.

DeMarco put on a flash of his real fighting form for a few moments to start the fifth round, but quickly subsided and was outscored again. In the sixth, Willie shook up Cuddy with a right to the head and followed with a left that made Cuddy wag his noble dome to clear away the cobwebs. Harmon played for the body in the seventh round, in which Cuddy was particularly ineffective, and the eighth was loaded with rough fireworks. Everything went. Harmon, angered because Cuddy was hitting him on the breaks, refused to pull out of the clinches, and Cuddy dragged him around and cuffed him to the head with one arm free. The entire session was about one degree removed from an alley brawl. However, Harmon managed to even up the honors with his spasmodic pounding of Cuddy's ribs on the left side. And, brother, when Willie hits 'em there, he HITS.

Harmon hammered the body hard in the ninth and outfought Cuddy in the tenth, during which round Cuddy once dropped down during an exchange in Harmon's corner.

The judges and referee were unanimous in their verdict for Harmon, who weighed 145½ pounds to DeMarco's 143¾, at 3 p. m.

Young Rudy and Harry Taylor put on another young riot in the eight-round semi-final, with Harry tiring under the hot pace and taking quite a slugging in the latter rounds. In fact, he had a rough voyage throughout. Rudy nailed him on the chin along the ropes in the first few seconds of the fight and Taylor had all he could do to shake off the effects, but he did so and came back to win the second round. The third went to Rudy and the fourth to Taylor, although he had his right eye cut in this frame. The fifth round was even and the last three belonged to Rudy by wide margins. The main-bouters were in a tough spot following this exciting mill. Rudy weighed 127 pounds and Taylor 140. It was their 'steenth meeting.

Jess Hoak of McKeesport, 133¾, a free and easy swinger if ever there was one, threw too many punches for Jackie Murray, Negro, of Center avenue, 139½, and romped off with the decision in the six-round second bout.

Johnny Riley of Homestead was refused permission to box after he had weighed in in the afternoon for the opening bout, because of a leg disability, which did not prevent him from beating Eddie Jiggers in the same ring last week. Dave (Mule) Brown, Negro, of Philadelphia, was substituted for him and knocked out Danny Stewart, Negro, of Wylie avenue, in the second round after a hard bout up to that point. A corking right to the chin spilled Stewart and he got up at the count of six, went down again and took no count and then visited the canvas a third time, whereupon Referee Joe Keally called a halt. Stewart weighed 136½ pounds and Brown 141.

Keally and Red Robinson divided the refereeing and Frank (Bull) Brown and Jim McLaughlin were the judges. A. C. Couch was at the bell.

FITZGERALD TO JOIN NEWARK BALL CLUB

Jeff Fitzgerald, promising young left-hand pitcher of Overbrook, whose fine showing in interscholastic and sandlot ball led to his being signed for a tryout this spring with the Newark (N. J.) International League club, managed by Walter Johnson, will leave tonight to join his team at the training quarters in St. Augustine, Fla.

Fitzgerald first attracted attention while pitching for Union High School of Knoxville. Last year he hurled for the Homewood club and also for the Twin Cities team of the Eastern Ohio League. He received an offer from the St. Paul club of the American Association in the fall, but after going to Columbus, O., to talk the matter over with the management of the Saints he decided to pass up the proposal and signed with Newark instead.

Jeff is a brother of Hughey Fitzgerald, who pitched for Jeannette last season.

a last minute rush of fight fanciers.

A flood of Paulino money, coming from Spanish admirers in Los Angeles, forced the odds to 10 to 5, with Godfrey favorite. The possibility that the men may enter the ring equal choices is not denied.

Final instructions will be given the men by Referee George Blake at weighing-in time today. Godfrey has trained hard for the bout. He will probably enter the ring at 230 pounds with the Basque some 35 pounds lighter.

"I expect to stop Paulino in one round," Godfrey claims. "I will put him out with a punch if I can. If he is too tough for one punch, others will follow and I will get him early."

Uzcudun, on the other hand, is just as confident as the black.

BEAVER FALLS ELKS TO SUPPORT NINE

BEAVER FALLS, Feb. 28.—The Beaver Falls Elks will be on the baseball field next summer with a fast semi-pro team. This has been definitely settled with the decision of the local lodge to support a team and the formation of an organization to direct the affairs of the club. The Elks will represent both Beaver Falls and Youngstown in the O. & P. League, playing at the Ohio city on Sundays.

Ed Harvey, who has piloted the Elks for the past two years, again will be at the helm as manager

RANDALL GETS O. K.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Roy (Red) Randall, captain of the 1927 Brown University football team and one of the famous "iron men," has been reinstated as a student in good standing at Brown. Randall was acquitted of a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor by a jury a short time ago.

TRAYNOR PARTY TO ARRIVE TODAY

the full squad will be put through the drill tomorrow. The entire regular infield and several outfielders are included in Pie's gang. The travelers are due in Los Angeles this morning. A quick connection will be made at that point and the journey to Paso Robles resumed.

The two sessions on the card for today will be flavored with batting and practice on the infield. The early arrival of Joe Harris, Joe Cronin, Dick Bartell and the Waner boys has given much snap to the camp in general.

With the five players mentioned in the limelight the two drills of yesterday topped everything that has been done since the arrival here. The whole tone of the camp has changed and there will be no more dull times.

A batting practice that continued for almost an hour was the distinctive feature of the afternoon excitement. Although the fences here are something like 400 feet from the home plate, the batters were able to rattle drives off the boards even if they were unable to clear the ramparts. Harris, Pete Scott, Paul Waner, Cronin and Claude Linton were the heavy sticksmiths of the afternoon.

Bush used five "hooligan" pitchers in the batting bee. They worked in 10-minute relays in this order—Walsh, Bartholomew, Spencer, Tauscher and Lindsey. All but Bartholomew are righthanders. Hemsley, Haefner and Linton took turns under the bat.

To give protection to the feet and legs of the practice pitchers, Manager Bush had a small net erected in front of the mound. The pitchers are generally able to cuff down any kind of a drive that comes to them above the knees, but the smashes below this point of the body are very hard to gauge. Figuring that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, Donie had the groundkeepers to construct the protective fence.

Both the morning and afternoon sessions were enlivened by the infield jousts. Bush played a prominent part in both. In the forenoon Donie went to third base and fielded the batted balls. He also gave plenty of attention to Bartell and Cronin, who were at short and second. Pete Scott prevailed at first base in the morning.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Turned Down for Insurance

If there's anything insurance companies are careful about, it's your blood pressure. High blood pressure indicates a dangerous state of health that may cut life short. It is a condition due to our abnormal living habits, which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak and sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in the food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected. The liver, especially at middle life, needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as physicians today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to health and vitality. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and one or two days' use will prove a revelation. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol.

STEVENS NAMED HEAD GRIDIRON COACH AT YALE

Famous Last Words: Now, Boys, Don't Worry About This Hyatt

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

CHILLY SAUCE BY CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Feb. 28.—The footlights have not affected the batting of each of the Waner boys. Arriving here late Sunday night, Lloyd opened the first batting drill yesterday by hanging a clothes line over second that made the pitcher dodge for safety. Brother Paul hung the white lines through the most of the batting drill.

THE cute little fellows from Oklahoma used the stage as a mean of staying in shape. This might seem like a rash statement, but it is a fact that both are able to throw with force on their first day out, they were prudent enough to withhold their exuberance however.

"I feel as if I could throw the ball over that fence," mused Paul as he lobbed one in to the hitter after chasing a fungo. "You see Lloyd and I used a baseball in out act and we did enough throwing on the stage to keep our arms well oiled. Moreover, we were on the links many mornings, and thus were able to keep our legs in shape."

SPROUT weighed just a trifle more than 140 last night following two severe practices. He is still a bit too light, but in better condition than he was one year ago his muscles are tough and he has a good color. If he keeps his health he should be quite a bit heavier when the season starts.

MANAGER Bush continues to fall deeper in love with Ralston Hemsley. The Pomeroy boy is fleet of foot and he has a fine arm. Ralston gave a real demonstration of his throwing power in the first infield drill. He has worked so hard since he reached camp he is in tip top shape and could go to work today if necessary.

Bush had a real estimate of the kid's arm through playing third base in the session. Donie tried to snag a couple of the youngster's shots and when he held the ball he had to shout to let go of the pain that came with the force of the tosses. Hemsley has many of the actions of Muddy Ruel.

FOOD FERMENTED AND FORMED GAS

Salesman, of Near Homestead, Uses Ten Herbs With Amazing Results.

"I am a traveling salesman, and eating at irregular hours and different places, finally got the best of my stomach," was the statement of Mr. Henry S. Figdor, R. F. D. 1, Box 127, Homestead, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "Food would lie in my stomach and ferment, and gas would form until I would be in misery," continued Mr. Figdor. "My whole system seemed to be out of order.

MR. HENRY S. FIGDOR

"I was constipated, and my liver was sluggish. At times I had such severe bilious attacks and dizzy spells that I had to hold to something to keep from falling. My kidneys were not working properly, and I had to arise several times at night. There were pains across my back and I would be so stiff I could hardly get out of bed in the morning.

"I noticed Ten Herbs being advertised and I stopped at this store and heard you explain the merits of your medicine. I started to use this preparation, and I was soon convinced that Ten Herbs was just what my system needed. It seemed to cleanse and stimulate my whole digestive tract. All signs of indigestion disappeared, and my appetite improved. My bowels are now regular, and my liver and kidneys working fine. Bilious attacks and dizzy spells are gone, and pains and stiffness have left my back. I feel good upon arising in the morning, and have more energy and ambition. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to the public."

Ten Herbs, the new natural compound, is meeting with splendid success in this city, where it has given relief to many people who had suffered with disordered stomach, liver and bowels.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

Succeeds Tad Jones

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, Yale 1925, of Osborn, Kan., has been appointed head coach of the Yale football team for next season by the Board of Control of Yale University Athletic Association, Stevens succeeds T. A. D. Jones who resigned at the end of the 1927 season.

The new Eli coach played on the Yale championship team of 1923 and has acted as assistant coach under Jones for the past four years.

In his statement announcing the appointment of Stevens, Prof. George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic Association, said:

"Since his graduation from Yale College, Mr. Stevens has been a student in the Yale Medical School where he is enrolled as a regular candidate for the M. D. degree. He has been a member of the Yale football coaching staff for the past four years. This appointment assures the direction of Yale coaching by a resident member of the university community."

WAS STAR PLAYER

Stevens played in the halfback position on Bill Mallory's team during his junior year, but went to the coaching squad instead of into the varsity lineup the following year. After graduation he enrolled in the medical school and now is in his third year.

He was nominated as coach by the new football committee headed by "Tad" Jones.

Coach Stevens will call out the members of the football squad at once for late winter and spring practice. The remainder of the resident coaching squad will be announced soon. Several changes from last year's body are expected.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

event of Aldridge remaining firm in his holdout and failing to report to the Giants, the trade will become null and void and the Pittsburgh club will be required to send Grimes back to the McGrawites.

IT IS to laugh. As every well-posted fan knows, the above is all poppy-cock. There isn't a word in baseball law that would offer the slightest ground for such a contention, and there isn't the slightest possibility of any such development in the case.

When the trade was made, each of the clubs involved took its own chances on being able to sign the player it had acquired through the swap, and the possibility that either management might fail to swing its new man into line would have absolutely no effect upon the other end of the deal.

Grimes is with the Pirates to stay, regardless of the controversy between the New York club and Aldridge, and it means nothing to the Pittsburgh club whether Vic signs a Giant contract at once or holds out until doomsday.

GIBBY WELCH is not the only University of Pittsburgh athlete who has a chance to be picked to compete in the Olympic games at Amsterdam this year. Nor is he the only Panther who is training as never before in the hope of improving his prospects for making the team.

Sabin Carr.

Two other Pitt men have their eyes on the Olympics and have been working hard for more than a month to better their form. One is Victor Pickard, pole vaulter, and the other is Don Gwinn, hammer thrower.

IN VIEW of the fact that Sabin Carr of Yale smashed his own indoor and outdoor records in New York Saturday night when he cleared the bar at the astonishing height of 14 feet, one inch, it would appear that Pickard, who has been doing only 13 feet, was merely wasting time and energy and would have no chance to get into the Olympics.

That does not necessarily follow, however. Pickard may not approach Carr's wonderful mark, nor the marks of a couple of other American vaulters, but it will be possible for him to win a competitor's place in the Olympics.

For Carr will be on the American team, whereas Pickard is a Canadian, having entered Pitt from Hamilton Institute in Hamilton, Ontario.

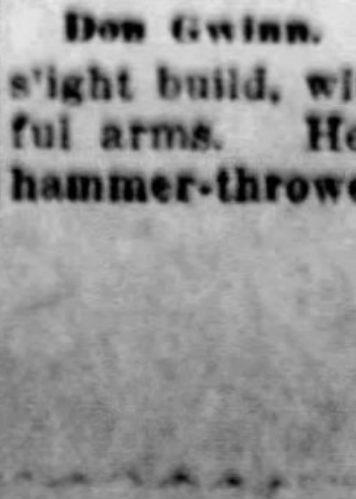
THEREFORE, Pickard must represent Canada if he takes part in the big games, and he can win a place on the Canadian team no matter if his best marks this spring are surpassed by Carr and other American vaulters.

And it will not be Pickard's first appearance in the international carnival if he wins a place, as he was on the Canadian Olympic team in 1924.

Incidentally, Pickard defeated Carr in the pole vault at the Penn relay games in Philadelphia last spring, though it was generally conceded that Carr was not in form at that time.

PITT'S Olympic hammer-throwing candidate, Don Gwinn, also has been showing up well in his workouts for the last month. He is doing 160 feet, and is gradually drawing nearer to his best mark of 175 feet.

Gwinn's present flings of 160 feet just about equal his own weight figures, as he tops the beam at 160 pounds right now. That's an unusually low poundage for a hammer-thrower, as the majority specializing in that event scale in the neighborhood of 190 pounds.



Don Gwinn.

But Don is of comparatively slight build, with short but powerful arms. He is about the only hammer-thrower in the American college ranks who takes four turns in the ring before letting the hammer go. By this means he makes up for his light poundage. Other hammer specialists take only three turns in the ring.

PLANS for Eddie Moore, former Pirate, on the Boston National League club, have been changed again by Manager Jack Slattery.

First Slattery announced that Moore would fight it out with Andy High and other candidates for the third-base job. Next he said he would send Eddie to center field instead and switch Eddie Brown to left on account of Brown's throwing arm not being strong enough to make the long pegs necessary from the middle pasture. Now the pilot has changed his mind once more, and says he will go back to the original plan and put Brown in center.

Eddie Brown.

Slattery explains that most of the hits that go to centerfield clear second base on a line and that few will be headed for the narrow opening that the newly installed bleachers at Braves' Field now leave in center. With these bleachers to back him up, the Hub skipper predicts that Brown will prove the greatest centerfielder the Braves have had in many years, particularly as he has two strong-armed infielders in Hornsby and Farrell to run out and handle the relays.

FOR several years predictions have been heard that they soon would be backing up the wagon for Grover Alexander. The old boy still is very much on the job, however, and from present indications, he may be even better this year than in he was in the last two seasons.

It isn't easy to believe that a pitcher who celebrated his forty-first birthday anniversary last Sunday is the outstanding performer in the Cardinal camp this spring, but that's the word Manager Bill McKechnie sends from Avon Park, Fla. Alexander went to camp nearly a month before the first Redbird squad arrived there, and is further advanced in his training than any other member of the St. Louis club, according to McKechnie.

Alexander.

Aleck said two months ago that he expected to win from 15 to 20 games this year for his Wilkinsburg boss, and his mates are inclined to believe now that he will make good on the 15 promise, at least.

NEW honors were captured by a former Pittsburgh swimmer at a big meet in Philadelphia, when Harry Glancy, once of this city, later coach at the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. and now representing the Penn A. C. of the Quaker City in competition, won the 500-yard free style championship of the Middle Atlantic Division of the A. A. U.

In winning the title, Glancy smashed the district record to bits. His time—and he wasn't pressed—was 6 minutes 9 2-5 seconds, more than 10 seconds lower than the former Middle Atlantic mark.

Currie vs. Pitfield at Ellis, Diamond street.

ANDREW PONZI enjoyed a lead of 254-146 over Harry Oswald when they started the third block of their 1,000-point exhibition pocket billiard match at the Ellis Recreation Parlors, Diamond street, this afternoon. Ponzi is Philadelphia's entrant in the national pocket billiard title tourney, to be played at Chicago next week, and Oswald is to represent Pittsburgh in the same event.

A great rally by Ponzi in the first block yesterday afternoon was the feature of the first day of play. Displaying the same fine form that enabled him to finish third in the last national tourney, Oswald got away to a 66-point lead, only to have Ponzi turn in consecutive runs of 30 and 28 and almost even the count. The Philadelphian then kept up his fine work to win the block, 131-105.

In the evening block Ponzi turned in a run of 45 and overwhelmed Oswald, 123-45.

The match is to be concluded Thursday evening.

would not be seen at a prize fight—at home or abroad.

And if they had been at Motor Square Garden last night there would have been a new society organized this afternoon—at the latest. The Woman's Society for the Installation of Water Sprayers. Mechanical water sprayers, that is.

For the lady behind us was beautifully undisturbed by the gore and the roar of the crowd for blood. What worried her into a couple of new wrinkles was the kind of sprays used. And we are too refined to write about them here. It was a bit shocking to an aesthetic soul with a horror of germs with long, high-sounding names—and the lady had the sympathy of all of us.

She was a lovely old lady. Accompanied by a wild kid with a boy's hair cut and a voice that outdid anything the men in the crowd had to offer.

"Ah, set 'em up in another alley, Cuddy. He ain't nothin' to write home for money for. Ya oughta be a 'rassler.' Sleep, Baby Sleep. One more hair an' he'll be climbin' trees."

It was hard for me to concentrate on the fighting itself. A silly notion kept going through my head. Do you remember your "Quo Vadis?"

Where Nero built the big stadium, decorated it beautifully and held the games for the amusement of his crowd. Which was the blood curdling pastime of dressing the Christians up in animal skins and matching them with beasts of the jungle.

Well, Motor Square Garden was a symphony of blue and yellow drapes with a black center from which pretty lights shed a soft glow on the mauling, struggling, beastly fighting boys.

Harmon, unshaven and unshorn, went in looking two jumps from what Mr. Darwin says we descended from. DeMarco, on the contrary, looked like an ad for hair stickum. A nice, mama's college boy. Even if he did put up a game fight.

But, with the pretty drapes and the soft lights it was pretty hard to tell after a couple of rounds who looked the most like the missing link. This probably accounts for the picture of Nero and the stadium and then we imagined we were back in the days of Caesar and his horrid ideas of a good time.

Everybody was there. Proud fathers with their young sons. Little boys who stood up and fought every round with their flying fists and big dancing eyes. Bobbed-haired grandmas with their flapper grand-daughters. Proud sheiks with their screeching shebas. Priests and laymen. And their expressions were the same—they wanted bigger and more brutal blows. They wanted to see some one kiss the canvas.

Every woman I know who wants to start a movement to do away with prize fights has never seen one. And never will unless some one muzzles her and compels her to go.

Brave members of the sisterhood who do go understand too well why Estelle always stays home while Jack fights.

To every woman a prize fight is like looking into the eyes of a big snake. Horrible and fascinating. But—if it were our papa or our boy friend, we'd at least go out and start a movement for the installation of water sprays.

OVER TWO BILLION SOLD

When the field comes into the stretch

WHEN the field is bunched on the turn with a long-legged colt out in front, when your game little filly moves up on the rail with the jockey using the whip—out at the race track, back in town, wherever men get together, more men have smoked White Owls in the past five years than any other cigar in the world.

It's the taste that makes the difference, real mildness and flavor. That's what you want and it's what you get in a White Owl cigar. You may be smoking a ten cent cigar today simply because you've never investigated White Owl value.

Make that today's tip. Get onto the White Owl story. You'll find what more men are finding out every day in the year—that there's nothing can touch it at the price.

WHITE OWL
White Owl

You're never more than 48 hours from a fresh supply

Men have wanted to know how it is that White Owls are always fresh and mild, no matter where or when they buy them. It's because there's a fresh supply always on the way. They never last long enough to get stale. When you buy a White Owl, you're buying a fresh cigar.

San Antonio Calls Self "West Point of the Air"

By B. C. FORBES

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 28.

"WELCOME to the West Point of the Air." I was puzzled. Then Mayor C. M. Chambers explained that President Coolidge had signed a bill authorizing the establishment here of the main training ground for Army fliers, a project which would mean the expenditure of perhaps $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 within the next few years, and starting almost immediately.

How did San Antonio capture such a rich prize? The answer carries a moral for other ambitious cities. Naturally, various places were eager to become "The West Point of the Air." Competition, therefore, was keen. The government's aircraft experts looked favorably upon San Antonio for reasons which can be readily grasped. But it appears that one plank in the administration's economy program forbids the purchase of any more land for federal purposes except in extreme emergencies. And plenty of sites were available without cost.

The largest city in Texas having made up its mind to get the coveted institution, the Mayor and other civic authorities laid their heads together, authorized the borrowing of $500,000, arranged for the purchase of the desired site and promptly offered it as a gift to the government.

This enterprising stroke won for San Antonio its newest and proudest title, "The West Point of the Air."

When you want a thing, go after it.

San Antonio is already the home of the largest military post in the country, the people quickly let you know. Not only so, but there have always existed between the military and the civilians the most satisfactory and cordial relations. Uniforms are seen at nearly all local society and other social functions. It is said that at every U. S. Army post you will find that more of the wives are from San Antonio than from any other city.

Flying is destined to become so overshadowingly important an arm of our national forces that the founding here of the government's chief training quarters is bound to contribute tremendously to the growth and fame of the city.

Is it not natural, therefore, that San Antonioans should be carrying their heads appreciably higher in consequence of the new honor that has come to them?

The fact is that San Antonioans have a good deal more reason at present for feeling satisfied than most cities have. Conditions here are distinctly more active than elsewhere. Growth is impressively under way in a variety of directions. There is little or none of the complaining common in other cities. Unemployment is not in evidence, and assurances are given that it is gratifyingly light.

A new spirit has taken possession of the people.

When I was here in 1926 the whole place struck me as sleepy, stagnant, unenterprising. The rich man at the top was smugly satisfied with himself and his fortune—and callous to the well-being or progress of the younger, oncoming generation. Business, naturally, was backward. There was much grumbling down the line. Instead of throwing meaningless boquets to them, I told a large gathering of business men I then had the privilege of addressing under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce what I saw.

I bluntly told them how they and their city impressed me. I paid them the compliment of assuming that they wanted me to be sincere. Having been invited to offer suggestions, I did so—perhaps with more daring than wisdom. I recall an editor once remarking that he had asked such-and-such a reporter to write an article on a certain subject because, he added, "He will not be hampered by possessing any knowledge of the facts."

An invitation having been received to talk to a similar gathering on this return visit, I gladly accepted after having had some opportunity to see the changes which had been made in the city and its suburbs and after having studied all available statistics covering the intervening period.

What has been achieved is really notable.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The raw sugar market was firmer early today and prices advanced 1-16c to the basis of 4.81c for Cuban duty paid. At this level an operator bought 15,000 bags of Cuban for March shipment, but refiners as yet have shown no interest.

After opening 1 point lower to 1 point higher, raw sugar futures developed pronounced firmness on active covering and trade buying, which was due to private advices from Cuba intimating that the Java Syndicate was now willing to cooperate with the rest of the producing countries in the matter of crop restriction. This upturn carried prices 3 to 5 points above the previous close, but at this level met increased hedge selling and reactions followed with the market at midday 2 to 3 points net higher.

In refined, prices were unchanged at 6.40c for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts continue liberal, showing that the sugar is going freely into consumption, but not much new business was reported.

MARKET DULL, MOVEMENTS UNCERTAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Uncertain price movements characterized today's dull stock market. Standard industrials and rails moved within a rather narrow range, while bullish demonstrations in a selected assortment of tobaccos, oils, public utilities and merchandising issues were offset by the weakness of a few specialties.

There was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement, other than an extension of recent gasoline price advances, which found reflection in a better demand for some of the oil shares. Call money was slightly firmer on the approach of the month-end, although there appeared to be a plentiful supply of funds available at the renewal rate of 4½ per cent. Banks called about $13,000,000 in loans during the morning.

Recent sluggishness of United States Steel has been attributed in some quarters to the liquidation of a large long account, but reports that Giannini interests were selling stock to pay for the Bank of America purchased by them were officially denied. General Motors held fairly steady, but met stock on the rallies.

Bayuk Cigars jumped nearly 6 points to a new high record at 135 and Case Threshing and the American Tobacco issues advanced 4 to 5 points. General Electric Gas and Electric A and B stocks each moved up about 2 points to new peak prices for the year.

On the other hand, National Distillers common broke 4 points to a new low at 35, and the preferred dropped 5 to a new low at 55. Christie Brown and Standard Plate Glass preferred also broke more than 4 points each.

NARROW TRADING RANGE NOTED IN LOCAL STOCKS

STD. SANITARY FIRM HERE

Trading started off quietly again on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with prices holding close to the levels prevailing on the close yesterday.

The only noticeable change in the list was an advance in Standard Sanitary, although only a small lot of the stock changed hands at the initial price of $106, a gain of 1½ points over the preceding close. The stock was ex-dividend the usual quarterly payment of $1.25 a share last Friday. Standard has been rather quiet the last two or three weeks, but the manner in which it held its position during the break in stocks on the New York market led traders here to believe that an important announcement concerning the company's affairs may be forthcoming shortly.

Miscellaneous stocks here were without feature in the first half of the session. Dixie Gas preferred held strong near its best levels on the current move, while Lone Star was off a fraction at 53½ for a few odd lots.

In the bank section, First National at Pittsburgh attracted a little attention on a decline of five points to $340 a share, with three odd lots changing hands at that figure. This price compares with a sale recorded Monday at $345.

United Engineering was firm on a light volume of trading. First sale of the issue was at 51, after which the price moved up to 51⅛ and held steady at the higher level.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The cotton market opened steady today. Prices advanced 6 points on trade buying of near months and covering in some of the later deliveries, but business was only moderately active and early fluctuation were irregular. There was some selling of October against purchases of May. The hedges seemed to meet considerable realizing with a disposition to take profits on recent purchases increased by the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. After selling off to 18.65c, May rallied to 18.72c, but the improvement was not fully maintained and the market was about net 2 points higher to 1 point lower at the end of the first hour.

Liverpool cabled there had been covering and fair month-end calling in the market there, with local merchants buying near months and selling distant positions. More cotton looms were reported running in Manchester than recently, with a fair demand for cotton yarns, stocks of which were said to be decreasing.

Renewed pressure developed during the morning under increased liquidation, prompted by the circulation of March notices and a feeling of insecurity, due to the belief that recent prices would discourage any material reduction in acreage in the South. The May position, which sold at 18.72c early, declined to 18.49c and the market appeared to meet less resistance, with only a moderate amount of trade buying in evidence. The market at midday was 17 to 21 points net lower.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The pressure of new offerings continued to create hesitancy in the bond market today. The day's new issues exceeded $20,000,000, and it was expected that the first few days of March would bring a sharp increase in new loans to compete with the listed market. Prices were steady and outstanding features were rare.

Prompt oversubscription was reported of the $13,500,000 Certainteed Products Corporation 5½s offered this morning. Several large municipal issues are under way, including the New York City loan, which will be awarded tomorrow. Arkansas is seeking a highway loan of about $13,000,000, and $17,000,000 bonds of the city of Detroit will be sold on March 20.

Frisco liens continued to advance fractionally in today's trading, on the eve of the $100,000,000 financing for that road. Seaboard liens gave a little better resistance to selling pressure, and in one or two instances showed rallying tendencies. Other railway issues, in the main, followed a firm trend.

Foreign bonds were somewhat easier than in recent sessions. Brazilian 6½s were firm, but most of the Latin American securities inclined to heaviness.

There was some early liquidation of Treasury 3⅜s and 3¾s, but other government obligations were dull.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

U. S. TENNIS ENTRY LOSES AT MONTE CARLO

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Kings and princes were among the 5,000 who saw the elimination of the only American pair entered in the men's doubles of the tennis tournament which opened the new $2,600,000 plant of the La Festa Country Club which has been named the St. Romain Club yesterday.

F. R. Scovel and F. A. Brace, the Americans competing for the Butler trophy, were eliminated after a hot first round battle by the Hungarian team of Malter and Revay, 3-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of San Francisco, who is entered in both the singles and women's doubles, played an exhibition match for the benefit of the international society leaders who had gathered for the leading Riveria sporting event of the season. The Duke of Connaught presided over the opening ceremonies.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—Corn prices averaged higher early today and wheat lower. Prospects of unsettled conditions likely to hinder the corn crop movement gave relative strength to the corn market, whereas unresponsive cables tended to weaken wheat. Starting ⅛@¼c off to ⅛c up, corn afterward scored moderate gains all around. Wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, rallied a little and then underwent a general sag. Oats were firm. Provisions inclined downward.

At noon corn was ⅛ to ⅛c net lower, and wheat ¼ to ⅜c down.

Not only was prospective weather over the corn belt adverse to large receipts, but arrivals of corn at Chicago today, 321 cars, showed a reduction compared both with a week ago and a year back. Besides, country offerings of corn to arrive lacked volume today and elevators were conspicuous as buyers of March delivery.

Commission houses were persistent sellers of wheat today influenced a good deal by reports of cheaper offerings from Argentina and by failure of the Liverpool market to follow advances in North American quotations. Liverpool dispatches said heavy arrivals of wheat from Argentina and Australia were being looked for, offsetting the influence of unfavorable winter crop reports from the United States.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Trading was quiet and price movements narrow in the curb market today. Buying strength appeared after the irregular opening and many issues moved up, especially the oils, whose strength was attributed to reports of increased prices for gasoline. The utilities were weak.

Four new industrial issues were rather heavily bought. Celanese prior preferred opened at 110 and moved to 112 and the Celanese rights made a slight gain. Checker Cab Manufacturing gained slightly after opening at 21⅞. Initial sales of Clark Lighter were made at 32½. Borne-Scrymser moved up 2 points on improved earnings reports. Crowley-Milner touched a new high at 41 and Firestone Tire, Melville Shoe, Deere & Co. and Midland Steel scored advances of 2 to 5 points. Weakness appeared in such issues as American Rolling Mills, Bancitaly, Celanese first preferred, which dropped nearly 5 points, and Tubize Art Silk.

Utilities were weaker under selling evidently in connection with the pending Federal Trade Commission investigation. American Gas and Electric dropped more than 2 points and others showed fractional losses.

Oils were irregular. Prairie dropped 3 points and Creole Syndicate was down slightly under heavy sales apparently based on reports of an increase in capitalization and possible acquisition by Standard of New Jersey. Other oils showed small gains.

SELL STOCK IN FOLLANSBEE COMPANY

Public offering of the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of Follansbee Brothers Company is expected to be made within the next few days by J. & W. Seligman & Co., New York, and Prescott Lyon & Co., Pittsburgh. The preferred stock, to be issued under a plan of recapitalization, is being acquired from individuals and represents no new financing by the company.

The business to which Follansbee Brothers Company succeeded in 1894 when it was incorporated is one of the oldest in the United States, having been established originally in 1812. Control has rested with the Follansbee family since 1894.

The company is one of the largest manufacturers in the United States of high quality steel sheets which are advertised nationally under the trade name "Follansbee Forge" a product well known in the automobile and electrical industries. In addition the company produces steel sheets for roofing, tinplate and other products. Through a subsidiary company it is profitably engaged in the fabrication of steel sheets into finished products of a varied character. The company's plants, located at Follansbee, W. Va., and Toronto, O., cover an area of 100 acres and have an annual capacity of 140,000 tons of finished sheets.

Earnings of the company for the year ended December 31, 1927, were $839,269 or 4.66 times the annual dividend requirements on the $3,000,000 preferred stock to be outstanding, and for the five years ended December 31, 1927, averaged 4.15 times such requirements. The balance sheet showed net assets of $10,226,788, equal to over $340 per share on the preferred stock.

PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district was fair today. Several changes were made in the quotations on vegetables. The fruit market was fairly active. Apples, pineapples and Florida oranges were somewhat higher, while cranberries were a little lower.

The poultry market was easy and the demand was rather slow. Supplies were liberal and the quotations were unchanged.

The butter, egg and cheese markets were firm. The quotations were unchanged.

Carlot supplies were liberal, a total of 255 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 8 cars of apples, 1 beets, 1 cabbage, 4 carrots, 2 cauliflower, 1 chicory, 14 celery, 3 grapefruits, 2 lemons, 10 lettuce, 2 onions, 13 oranges, 2 peppers, 2 peas, 28 potatoes, 6 sweet potatoes and 1 turnips.

APPROPRIATED FUR COAT, GIVEN 3-YEAR SENTENCE

Louis Franklin, 30, Chicago Negro, got a fur coat worth $200 in some way and sent it to his wife in Chicago. The coat was appropriated January 28 from the automobile of L. E. Chinnock, McKeesport merchant. Louis told Judge Joseph M. Swearingen in Criminal Court that he brought the coat from a miner, name unknown, at the Warden mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Blythedale, where Louis has been employed as a non-union miner. His employment ceased for a period of 18 months to three years, which was his sentence to the Western Penitentiary on his plea of guilty of receiving stolen goods.

Rheumatics are Wild with Joy

Nurito Prescription Acts Like Magic, Making Bed-ridden Sufferers Get Up and Dance.

DRUGGISTS GUARANTEE IT

Nothing has so startled the community as the effect of Nurito, a physician's prescription for rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica and lumbago. It is now to be had at the local drug stores and is certainly a boon to humanity. Many won't believe such a thing possible as almost instant relief in even bed-ridden cases of excruciating pain. They say it must be a narcotic. But it isn't anything of the sort, and to prove it, get the regular package from the drug store. Try it as directed and if it doesn't prove almost a miracle in driving away pain with two or three doses the druggist will refund the price you paid him for it. Ask at the drug store for a box of Nurito on this guarantee. At all druggists and McCulloch's Drug Stores.

WHY IS IT THAT DAD AND YOU LOOK SO UTTERLY BLUE SINCE UNCLE HENRY AND AUNT MABEL LEFT? I THOUGHT YOU WERE GLAD TO GET RID OF THEM.
PEGGY, DID YOU EVER SUSPECT WHILE THOSE FOLKS WERE HERE THAT THEY HAD JUST OODLES OF MONEY?
WELL AUNT MABEL HAD SOME WONDERFUL JEWELRY. NATURALLY I SUPPOSED THAT—WELL, YOUR POOR FATHER AND MYSELF GOT AN ALTOGETHER DIFFERENT IMPRESSION. I'M SO ACCUSTOMED TO HAVING YOUR FATHER'S POOR RELATIONS COME HERE AND TALK LIKE MILLIONAIRES, WHILE EATING US OUT OF HOUSE AND HOME, THAT I THOUGHT HENRY AND MABEL WERE JUST LIKE THE OTHERS.
OH WELL—
PEGGY, I'VE NEVER BEEN THROUGH SUCH A NERVE WRACKING AFFAIR IN MY LIFE. IT GIVES ME THE CREEPS EVERY TIME I REMEMBER THAT WE TREATED THOSE FOLKS AS THOUGH THEY WERE NO DIFFERENT THAN THE REST OF YOUR FATHER'S BLOW-HARD RELATIVES.
OH WELL MOTHER, IF I WERE YOU I'D JUST FORGET THE WHOLE AFFAIR AND—
PEGGY, IT'S JUST SILLY FOR YOU TO TRY AND CHEER ME UP OVER THE FACT THAT IT WAS ALWAYS IMPOSSIBLE TO GET RID OF POOR RELATIVES AND SO EASY TO GET RID OF WORTH WHILE PEOPLE. THE IDEA! I KNOW IT SOUNDS HYPOCRITICAL BUT WEALTHY RELATIVES DON'T GROW ON TREES IN ANY FAMILIES.

LEAGUE OF DO-NATIONS CLOSES 8TH YEAR

OUR correspondent at the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva had been missing for several weeks and he was then discovered asleep under a desk. It was the eighth year of the league. Our representative made as his excuse that he had stayed awake over seven years, which he regarded as a superhuman feat and should be excused the slight lapse while he was waiting for something to happen.

By BILGEWATER TUBBS,
European Correspondent for This Column.

GENEVA—The League of Hal-luci-Nations has just closed its eighth year of life with congratulations all round. The reports made public, while probably the most uninteresting in the history of international diplomacy are mercifully brief.

"The past year," says the official report, "was not sensational but really was the most important of the whole eight. It was the most momentous period in the League history, politically. We will now start on a new year of the most potential possibilities. No fair telling what they are."

"For the first time," says the report, "the membership of the league met the disarmament question openly and face to face. The matter was frankly discussed."

The result was that everybody decided not to disarm. Well, that matters seems to be settled, anyhow—right where it was. That is the way the League settles all its questions. If they had a League going in every town 24 hours a day, the results would be the same. Human nature and diplomatic relations have not changed one iota since the cave men went out to make peace with stone hatchets and the jaw bones of dinosauri.

READING the report carefully, we find that the most important feature of the year was the announcement that Turkey may be prevailed upon to join. This will be a great advance step, but whether for the League or for Turkey, is not stated.

Turkey has held out for some time along with the other high-brow nations, Mexico and the United States. Germany has taken up full membership during the year and the Russians also put their feet under the council tables. According to all reports neither the German nor the Russian delegates tried to bite anybody or start any fights in the hall.

During the year nine wars were absolutely forbidden and seven of them were held according to program, and the other two will be held as soon as the nations concerned can borrow the money in Wall street. Thus the great aims of the League are steadily bearing fruit—the fruit being mostly persimmons.

DURING the year the League had a little argument with a man named Coolidge, a warlord of the old school. Mussolini also belongs to the League or the League belongs to him. This matter is still under advisement.

Mr. Coolidge advanced a disarmament plan that was on the square, and for that reason was high-hatted until Mr. Coolidge decided to go ahead and build a navy of his own. "Give the boys in the backroom what they want," seems to be the American slogan. Coolidge and Mussolini work a little different, but they are both bad medicine for diplomatic thimble-riggers and parlor parleyites.

An outstanding event of the year was the beginning last January of a speech by Premier Koldslaw of Lithuania against the placing of barbed-wire entanglements around cracker barrels and cheese cases in grocery stores on the Esthonian border. The speech has continued intermittently throughout the year, but the Premier's voice being a little husky, he will enjoy an intermission of a month or two. During the intermission the speech will go on as usual. It may mean war or it may be peace. It is one of that kind of speech that nobody knows what it means.

Also, that is the kind of League it is.

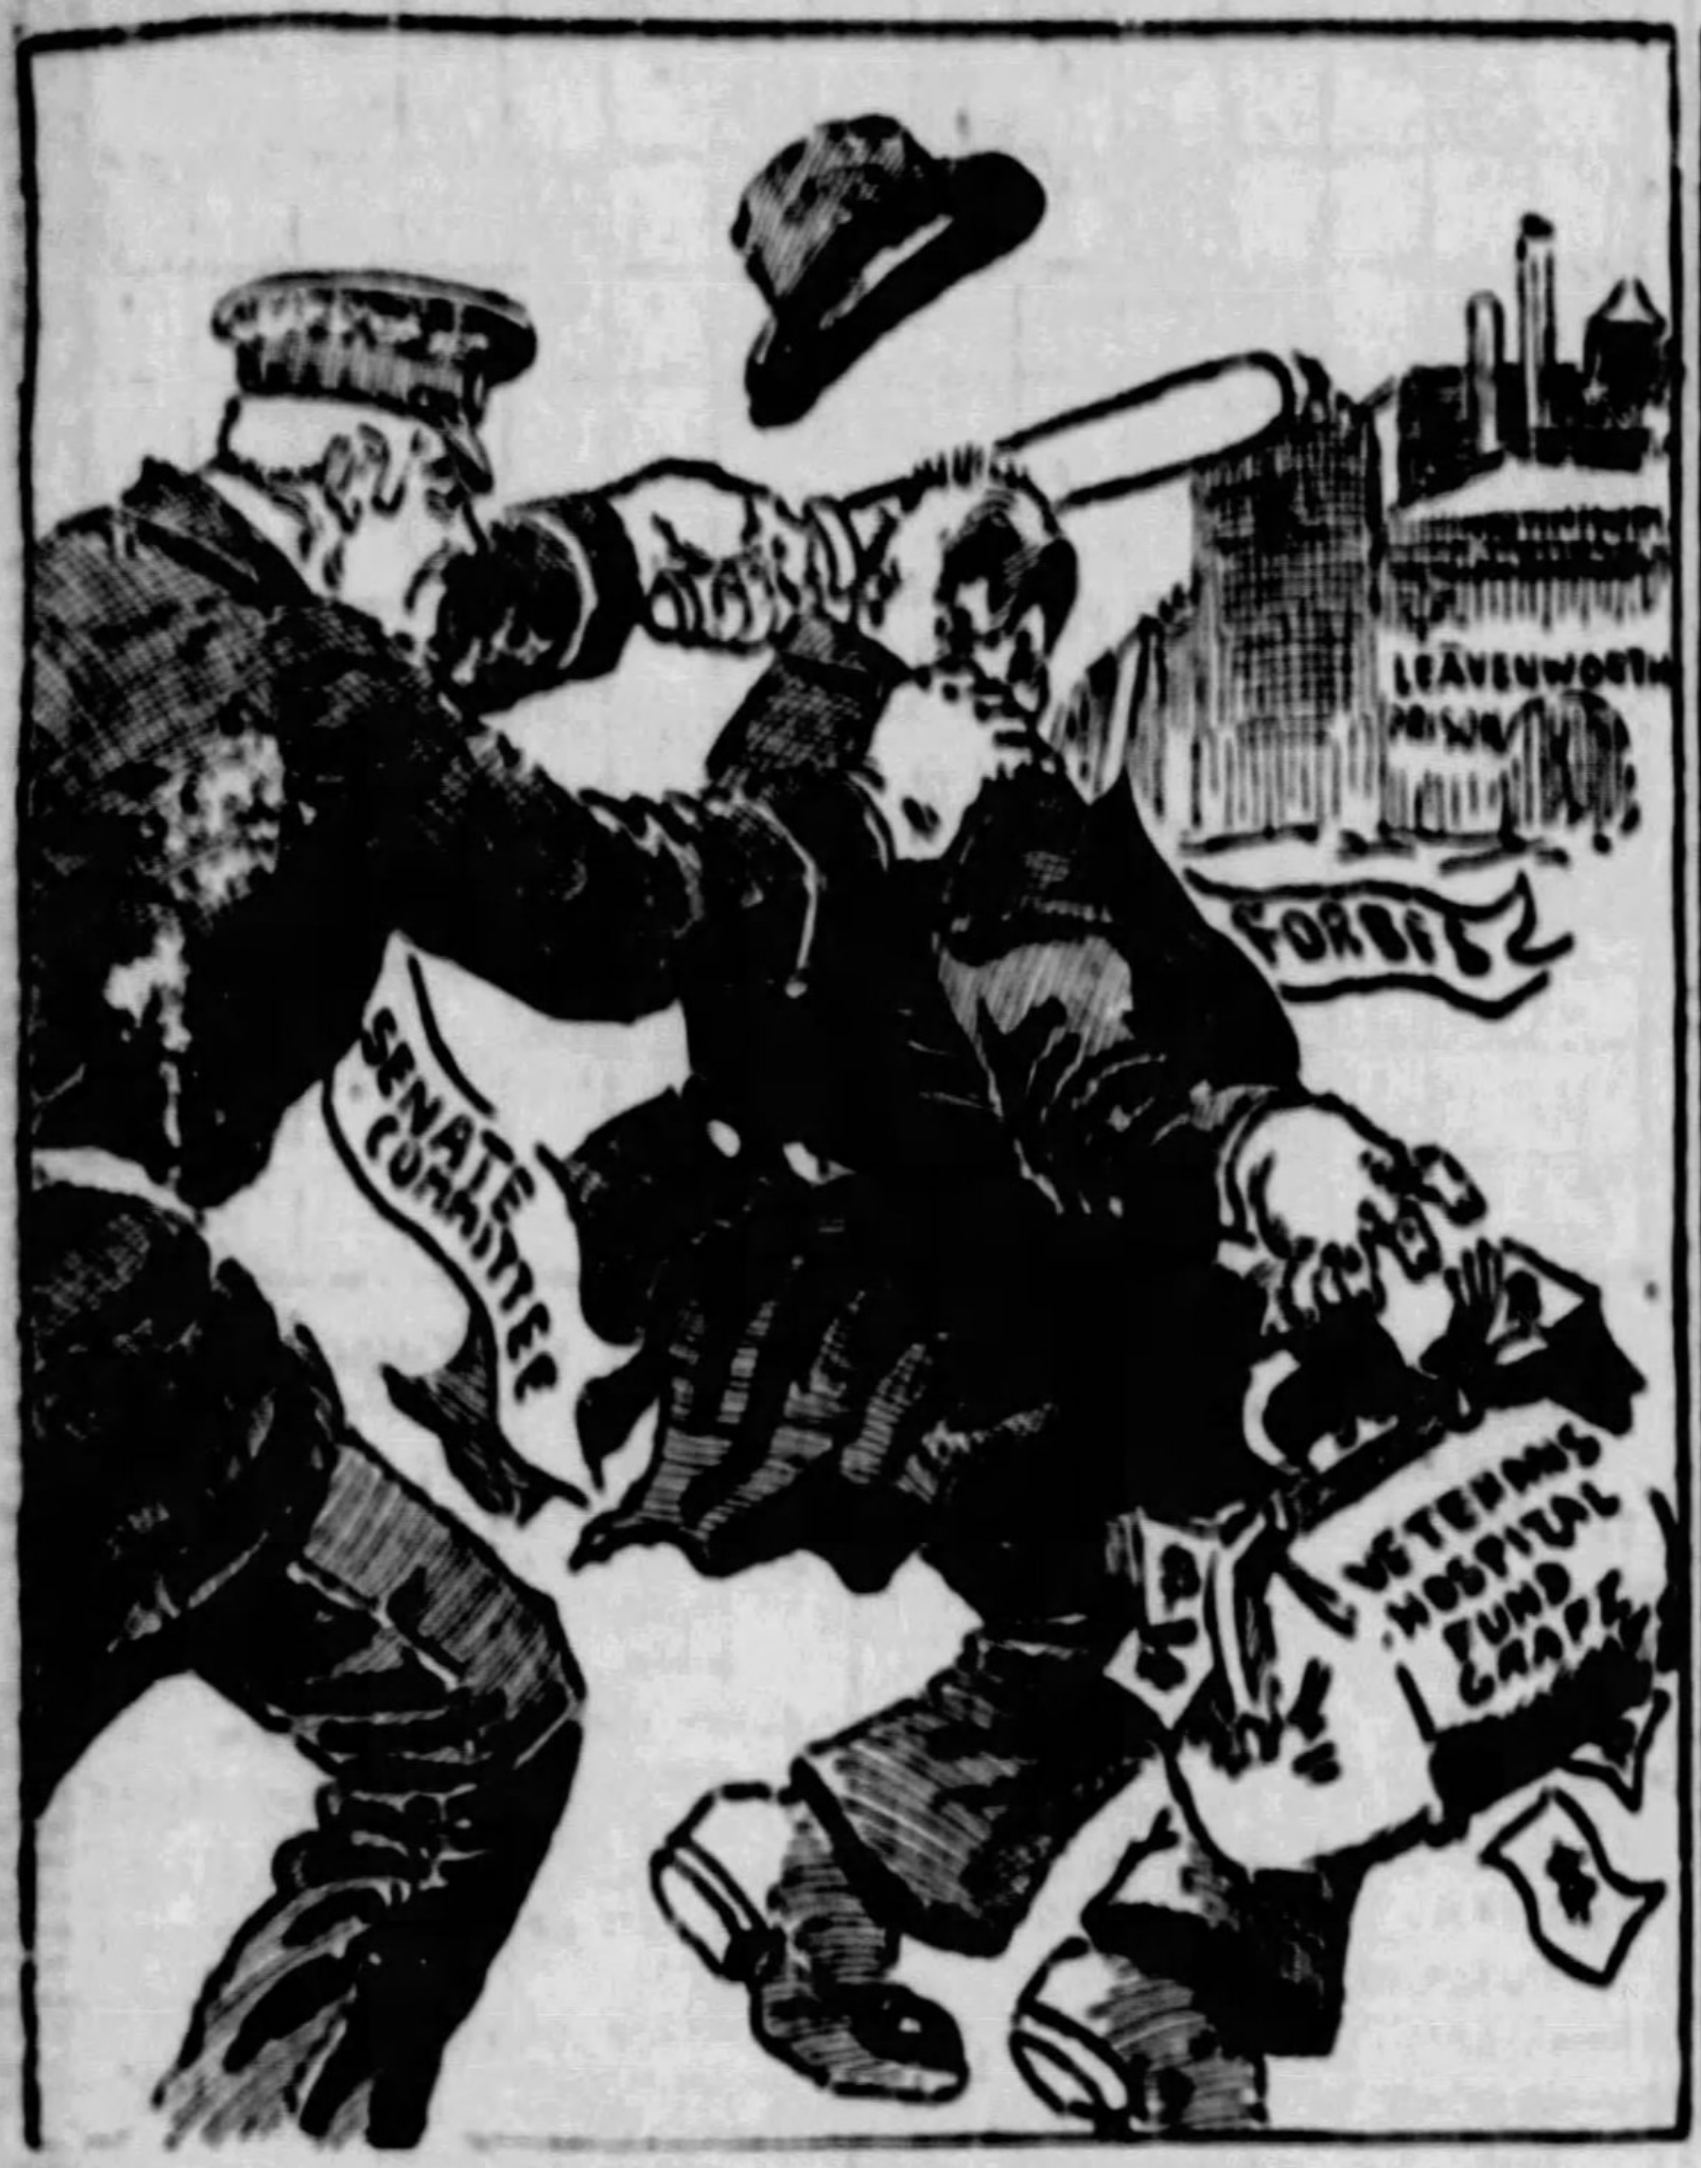
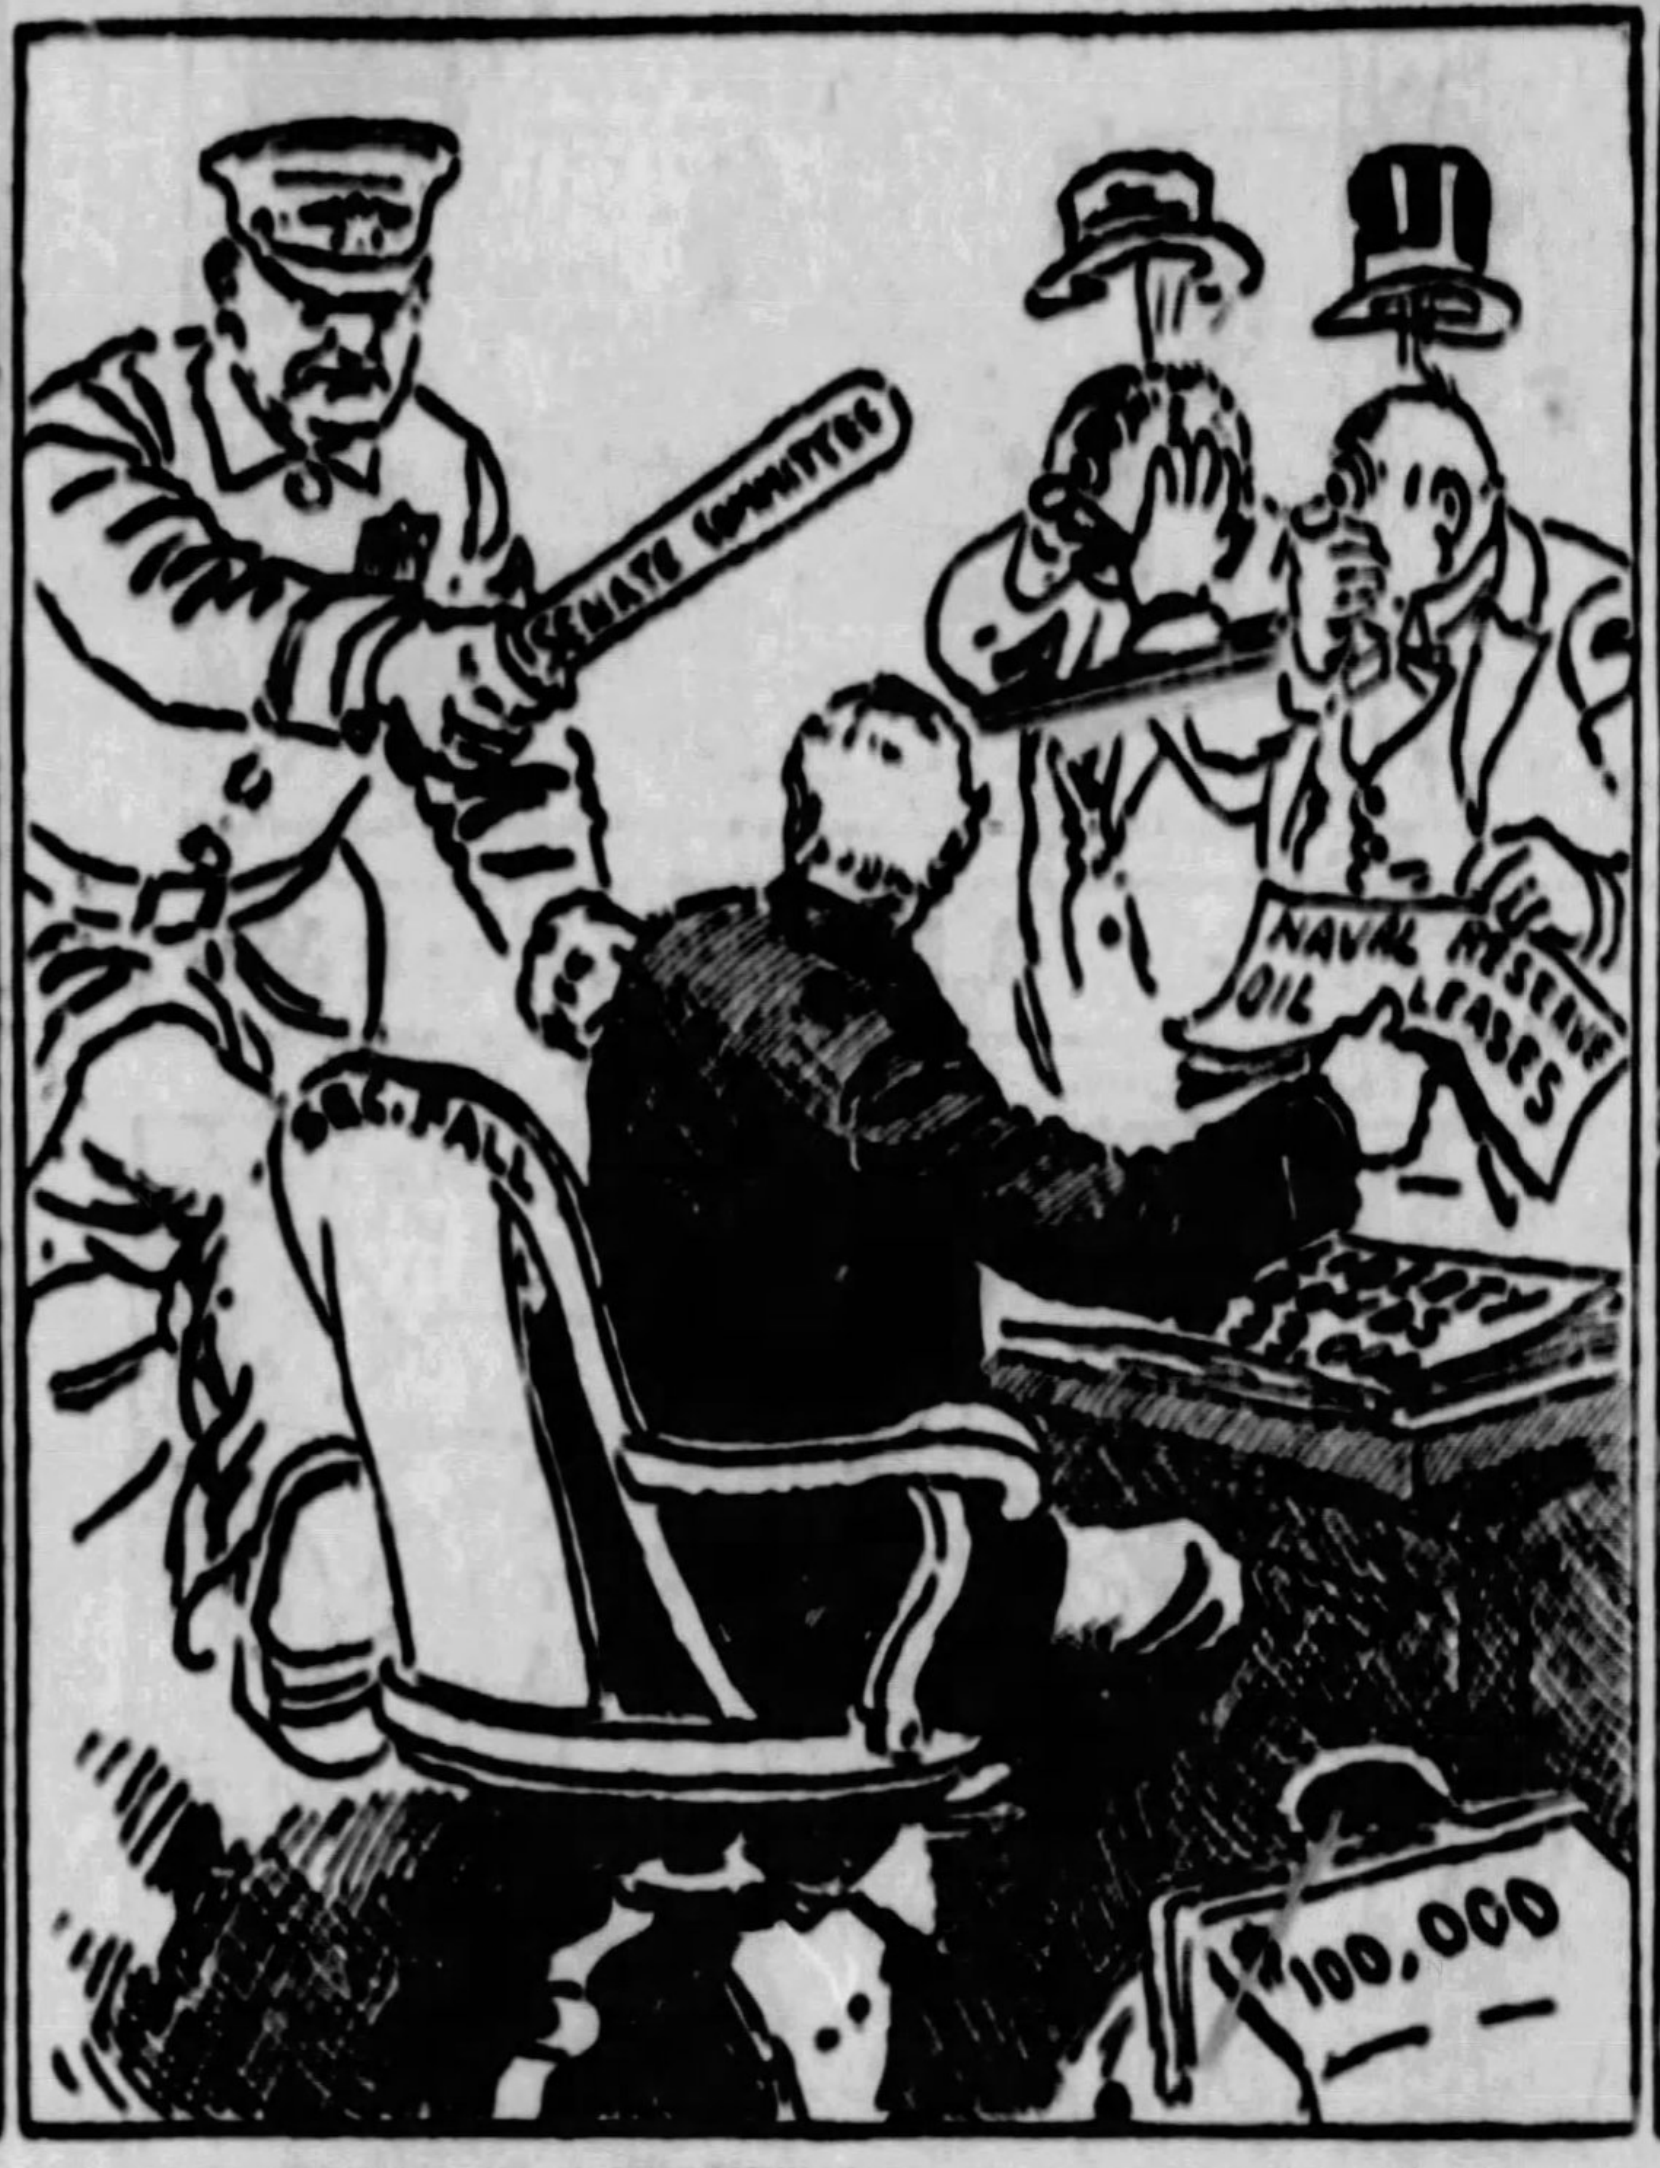
THE SUN-TELEGRAPH

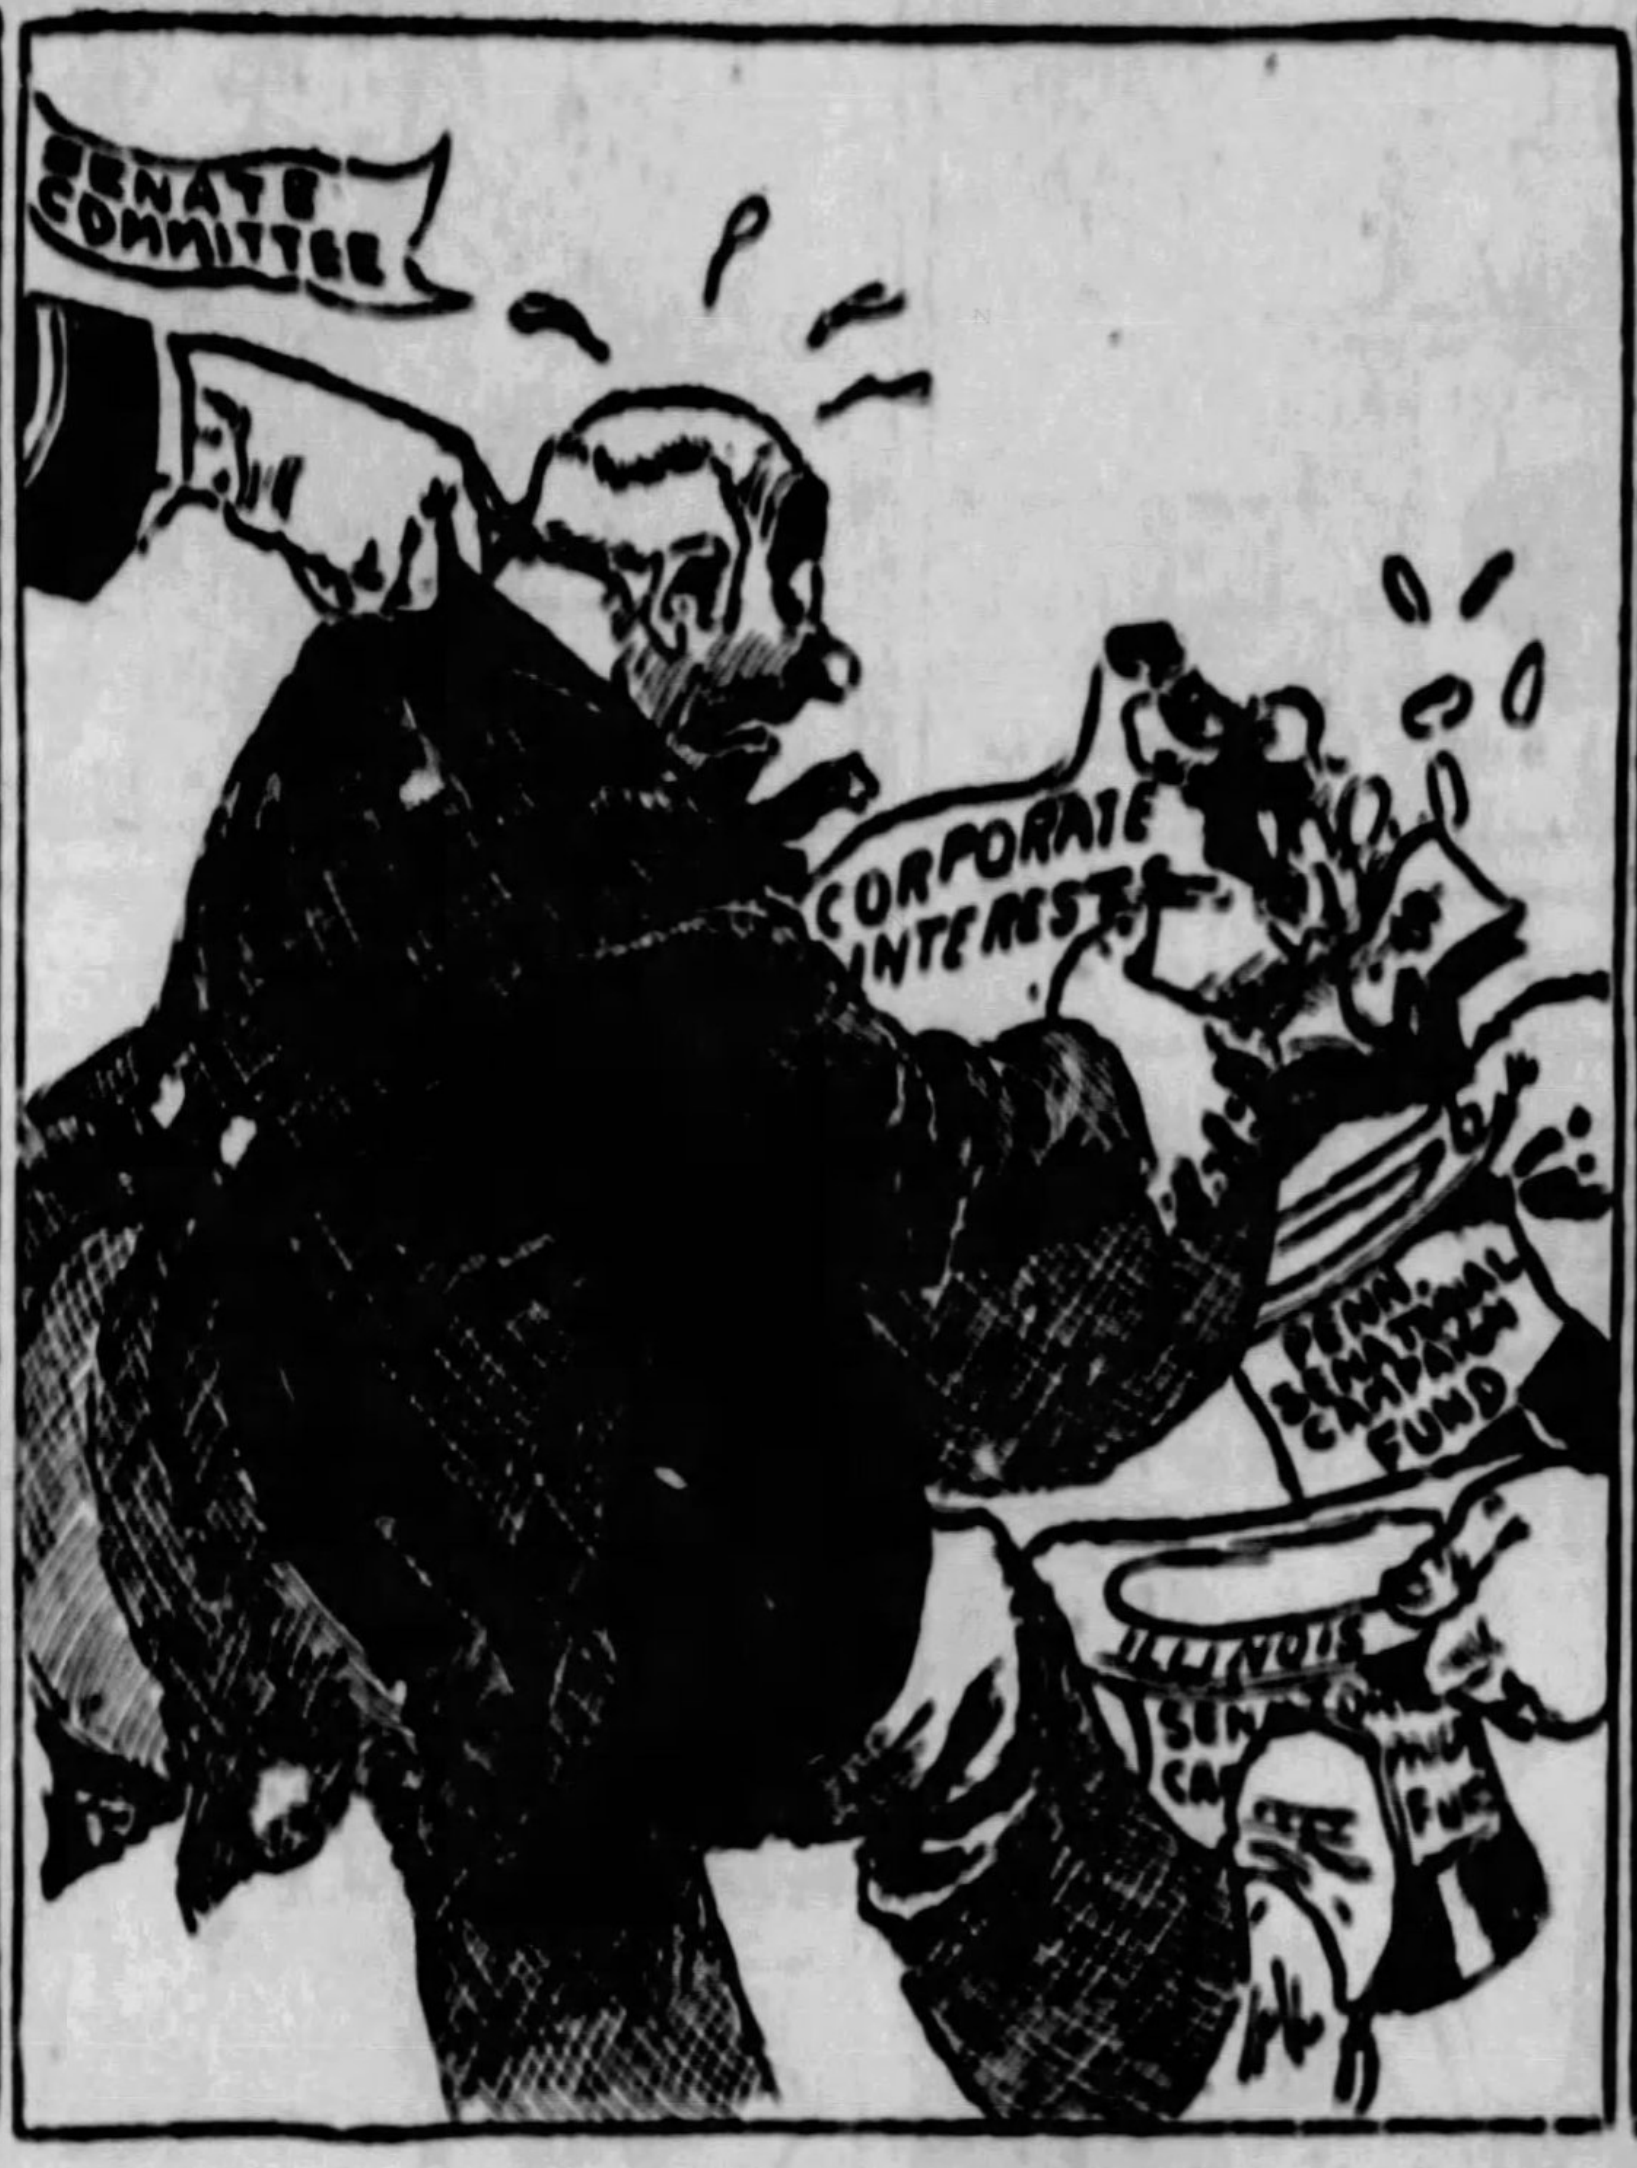
Notorious Power Lobby Should Be Probed by Senate Committee Which Already Has Performed Great Service



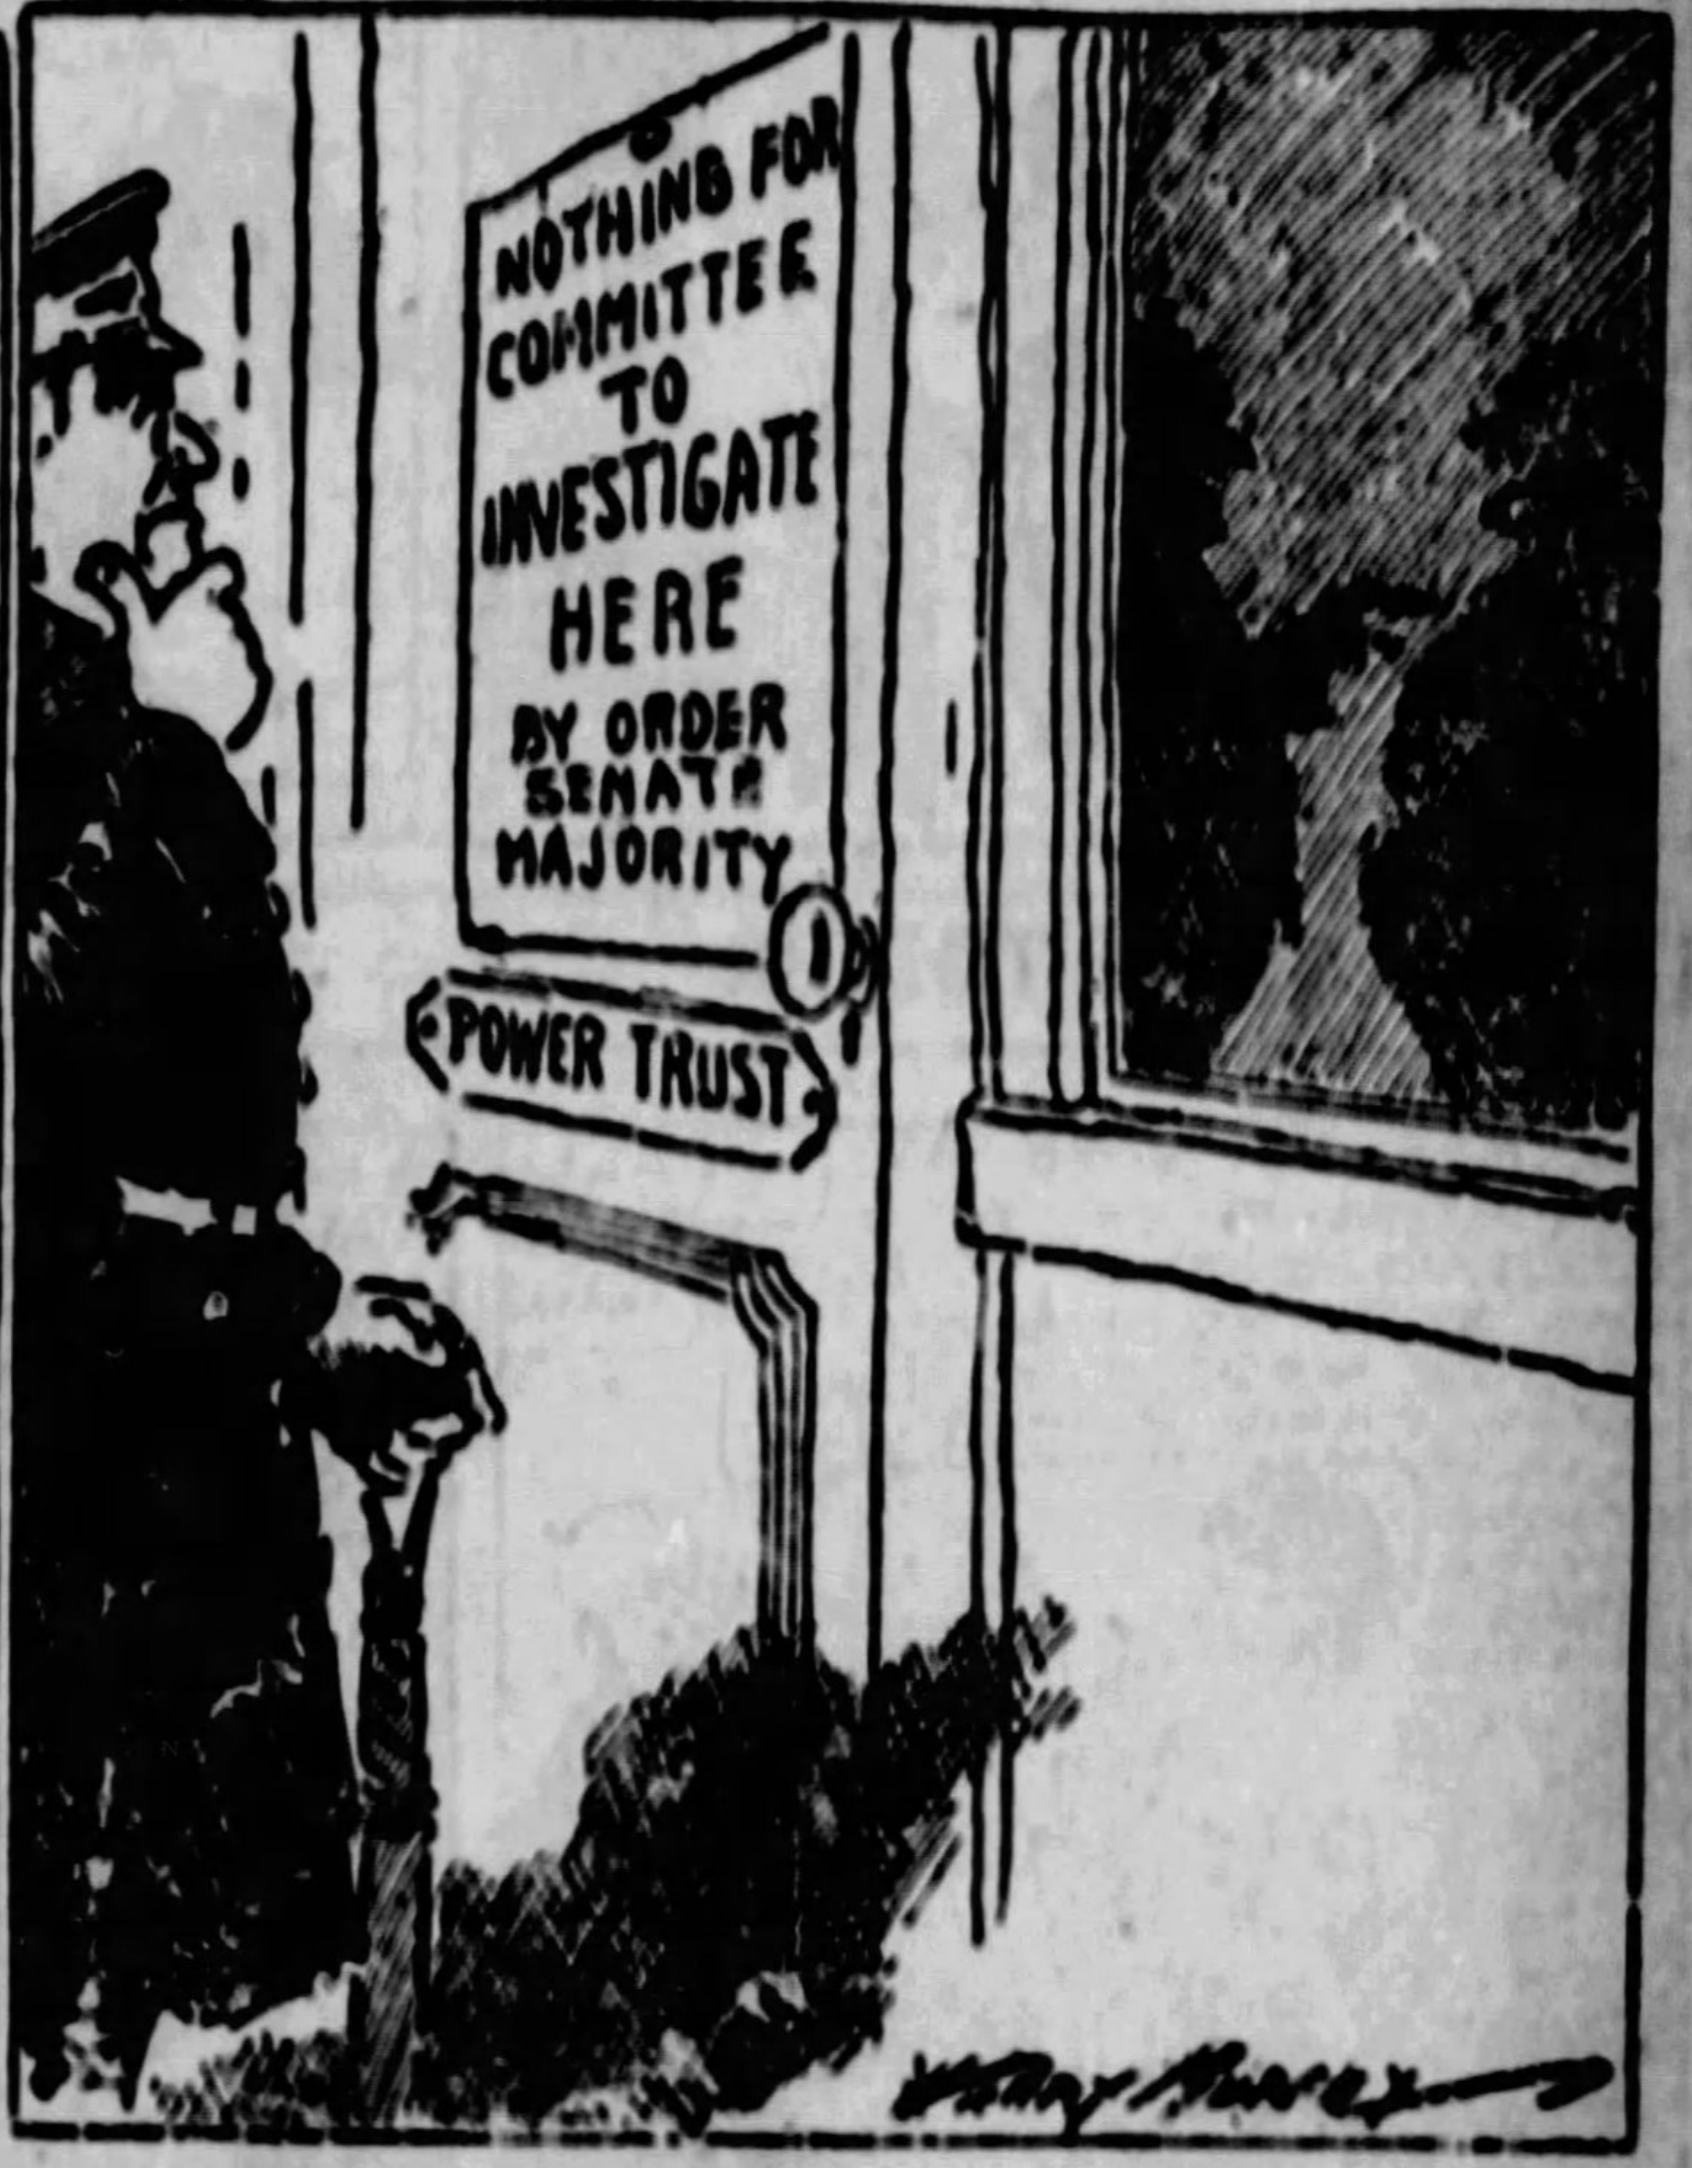
1. A Senate investigating committee uncovered the scandals in the Veterans' Bureau and sent its head, Colonel Forbes, to prison.



2. Senator Walsh's committee disclosed the money given Secretary Fall in return for corrupt leases of naval oil reserves.



3. Senator Reed's committee bared the scandalous expenditure of corporate funds in Illinois and Pennsylvania elections.



NOTHING FOR COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE HERE
BY ORDER SENATE MAJORITY
POWER TRUST

4. Is the Power Trust powerful enough to block a Senate investigation of the Power Lobby?

THE REACTIONARIES of the Senate, in refusing to sanction an investigation of the power trust by Senator Walsh's committee, are in direct conflict with the position taken by President Coolidge.

The electric power lobby is the most notorious in the nation. Speaking before the National Press Club, on February 7, the President deplored the fact that legislative agents of corporate interests were not compelled to take out Government licenses and disclose their identity as is done by the men who plead the case of these interests before the Supreme Court.

The President said that:

> "Since they (the lobbyists) are not required to make disclosure of the interests they undertake to serve, it is necessary to depend on the press for such information."

The press can be depended on to assure publicity for the power trust lobby as fast as the facts are brought out. The way to bring the facts out is by exercise of the strong powers that reside in a Senate committee. Senator Walsh is the one to make the investigation. He has shown his ability in the oil investigation, which is the outstanding achievement of the Senate in the last five years.

Instead, the majority of the Senate listened to the demands of the power trust lobby and ordered the investigation made by the Federal Trade Commission. This appointive body, packed with stand-patters, is dominated by its chairman, Humphreys, whose lack of sympathy with the commission is proven by the fact that he voted against its creation when he was a Congressman.

So far the Federal Trade Commission has given us no investigation that led anywhere. Senate committee investigations have produced the following results to the public:

1. A Senate investigation of the Veterans' Bureau bared the shocking frauds in expending money from Veterans' Hospital funds and sent Forbes to the penitentiary.

2. A Senate investigation of the Illinois and Pennsylvania elections showed that it took nearly three million dollars of corporate funds to elect two Senators. As a consequence, Smith of Illinois has been barred from the Senate. Vare of Pennsylvania will likely be shut out also.

3. A Senate investigation of the naval oil land leases resulted in the cancellation of those leases, the return of over ten million dollars to the Government and the trial (not yet finished) of Secretary of Interior Fall and the lessees as criminals.

When such results are produced by investigations conducted by Senators directly responsible to the people, it is no wonder that corporate interests want the business of investigating turned over to a hand-picked, appointive Federal Trade Commission.

Once more this newspaper asks:

THE PRESIDENT DIDN'T HESITATE TO ATTACK THESE DEMORALIZING, THESE TREASONABLE, LOBBIES. WHY SHOULD THE SENATE PROTECT THEM? THERE MUST BE A REASON. WHAT IS IT?

Coal Operators' Attitude Declared Public Menace

With their first official chance of telling the public their side of the coal strike story, big coal operators found themselves in the position of being "told something" instead of vindicating themselves, as they insisted they would be able to do when the proper time came.

They were told their actions made them a menace to the entire country. They were told their treatment of the strikers was cruel and inhuman. They were told it is impossible for people to live decently on the wages now being paid in open shop operation of the mines. They were told that a pledge had been broken in the repudiation of the Jacksonville wage agreement.

Several of these big operating officials have been assuming an air of injured innocence in their comment on the manner in which strike news has been handled in The Sun-Telegraph. They have inferred that the union miners must have the assistance of a smart press agent. The smartness must be a matter of opinion, since it appears the best press agents the miners have had are the big coal operators themselves.

If the mine owners thought they could create conditions such as now exist in the Pittsburgh field and expect them to continue for a protracted period without attracting public attention, they had a mighty poor opinion of public eyesight. What need had the miners of a press agent of any description as long as news of the kind that originates at the collieries forces itself upon the public eye and ear?

The coal operators will be wise if they pay a little heed to the implied and expressed opinion of such impartial observers as the United States senators who are now probing the deplorable situation into which the blindness of the coal men has plunged the Pittsburgh district. No doubt they have many points in their favor—for there is no question about the coal industry being sick—but they will make no better headway than they have in the past year should they foolishly insist upon continuing their present policy.

There even may be a question of whether these men are working in proper relationship to the rights of the stockholders of their companies. Can the reserve fund of any mining company be rightly used for the purpose of destroying the miners' union? This appears to be the object now in view.

Orchestra Gives Concert; Deserves Public Praise

Sunday night the auditorium of Syria Mosque was filled to capacity. It was a refined and orderly audience of music lovers, present to hear a concert given by the orchestra of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society. It was an event of a kind calculated to increase the cultural and artistic richness of our life. There was an invocation by a Pittsburgh clergyman and then music—exalting, soul-lifting music.

The Sun-Telegraph congratulates the Pittsburgh Symphony Society not only because of the success of the first concert given under conditions that promise to assure an orchestra that really represents Pittsburgh, but because the spirit of its

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

A Moon Cross

"This morning on looking out at the moon at six o'clock there was a perfect cross visible which looked about twenty feet long in the sky, and right in the center of it was the moon! Can you give me any information as to the probable cause and the probable meaning of it?—C. C. R., Philmont, N. Y., February 7."

I CONGRATULATE you on having been a witness of a species of aerial phenomenon that nature does not trouble herself to show to everybody; it was a rare form of "paraselene," or lunar halo that you saw.

The word "halo" is used as recklessly as the word "charity"—one to "cover a multitude of sins" and the other to hide a muchness of ignorance. There is no other subject connected with meteorology that you will find so diversely treated, or so confusedly and incompletely.

The fact is that these phenomena, depending upon both refraction and reflection of light by ice particles, or mist particles, in the air are so varied in their appearance, so capricious in their individuality, and so uncertain in the circumstances of their apparition, that it seems useless to try to classify them in any but the most general way. Plain haloes and coronas are easy enough to explain, but the "paras" are complicated and coltish.

Your phenomenon was due to light reflected from an imperceptible cloud of (probably) ice-crystals in the atmosphere around (para)—the place where the moon—(Selene) appeared to be disporting herself in a cool bath of morning air, and hence its Greek name, paraselene. It must be confessed that sometimes the careful dissection of a classical name like this furnishes nearly all the popular knowledge that science is prepared to make known on the subject.

Taking the existence of the floating ice-crystals as an acceptable postulate, and not disputing the geometrical principles upon which the theory of halos is developed, you may feel that the explanation still falls short of showing the reason why the light should take the form of a cross, with the moon in the center, which is the very nub of the question!

But something of the kind can be seen in ordinary experience by watching the appearance of the reflection of the sun or moon or other light in troubled water, which acts like a cloud of reflecting particles, the reflection taking the form of a band extending to and fro, or in what may be described from the observer's viewpoint, as a vertical direction. Sometimes, with moving water you will see a cross beam also. The discussion of the manner in which the reflecting ice crystals produce horizontal and vertical bands centering around the sun or moon is far too complicated to be described here. For this you can consult books on physical optics, such as Professor R. W. Wood's.

The "meaning" of the phenomenon is of the nature of a weather prophecy—though it is not very definite. It shows, at least, that there is frozen mist in the upper air and so gives some slight clue to the humidity of the atmosphere. But the psychological influence of these skiey apparitions is very great. The figure of a cross mysteriously glowing in the sky appears to be particularly impressive to the majority of observers.

One of the most famous of all Alpine tragedies—that attending the first ascent of the formidable Matterhorn in 1865—was burned deep into the world's memory as much, perhaps, by the great luminous cross that rose silently and awfully into the sky before the eyes of the nerve-shattered survivors, as by the terrible loss of life. This cross was produced by reflection of sunlight from clouds of ice particles over the mountain.

The Shock of Murder

IF THE purpose of capital punishment is to deter murder, then the widest publicity for its grewsome details becomes a necessity.

If such publicity shocks the conscience of the public, then the public should remove the cause.

This is the more reasonable since there is no evidence that the death penalty does deter.

Hard Tasks Good

DO YOU ever force yourself to do the thing most distasteful to you?

Like most persons you probably avoid the things you dislike.

The longer you pursue this course the harder it is to change your ways.

It is easy to go through life if only pleasant undertakings are to be followed, or if only those things you must do are carried out.

Where is your initiative in disagreeable achievement?

It is a great character builder, this doing unpleasant things that ought to be done, because they ought to be done.

Maintain a spirit that welcomes hard tasks.

Make it a gratification to master difficulties.

You won't slip back as long as you have a fighting desire to overcome obstacles.

But to try to avoid physical and mental effort is to go down in defeat when you least expect it, and that rapidly.

You need experience to accomplish worthwhile things.

Master or Slave

ARE you master or slave of your golden store;
Do its pleasures die in your lust for more?
Does your greed for gain grow greater still,
Till its might is more than your strength of will?
This is the danger which all must meet
When they find one joy grows supremely sweet;
Danger of holding it dear, too dear,
Losing their purpose and vision clear.
Passions bring peril and hazards grave,
Think, are you master or helpless slave?

Leader in Wrong Line

THE United States merchant marine yet leads in one branch of the foreign carrying trade.

There are still some 350 sailing ships on the high seas engaged in transporting the foreign trade of the United States, and most of them are American.

Our leadership in the obsolete method of water transportation is hardly a reason for pride.

O. O. McINTYRE

On the Ocean

AT SEA, Feb. 28.—The ocean is tossing today and the ship jumps about like a fiddler's elbow. There is no sensation quite like that of the ground suddenly leaving your feet and the feeling of treading on a soft billowy cloud. Grotesque figures sway at odd angles in the companionway. The stewards are galloping with suspicious pans.

A snowstorm is raging on the Atlantic and the vessel plunges through a curtain of white. At three-minute intervals the fog horn bleats its dismal warning—an eerie hoarse cry like a lost, despairing soul. In the crow's nest a snow man, like a wraith in a mist, stamps about, peering into a hopeless void. Ol' debbil sea!

Passengers are thawing out. They are losing their reserve, their stiffness, and some, of course, their breakfasts. Groups are pairing off for bridge, poker and gossip. In 24 hours a liner takes on the neighborly friendliness of the cross-road hamlet.

Isolation from land and the uncertainty of the sea breed a close-knit intimacy. A banker from Montreal in the smoking room today insisted I should not call him mister. That, of course, in Broadway patter, is a bowl of cherries. He will probably wrinkle a brow to recall me a week hence in London or Paris.

This afternoon Ray Long, Charlie Norris and I attended one of those private art exhibits of a Brazilian painter. It seemed to me we did nothing but gush. Had he shown us a can of tomatoes we would have called it exquisitely beautiful—such feeling, perspective, and all that.

The official pessimist staggered out today to observe that at midnight tomorrow we would reach the exact spot where the Titanic hit an iceberg, but he was quite overshadowed by the little 7-year-old optimist on the promenade deck who said, "Nurse, if I had my life to live over I'd spend it on the ocean."

A rap just now at the door revealed a flunkey who handed in an engraved card with a grave bow. It read: "The commander requests from you the honor to join him in a cocktail in his quarters at 6:30 p. m." O, the sailor's life is the life tra la!

Smoking room stewards—or bar waiters—are invariably high-class servants. They must speak French, Italian, German and English. They are as carefully selected as ship officers, and a bar steward with tips alone has a greater income than the captain of the vessel. The chief smoking room steward is in charge of auction pool, and receives a 10 per cent share, making his income often more than $30,000 a year. Some day trans-Atlantic liners will ban auction pool.
